WILL BENEFIT BOTH CITY AND STATE

PRESIDENT RICHARDS OF MINING CONGRESS POINTS OUT ADVAN-TAGES TO BE DERIVED FROM COMING MEETING—RECEPTION TO BE WELL ATTENDED.

All arrangements have been perfected for the mass meeting of citizens of Portland called for Monday night. The parlors of the Commercial club have been donated for the purpose and every citizen and business man of Portland will be expected to avail himself of the opportunity of hearing men from outside of the state as well as at home give their views of the state and the benefit to be derived from the meeting of the American Mining congress and the Lewis and Clark fair. Governor Chamberlain will preside and talks will be given by Mayor Williams, Hon. J.
H. Richards of Idaho, who is president of the congress, Colonel Thomas Ewing of California and Secretary Irwin Mahon of Pennsylvania. Judge Richards had the following to say in regard to Oregon yesterday:

over $5,000,000 per year and yet Oregon is only credited with $1,324,560 by the director of the mint, when one mine alone in Eastern Oregon (the North Pole) produced last year from returns received from the smelters and assay offices $1,650,000. The Bonanza mine, which is in close proximity to the North Pole is credited with as great an output.
Besides this, there is the Columbia, Golconda, California, E and B, Phoenix, I X L, Belcher, Morning, Snow Creek, and Dixie Meadows, all of which have each produced on a conservative average of $100,000 during 1903. This is not taking into consideration the producers of Southern Oregon such as the Greenback, whose monthly cleanup is $20,000, or the Lucky Boy and Granite Mills mine, the output of each of the latter amounting to over $150,000. In the foregoing is not mentioned the placer mines of which Oregon abounds which at a very conservative estimate is $500,000.

"There are 27 paying mines in Oregon and this year will add at least 15 more."
"The great need of the mines of Oregon is a United States assay office and a state mine inspector. By the former the output would be credited to Oregon instead of the bullion and placer gold being shipped to Boise, Seattle, and San Francisco. It is in this way that Oregon is deprived of the credit and Idaho receives that credit, they having United States assay offices within their borders. When a state which produces gold has no government assay office there is no way of having the output correctly reported, as was the case of South Dakota in the report of 1903.
The director of the mint gave the state a credit of less than $2,000,000. The matter was taken up by the American Mining congress and the government authorities investigated and found the report was incorrect and that instead of $2,000,000 the state was entitled to a credit of over $5,000,000 which is now the amount which the government reports as authentic."

"The meeting of the mining congress in Portland not only means much for the mines of Oregon, but much more for the farmer, the dairyman, livestock man, merchant, business man and in fact every one interested in the advancement of Oregon, both from a commercial and financial standpoint.

"Many business men wonder what good the influx of mining men to the state will do them. Do not the miners eat, wear clothing and spend money in divers ways? Are they not the consumers and not the producers? Is it not to the mines that Portland owes her start? Was it not the hardy prospector who first discovered a trail over her hills and blazed the way for the railroads that pour the miners' wealth into the laps of the business men of the state? Was it not the miner who opened up the West and made the bar-ren hills productive of gold when they were unfitted to any other industry? These and many other matters of interest to the West form his mission irrespective of what a man's occupation may be."

The meeting tomorrow night at the Commercial club is but one of many social events that will take place during the next six months under the auspices of the Oregon Miners' association. The leading men of the Commercial club, chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, and Manufacturers' association have accepted the responsibility of making the establishment of headquarters of the congress at Portland a nucleus from which much literature will be sent advertising the city of Portland, the fair and state of Oregon. Thousands of circulars illustrating the city and containing matter relative to the Lewis and Clark exposition will be sent broadcast throughout the country. The executive committee will meet Monday and decide on headquarters and from now on the press dispatches will be full of news from Portland as the date line.

Colonel Ewing's Old Traits.
Col. Tom Ewing, first vice-president of the American Mining congress, is considered a "wonderfully expressive" man. The colonel hails from everywhere. His legal residence is said to be Los Angeles but he always indignantly denies the fact and says:

"I'm from California. That's my state. Arizona claims me and so do some of the other states and territories of the Southwest, and I draw the line at any one place." Colonel Ewing is in Portland to attend a conference of the executive committee of the congress. He is blunt and weatherbeaten and shows the marks of years of tramping over the mountains in quest of the "glittering substance." During the quarter of a century or more since he made his appearance in the mining camps of the West, he has managed to pick up bits of speech that he admits have helped at times.

