SPECIAL

The publishers of The Oregon Daily Journal desire to secure as souvenirs, to be displayed in the business office, a few of the cash receipt tickets issued to want advertisers the past week. As many cash receipt tickets were issued and but a few wanted for the purpose stated, it will be necessary to designate them. The cash receipt tickets wanted are A1, A6, A11, A14 and A18 and will be purchased at $2.00 each if presented at the counting room of this paper. Examine your receipt tickets and see if you have one or more of those desired.

ANNOUNCEMENT

This page will be made interesting to readers of The Oregon Daily Journal as well as of profit to advertisers and readers of "Want Ads." Many Portland readers little realize how very interesting the "want" columns of a newspaper are, until the "want ads." are read as carefully as the local news page. There is much character displayed in the wording of an "ad." and considerable information to be had not found in the news columns, to say noth-ing of the many opportunities no doubt overlooked by the average reader. The "want" columns of a newspaper are of more value to a reader than the news columns because there are people always wanting something that the reader may profit by. This paper will endeavor to make the "want" columns of exceeding interest and as popular as any department of the paper. ' The Oregon Daily Journal should be the leading "want" advertising medium for the following reasons: It is the popular paper of the people; an evening paper publishes news twelve hours ahead of morning papers; an evening paper is the after-dinner paper, when the family have time to read it. For the last reason "want" ads. command more consideration than in morning papers, which are hurriedly looked over before breakfast because of lack of time. When a reader wants something it is usually much needed and the morning paper reader pays no attention to classifications not likely to contain the offering of that particular "want." Advertisements should be read shortly after the wants are made known, and the evening paper is therefore the best medium. Try The Journal's "want" columns and observe the result.

EXCHANGE

There are many people in Portland, and especially ladies, who have articles of value, but of no further service, such as books, china, remnants of piece goods, musical instruments, jewelry, furniture, games, bric-a-brac, or in fact any article too valuable to throw away but not marketable, that they would like to exchange for something of equal value but useful. To such the "Exchange" column is opened, and you are invited to advertise what you have and what you would like to exchange it for. The rate is only five cents per line. Watch this column for what you may want.
