Oregon City and Vicinity

Oregon City, Or., March 5 .- Now that the fire elections are so near the in-terest in the outcome is keen. The contest will be very close and it is any body's fight so far. The center of in-terest is in the race for fire chief. There are three candidates for this position. The position itself is not a thing to work for, but there is a dignity connected with it that makes it desira-ble for a company to have one of its members hold the place. The candidates are Lawrence Ruchonich of Fountain No. George Brown of hook and ladder No. 1 and Howard Brownell of Cataract No. 2. There is only one candidate so far for assistant chief and that is Will Lewthwaite of No. 3. At the election will be chosen two members of the board of fire commissioners. The can-fidates are Sam Phelister of Fountain No. 1. E. McFarland of Cataract No. 2, E. J. Noble of hook and ladder No. 1 and Clarence Bruner of No. 3.

There is more stir over this election than is usually aroused over a city The reason for this is that the rivalry between the companies is always keen and in the elections it is more so. It is as much of an honor for a company to have a chief as it is to reach a fire first, and the friends of the different candidates are sparing no trou-ble to make their candidate win.

Among the three men who are run-ning for chief there is little choice. been identified with fire departments for a number of years and any one of them would make a good chief. Brownell is making more efforts than the other two place. He is young and energetic and enters into the contest with great enthusiasm. His company is back of him and all are working the com-panies on the hill for votes. Neither of the two companies on the hill has a candidate for chief and it makes little difference to them who is tife officer. Consequently the companies on Main street hope to draw enough votes to elect their man,

George Brown is not making much of are campaigning very quietly. His is the largest company, there being some 40 members and this may win the contest for him. There is something mysterious in the quietness of his supporters and they do nothing but smile when they are asked about the election. They evidently have something up their sleeve that they will let down on Mon-

Lawrence Rue onich is not doing much either. He is relying on the department to reelect him again on account of his record while at the head of the fire department the last year. During the time that he has held office there has been a number of improvements and innovations, introduced into the department since the Chicago fire, and the chief will point to them as an endorsement for his reelection.

There are about 160 names on the list of men who will vote in the election. The polls will be open at 10 o'clock in City spoke briefly: Col. R. A. Miller, the morning and remain open until 4 C. D. ied by their wives at the Men's Congregational clab's supper given in that church last night, it is generally re-gretted that Governor Chamberlain was forced to cut short his address on the management of the penitentiary as conducted since he inaugurated his reform policy at that institution. In the short period of 20 minutes allowed him before he left for Portland, he told of the conditions in the state penal institution as he found them and then expisited the results of his reforms.

He said: "Ninety-nine out of every hundred men now confined at Salem are there because of improper bringing up by their parents. The parents are the ones that should be punished. There should be a means of prohibiting mar-riages when it is known that the offspring will not be treated except with brutality. It is from such cases that the ranks of the convicts are being recruited. "The whipping post at the penitenti-ary has been abolished. It makes the men only more brutal, stubborn and sulky. In its stead the water cure has been established with splendid effect. When a man is unruly he is taken in the bath room and the hose turned on his anatomy. No man has ever out over three minutes. Besides this effect it is certain he is absolutely

One thing the governor wished to impress upon the minds of his audience was stated as follows: We have at the penitentlary one the best hospitals on the coast. Neither the Good Samaritan nor the St. Vincent excels it. In and out of it the men are being treated as men, not as dogs. The effect is very evident. "At present there are only two women confined within the penitentiary."

The governor concluded by saying: George Brown is not making the has a state affairs one of my great not a fight for the position. He has a state affairs one of my great not a fight for the position. He has a state affairs one of my great not a fight for a better penitentiary and a better reform school. Those changes are being reform school. Those changes are being reform school. In both places the inmates are not so unruly and they are taking an interest in life and its future. There are men confined there who should be away from there and there are others not there who should be."

The banquet was a pronounced suc-cess in every detail. The parlors of the club were very prettily decorated for the occasion and the tables looked very brilliant when the company assembled. Governor Chamberlain's talk was the address of the evening and it was applauded to the echo.

There were musical numbers on the program to give a pleasing variety to the speeches. Miss Edith Cheney and Mr. Nelson sang two very pleasing solos that were well received. In addition to the governor's talk the following business and professional men of

CORVALLIS EXPECTS BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

Corvallis, Or., March 5.—The report is current here and is generally credited, that ere long Corvallis is to have another train, leaving here for Portland early in the morning and returning late in the evening. Representatives of the Southern Facific company have been in this city for the past few days, and while they refuse to confirm the report, they also do not deny it, which fact strengthens the public opinion that such a service is to be established. would bring Corvallis into closer touch with the outside world, from which it is in a measure isolated because of the present unsatisfactory train service. At present drummers and others complain about being obliged to spend the night in Corvallis whenever some trifling errord demands their attention here. rand demands their attention here. natter how greatly they desire to travel owards Portland, they must, if they come in on the noon train, remain until the 1:20 p, m, train next day before they can reach the metropolis, unless they hire a rig to Albany and there

If it became operative the new service would enable a business man to leave Corvallis in the morning, transact a quantity of business in Bortland through the day, and reach home in time for dinner.

It is said that the proposed change will affect the whole west side system. and that better service for all towns on this line, as well as to Corvallis, is the object of the company.

Business on the rural postal routes is increasing all the while, thereby demonstrating the interest and appreciation of the farmers served by the carriers. On the three routes leading out of Corvailis the following pieces of mail were collected and delivered during the month of February: No. 1, 4,310; No. 2, 3,731; No. 3, 8,835; total, 11,876. ## EASTERN OREGON IS IN FAVOR OF CANAL

(Journal Special Service.)
