Estacada lots will advance in price on the first day of March, not February, as incorrectly stated yesterday. Inside lots will thereafter be held at $300 and corners at $400. These may now be had at $200 for inside and $250 for corners. at $200 for inside and $250 for corners. The site for a flouring mill has been selected and its construction will be begun within 60 days. Another sawmill is being built, to which a planing-mill and sash and door factory will be added. The great belt of timber adjoining the townsite will afford material for these and the furniture factory for many years to come, and the spienfor many years to come, and the spien-did agricultural region to the west, north and northeast will grow all the grain that many mills can grind. The water power is one of the greatest in the West, which of itself is sufficient to play an important part in the build-ing of an-active and bustling city. The electric power plant, being constructed by the Oregon Water Power & Railway company, at a cost of $750,000, will be an important factor in the upbuilding of Estacada. Now is the time for investors to secure property that will surely double in value within a year. A town founded upon such resources as those of Estacada can not be held back. It is bound to rapidly expand in population. The Oregon Water Power Townsite company, room 5, Oregon Water Power & Railway company's building, First and Alder. Phone, Main 216.

The last of the gang of girl thieves was in the police court yesterday day in the person of Mary Piendl, 15 years of age. The girl was found guilty of being implicated in the theft of jewelry from the store of H. Cassell, 50 Third street, last week. Judge Hogue sentenced her to the Boys' and Girls' Aid society home, to which Mary's two younger sisters and the two young Grlock girls were committed Wednes-day. When Patrolman Hirsch arrested Mary she pleaded tearfully not to be taken, and promised faithfully to be a better girl in the future. But Mrs. Plendl was convinced that a term in the home would be a lesson to her oldest, as well as the younger children. The smaller girls claim that the scheme of robbery was concocted by Jennie Grlock and Mary Plendl.

Paul Strain, one of the most energetic fellows in town, is "slamming" prices of ciothing down to the home of the famous McGinty, supposed to be having considerable recreation beneath the waves of the deep, blue sea. Having some pressing obligations to meet, Mr. Strain concluded that the best way out of the hole would be to "lambast" values, which he did, and the bargains he has placed upon his counters attracts to his stores, Strain's, 285-287 Washington, and The Hub, Third and Burnside, such multitudes of buyers as are not often seen together in any place. Many are laying in stocks of clothing that will last them for a long time to come. They seem to by looking out for future days.

RIGHWAYMEN HOLD UP WILLIAM STRANLMAN AND COMPANION IN THE FORMER'S GROCERY STORE -WARYS REVOLVERS AND DES-PERATION PLAY LEADING PARTS.

The grocery store at 380 Water street, owned by William Stahlman, was the scene of a successful holdup at 7:36 scene of a successful holdup at 7:30 o'clock last night, which netted the two masked highwaymen more than $125. The robbery was executed with neat-nes and dispatch. It was daring and bold and branded the highwaymen as experts in their line of work. Although took place at Dunning's undertaking usually pass the store, no one appeared Morris conducted the security. After leaving they were seen running north at full speed. They dashed through a woodyard and were lost to sight among piles of wood.

"Throw up your hands or we will blow your heads off!" was the command of the highwaymen as they entered the front door.

One of the men was very small, while the other was taller and of heavy build. Both were masked with white cloths, in were eyeholes cut in the upper They came in with a rush and which part. the manner in which their orders were issued showed that they meant business Their revolvers also looked dangerous A second order-immediately followed the first. The proprietor, with T. Mayhew, who was the only other person is the store, quickly complied by holding their hands toward the ceiling. Then the victims were marched to the real of the store at the point of the guns and were told to keep their faces to the

Near the place where the victims were standing in suspense was a door, and Mayhew whispered to Strahlman, asking if escape through the door was not possible so that help might be summoned. This was overheard by one of the thugs, who said: "One move for the door, and I will shoot you both dead." Violet Oats for weak stomachs. White

For several minutes the crooks attempted to open the grocer's cash register, but it was fastened with an oldtime combination, which could not be worked by them. Strahlman was orfered to walk to the front of the store and unlock it.

He pretended that he also could not force the lock and the robbers became The leader then said in exasperated. voice that showed determination: "No; you haven't forgotten how to open it. I'll give you just a minute to get into it, or I will blow your head off." A second later the register drawer was pulled out and from it the thieves took $125. After doing this they searched the pockets of both men, securing but a small sum from each, and then they hastened off. Before doing so they informed the two men that a lookout man was watching from the outside, and he would kill both if they failed to remain with their hands upifted for ten minutes.

This proved to be but an idle threat for just after the robbers left, Strahlman and Mayhew gave the alarm. The entire neighborhood turned out search for the thieves, but were unable to follow them.
