

MAN'S GREAT NEED OF DAY OF REST

NEED OF DAY FOR SPIRITUAL REPLETION—ADDRESS ON ALASKA MISSIONS—RABBI WISE'S VACATION EXTENDED—METHODIST BANQUET AND REVIVALS.

Rev. W. F. Small of First Universalist church preached from two texts. He said: "I use two texts—Exodus 20:10, and Mark 2:27. They show the contrasting point of view, respecting a day of rest, as found in the Bible. On the whole, Christendom ignores the fourth commandment, which specifies that no manner of work be done on the seventh day. Because, long ago, they felt the necessities of human nature made inevitable very decided modifications in the mode of the rest day observed. There are small and unimportant sects of Christian literalists who adhere to the strict letter of the old decalogue. Our Jewish brethren, in the main, retain their ancient traditions, and with them the Sabbath begins Friday evening. There is food and need for exercise of large charity here, and Paul's words should be often considered—'One man esteemeth one day above another; another man esteemeth every day alike.' Let every man be fully assured in his own mind. Whether we be Jew or Gentile; whether we be strict or broad constructionists in our view of the Scripture documents, in the main, our attitude concerning Sunday, or the rest day, is really based upon the principle contained in the remarkable statement of Jesus, that 'the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.'"

"We recognize a periodical day of rest as an utter necessity of human nature. Man must have repose from the effects of his arduous toil. If you could imagine the entire machinery of the industrial world as not ceasing, as always flowing, never ebbing, as on Sunday, why—well, progress could not have been as it is. The physical system demands rest. In fact, man has no more pressing need than that of repose. Ample testimony is to be had from the teachings of eminent physiologists as to the need of a rest day. Some say that powerful testimony may be adduced from the same source as to the need of the ratio, one in seven. However that may be, it were futile to consider any change in the habit. The experiment was tried in that violent reaction against most every established idea, the French revolution, but the experiment was a palpable failure.

"But the radical issue is, shall man be contented with mere recuperation from physical labor? Shall he not desire to grow above the brute? Rest of the body is not enough; but this is as far as the matter goes with a great many people. They work six days in the week; Sunday they want to idle away, to rest. This plea covers a multitude of deceptions and omissions. Many a man rests his body on Sunday, but not his soul. Too many of us ignore this truth—that the supreme fact in human nature is God. We cannot realize high power of character if we ignore this fact and its implications. The strong, helpful, useful, might men and women of the world's higher walks are those who 'look up to the hills.' The American nation has been strong because, though God is not recognized in the constitution, yet he has been recognized by so many of the people in their daily lives. Our national prestige will continue as the same condition is made to continue. Sunday, not merely as a day of physical rest, but as a day on which men shall recognize their allegiance to God, is an indispensable help in this process. To use Sunday as a mere day of physical rest is to shut out some of the finest inspirations that touch the springs of human character; to use it as a day of pleasure is to set in operation forces that are as surely degenerating as truth is true.

"We do not want a Puritan Sunday. We do not want a Continental Sunday, with its flippant laxity, and selfish disregard of man's nobler needs. We want a day devoted to the needs of man's higher life. The law of man's higher needs must determine the use made of Sunday. Sanity of judgment, keenness of conscience, and breadth of sympathy must be soberly sought by all, and constantly aspired after."

MISSIONS OF ALASKA.

Alaska and its mission fields was discussed by Rev. Edward Marsden, the Indian minister of Alaska, at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. He said: "The need of the natives of Alaska is education. We want schools in our country. The young people are anxious to learn and their parents are anxious to have them educated. An evidence of this was furnished me when I was instructed to gather together about 20 boys and girls for the Carlisle school. I got the 20 without any trouble. The trouble came in refusing others. I had to learn 12 more and they had to refuse two or three times as many more. One boy was so determined to go to school that, notwithstanding the fact that I told him he could not be taken, he stole on the ship the night we left and I discovered him when we reached Seattle. There was nothing for me to do but to take him. He was received in the school and I believe he has the character in him to make a good man."

RABBI'S VACATION EXTENDED.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Cathedral Beth Israel, who has been absent for two months on a recreation tour, was yesterday allowed an extended leave of absence until September 1. When Dr. Wise started on the trip he expected to return in a few weeks, but he has since concluded that he needs a longer rest. At the meeting yesterday it was voted to allow him a liberal salary during his vacation, and to continue Rabbi David Lavigne as pastor during his absence.

