CLARKE GRIFFITH AND COMIS-MEY GET TOGETHER AND SOME PANDOM DOPE IS THE RE-

"They can all come and go," said Jimmy McAleer, as he sat in Ban John-son's office in Chicago, killing time, "but I don't think the game will ever see another player—in certain ways like Jack Glasscock. He was distinctively one of the oddest characters who ever played around a diamond, and the duplicate of Pebbly Jack has yet

Glasscock was a great shortstop, a good batter and the meanest player who ever wore the spikes. He wanted to win so badly that he would do anything to stop the opposition. Some of his tricks were lalapaloozas. If the umpire was looking the other way, he'd throw a handful of sand in your eyes. If you slid into the base it was right into his spikes, blocking off the bag like a barb-wire fence. When he shoved the ball against you it was for business purposes, and you know all about it. the tricks he was best in were tricks that were almost impossible to see. As you turned the base he would wander accidentally across your path, and you would instinctively slow up to avoid collision. The fraction of a second thus lost generally meant à putout at the next station. If you went on ahead he would take just a pinch at your trousers as you passed. That little nip would throw you off your stride, and unbalance you to such an extent that you would fall an easy victim to the man at the next stand, who would be waiting with the ball.

"A great deal of the so-called rowdyism and profanity of the old times was really caused by such tricks as these. When a man had been put out as the result of such a dodge he would naturally express his opinion both of the offender and of the umpire who had failed to see the play. Hence the air would be dark blue and the papers the next day would talk about another disgraceful Once I saw Glasscock nip Burkett as he passed and slow him up so that the third baseman nailed him. Imagine the scene! Glasscock and Burkett, showering each other with choice language and such language as those two could devise! Oh, but it was rich, and the poor umpire had as much show to stop them as he had to fly!

"Players used to sharpen their spikes for Fred Pfeffer," said Comiskey, "and they were going to cut him Yet when the slide was made and the putout was over and the men had to the bench we'd ask: 'Why didn't you cut him.' and the invariable answer would be: 'Didn't get a chance!'
When Pfeffer touched you with the bail
he hit you hard, too." said Clarke Griffith, "I saw him black Walter Wilmot's eye with the ball one day, and Walter was fairly wild. He was going to lay for Fred after the game, but didn't catch him." "For my part," said Comiskey, "I never feared these spiking fellows. I'd block them off first and take a chance. It's this way with blocking men: Almay want to spike they also want to get back to the base and that's their chief object. Hence they don't get enough leeway to make their slide forceful or dangerous. Their spikes may cut the skin a little, but

The basketball championship of the Y M. C. A. is still unsettled and the tourns ment to decide which of the three tied team is the best has not been arranged. Neither of the teams seems to be in any particular hurry, as they want their full strength for the contests. There never was a time in the history of the S. A. A. C. when there were so many applicants for membership as at the present time. The team has been averaging about 25 new members at every regular board meeting for the past five months. At the last meeting 26 new men were voted in, and so far this month there have been eight applications, At the present rate it is claimed that the S. A. A. High School to Change Managers. The Spokane high school athletic asso ciation has concluded to change its man agement of athletics, and will abolish the office of general manager, which position has been the governing power over all athletics except football. A meeting will be called in a few days to make the change, and at the same time the provision will be made for track and baseball managers, two positions that have heretofore hot existed. The general manager has always had control of baseball, handball and track affairs, but they will now be managed by separate heads. Edward Doust, who is now general manager, will undoubtedly be elected manager of the basketball team, while Fassett, formerly football manager, will assume control of the track men.

