ing quartermaster, received a telegram from Washington this morning asking if oats can be carried safely with lumber and if so how large a shipment the Inverness can take out. This matter is now being investigated, and an answer will soon be given. It is said there is no question as to the practicability of shipping oats and lumber on the same vessel and all that has to be really inquired into is to determine the quantity of oats that can be handled. Mr. Taylor PIONEER DAVIS of the firm of Taylor, Young & Co., lo-cal agent for the steamer, says it is his opinion that the vessel will carry, in addition to the lumber shipment, about 2,500 tons of oats, the full amount that the original contract called for. Relative to the forage shipment noth ing definite is known at the local office of the quartermaster. If the contract awarded the Seattle firm has been canceled Captain Baker has not been apprised of the fact. It is presumed to be likely that some of the Portland bids for supplying the oats will be uccepted, but before doing so the government is anxious to have the matter of transportation inquired into and set Taking the grade of the oats which they offer to supply into consideration, several of the local exporters are confident that their bids are lower than that made by Robinson of Seattle.