A METHODIST BANQUET.

Bishop Earl Cranston and all pastors of Methodist churches in the city will be special guests of honor at a banquet to be given in Centenary Methodist church, Wednesday evening, by the Men's Methodist Social union. Rev. Dr. Coleman, president of Willamette University, and Hon. R. A. Booth, lay delegate from the Oregon conference to the general conference, held in Los Angeles in May, are also to be present as guests and respond to toasts.

BAPTIST EVANGELICAL MEETINGS.

George Robert Cairns, a national evangelist, opened a series of meetings in the Second Baptist church, East Seventh and Ankeny streets, yesterday. Meetings will be held every evening at 7:30 and there will be a Bible talk in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Beginning tomorrow afternoon the topics will be as follows: Tuesday, "Does God Answer Prayer?" Wednesday, "The Worker Ready for Service;" Thursday, "Use of the Bible in Personal Work."

AT THE THEATRES

THE ARCADE.

A new bill will be presented at the Arcade theatre beginning tonight.

PARK THEATRE OPENS.

The new Park theatre, at Sixth and Washington streets, opened its doors to the public for the first time on Saturday evening, and every performance has been witnessed by crowded houses. The place is a home for continuous vaudeville, and there are five shows daily, two in the afternoon and three in the evening. The first week's bill includes Caesar and Lewis in their trunk mystery act; J. M. Spencer, with illustrated songs; Lewis and Lewis in a comedy turn, and Anderson and Kusick, with feats of balancing. Other feature teams have been signed and will be added to the program. The show is well worth the while, and promises to make a strong bid for public favor.

"ARE YOU A MASON?"

"Are You a Mason?" will be seen here at the Marquam Grand theatre tonight and tomorrow night. The entire cast is proficient, and the production rises far above the average farce.

"TWELFTH NIGHT."

Two scenes in the revival of "Twelfth Night," which Miss Marie Wainwright will present at the Marquam Grand theatre next Wednesday night, January 30, are reproductions of paintings by masters. The seascape scene of Illyria is a reproduction of the famous painting by Conti. Orsino's love bower of roses is from the painting "Love's Young Dream." Manager Jules Murry, in making this revival of "Twelfth Night," spared no expense to make the production noteworthy from every viewpoint. Scientifically, it is gorgeous. In the matter of costuming it is unexcelled.

"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

"A Chinese Honeymoon" will come to The Marquam Grand theatre next Thursday and Friday night and Saturday matinee. The seat sale will open tomorrow morning.

"FOR MOTHER'S SAKE."

A little beam of sunshine in the theatrical firmament has dropped in at Cor-dray's theatre this week, and Miss Marie Heath's thoroughly pleasing character work as Joe Pemberton, a boy who is wrongfully accused of perpetrating all the practical jokes in a peaceful village, is well worth the while of any theatre-goer. "For Mother's Sake" has much that meets with popular favor in spite of its title.

The story concerns a father's wrongful imprisonment on the charge of murder. He goes into the woods with a visiting newspaper man and the latter disappears. Mr. Pemberton is sentenced to life imprisonment, charged with the murder. Eventually the son becomes dissatisfied with things at home, learns the truth about his father, and eventually runs away, determined to clear his parent's name. In a mining camp he accidentally runs across a friend in the person of an expert assayer and, in a burst of confidence, each tells how he is sitting under a false name. The assayer proves to be the man thought to have been murdered, who had reasons for wishing himself thought dead.

The principal interest of the play centers around Miss Heath's impersonation of Joe Pemberton, and during the second act she sings in a style that won deserved encomers. Theodora Pottle would improve her part much if she were more careful about enunciating clearly.

"THE MOTH AND THE FLAME."

Society drama replaces comedy at the Baker theatre this week, and Clyde Fitch's "The Moth and the Flame" is given a pleasing interpretation by the stock company.

"The Moth and the Flame" is best known by the church scene in which the bridegroom knocks down a discarded sweetheart. Osa Waldrop makes a most charming "Ethel," and Frederick Esmonson gave a strong interpretation of the role of John Dawson. The same bill continues the rest of the week.

COL. DOSCH DRESSED LIKE THE WAITERS

"I perceive," remarked Col. Dosch, looking over a wide expanse of glossy shirt front at the smoker Friday night, "that barring the waiters, I'm the only man in the house wearing a dress suit."