LUCAS CALLS LEAGUE MEETING

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 15.—President ucas of the Pacific National league nas called the annual meeting of the league directors here on Saturday. There will be but four votes at the opening of the Saturday meeting until two or three applications have been acted upon. Those who will be entitled to vote at the beginning will be John J. McCloskey, Salt Lake; Charles H. Lane, Butte; Clyde Williams, Spokane; D. E. Dugdale, Seattle. In case of a tie vote President Lucas will have the right to cast the deciding vote. This tie vote is likely to be cast if the plans of the Montana magnates are carried out to make the circuit a 50cent admission for all towns. Williams and Dugdale will fight this proposition. There will be applications for admission to the league from Bellingham, Vancouver and Ogden. It is also probable that Great Falls will knock at the door. There is little chance of Ogden getting in if Bellingham and of Los Angeles, who is fielding the ball Vancouver apply. President Williams is in receipt of a letter from Pitcher Quick, who asks for a contract with Spokane this season.

SPOKANE AMATEURS HOLD ANNUAL MEET

(Journal Special Service.) Spokane, Wash., Jan. 15 .- At the anual meeting of the Spokane Amateur Athletic association this week President

Ware will recommend a change in the directorate of the club that has for its object the better financing of affairs. The recommendations will probably come up at a special meeting to be called some time during the year. The changes suggested by President Ware will reduce the number of directors to four and the president as against 14, as at present. Each member of the board will be at the head of a certain committee, the members of the committee being picked from the members at large. house committee will be composed of those interested in social events, the athletic committee of the athletes, and these will confer with the chairmen of their respective committees on all matters pertaining to their departments. This will leave the five officers of the club to conduct all the financial affairs, but the committee of the members will have a good deal to say as to the management of the club in other details.

The question of admitting juvenile and lady members of the club was discussed and postponed until the special meeting as at that time the members would be in a better position to know what they could do in the new building A. C. Ware, the present president, was unanimously reelected president for the ensuing year.

The installation was conducted by Deputy at the dates. set for hearing as soon as the attorneys are prepared to have the dates for the hearing fixed. This is quite a contrast to the state of Washington, where the supreme court had I19 cases ready for trial on January 1 as soon as the court could give them attention. Such a state of affairs will probably not exist in Oregon for a long time, as the court as now organized, works rapidly and is able to dispose of a large amount of business in a very short time. A few years ago, however, things were different. For years the Oregon supreme court was from 200 to 250 cases behind, and it took from two to two and one-half years for a case to come up for final hearing and disposition after the appeal was taken. This was not speedy justice, but the court could not help the blockade. Efforts were several times made to give relief by legislation in the way of a supreme court commission to hear cases, but it always failed. Finally the legislature provided for stenographers for each of the justices and with the aid of these the court soon disposed of the accumulation of business. Prior to that time many of the decisions were written out by the court The present justices of the court, Hons. F. A. Moore, R. S. Bean and C. E. Wolverton, are hard workers and probably put in more hours of work every day than do any other like officials on the Pacific coast.

In the supreme court last evening the following cases were set for trial dur-ing the last week in this month: Tuesday, January 26—L. H. McMahan, respondent, vs. Walter Whalen and B. B. Colbath, sheriff, appellant; appeal from

Pay for Bight of Way.

The jury found in the condemnation proceedings of the county of Clarke against Carl Granniaunn that the later is entitled to $162.50 for a right of way for the county road through his premises. Carl had insisted on the right of way being worth about $500, but would not talk with the county commissioners for any price. Hence the condemnation proceedings. The county road, it is believed by every one familiar with the location, is not only necessary for the public good, but will greatly enhance the value of the owner's premises, and it is also believed he is realizing a great deal through the condemnation proceedings.

Coroner Investigates a Death.

The coroner was called suddenly from Vancouver yesterday to Salmon creek, to investigate the death of P. Oppermann, who was found dead at his farm in that district. It was at first believed that Oppermann had been knocked in the head, at least that was the report made to the coroner before he went out. The body had lain several days, but the inquest proved that there was no foul but the probability of having play: dropped dead. The indications showed that heart trouble must have been the cause of his death.

This is the third time the postoffice has been robbed in two years.