Sitting in a chair at the Portland hotel last night he related an experience he once had with an Episcopal bishop and several teams of unruly mules.

He Tells a Story.
"The bishop, a young lady and myself," said the colonel, "were coming down an Arizona mountain road in a stage coach one afternoon. At a narrow pass we encountered several ore teams coming up. Each wagon was hauled by a string of mules and the animals had become entangled and unruly. It looked for awhile as though we would not be able to get past and the mule drivers appeared as rattled as their teams."

"Excuse me, bishop," I remarked, "but I guess I'll have to get down there and talk to them fellows in their own language." So I got out of the coach and —well, I talked first to those men and the mules, too. The result was the teams were straightened out and we were able to get by."
"When I climbed back into the stage I excused myself for the words I had used, but informed the bishop that a man had to adapt himself to circumstances and use the right vernacular to be properly understood.

"Say not another word," replied the bishop in a gentle voice, raising his hand in a playful gesture, "a wonderfully expressive language; a wonderfully expressive language!"

BIG STEAMSHIP BOATS TO ARRIVE

INVERNESS NOW DISCHARGING SUGAR CARGO AT VANCOUVER, B.
C., AND IS SHORTLY TO LEAVE
—NEW DRYDOCK IS ALREADY NEEDED.

George Taylor, of the shipping firm of Taylor, Young & Co., received a letter last evening from Captain J. J.
Froud, master of the British steamship Inverness, which is now discharging a cargo of sugar at Vancouver B. C.
Before proceeding to Portland the captain states that the steamer will be taken on the dry dock at Esquimalt to be cleaned and painted. But he says that this work can be easily completed within two or three days.

The weather at Vancouver is very similar to that which has been experienced at Portland, and as a result not very rapid progress has been made in the matter of discharging the steamer's cargo. It consists of sugar altogether, and to save it from being damaged has to be banded during good weather. Immediately following her arrival the vessel lay idle several days on account of heavy rains. Mr. Taylor reports that the vessel will probably arrive here about April 1.

"It is a pity," he concluded, "that the local drydock is not ready for operation.
Had it been the Inverness might have come down here for treatment. She is very foul and is badly in need of cleaning. It is a small job, however, and will be the means of delaying her only a short time."

The Inverness is under charter to the government to carry 1,800,000 feet of lumber and 2,000 tons of oats to the Philippines. By the time she arrives the cargo will be at the docks, and no time will be lost in giving her quick despatch. The prolonged run from Java to Vancouver was caused by the foul condition of her hull.

Relative to the allusion made to the Portland drydock, many shipping men are of the opinion that before such a large vessel as the Inverness is taken on for treatment it should be thoroughly tested. They assert that this should be done with small vessels, and in the event that it did not work properly on the start no great amount of damage is likely to occur. There has been some talk of testing it with one of the Port of Portland's fleet.

As an Ultimatum.

From the Chicago News.
"Der trouble wif dis hyar congera-shun," remarked the Rev. Mr. Whangdoodle sadly as he glanced at the contribution plate, "am dat too many ob yo' all am tryin' ter trubble ober de straight an' narrow road on er fros' mas.
De past am er thing ob de past, brud-dern and sistern, but de future am in de front ob us, an' Ah want ter say right hyar, dat beginnin' wif nex' sabbath xo' all is got ter make moonick or git off de band wagon."

Clothing Specialists

This is a time for specialists.
We sell Kohn Brothers' Fine Clothing for Men.
They're specialists in the making of Fine Clothing—"ready-to-wear"—that kind of clothing which has heretofore been found only in the shops of the merchant tailor—and the very best shops at that.
They employ experts in each department.

Their buyer of woollens devotes his entire time to that department, spending a large part of his time at the mills, designing and originating new and exclusive patterns.
Their pattern designer, whose duty it is to create "Clothes
