

THEY NOW ADORN ROGUES' GALLERY

POLICE SECURE GOOD LIKENESSES OF DEAN AND RICHMOND, SELF-CONFESSED BURGLARS, WHO RECENTLY ROBBED CARTY RESIDENCE OF $1,000 IN JEWELRY.

The photographs of William Dean and Harry Richmond have been added to the police rogues' gallery. They are classed as burglars. Dean and Richmond were arrested last Saturday night by Detective

HARRY RICHMOND.

W. A. Carty, after a search covering a period of several weeks. They confessed to the burglary of the residence of W. A. Carty, on Eugene street, in which more than $1,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry were stolen, while the family was absent. With them was arrested Ed. Wiley, a local prize fighter, said to have been implicated with them, at least to the extent of permitting them to store some of the plunder in his room in the Eagle house.

Dean and Richmond pleaded guilty to charges of burglary, but Wiley pleaded not guilty. The trio were held to the grand jury under bonds.

Among the plunder taken was a lady's ring with two sapphires, around which were set 20 diamonds. The value of the ring was $700. When arrested, Dean and Richmond had some of the plunder, but the ring was missing. When asked regarding it, they denied ever having seen or taken it. They still hold to their denial, but the officers do not believe them.

Dean and Richmond are the first two burglars operating in this city who devised what was calculated to be a scheme whereby the detectives could not capture them. Instead of disposing of their plunder at pawnshops, they sold it to passers-by on the street. They claim to have sold a lady's gold watch, set with diamonds, valued at $150, to a logger for the paltry sum of $10.

The detectives are searching for the missing $700 ring.

BUY SITE FOR BIG APARTMENT HOUSE

S. L. Brown sold to Stanley & Smith a quarter block at Yamhill and West Park streets today for $19,250. The purchasers intend erecting a three-story apartment house on the premises at a cost of $25,000.

COLOR LINE IN CHURCH

admitted that the question will be brought up again for discussion at the conference of four years hence. None of the clergymen would predict that the conference would elect a colored man bishop.

Entitled to Representation.
Rev. L. E. Rockwood, presiding elder of the Portland district, and one of the two clergy delegates from this section to the general conference in May, said in regard to the question:

"There are 300,000 colored members of the Methodist Episcopal church, and they are, of course, entitled to representation. If a negro bishop should be elected there would be everlasting war in the church, of course; but as things stand now do not see how that could happen, although it is certainly among the possibilities. It is not that we do not consider the black man as good as the white man, but aside from all ethical questions, it would be very bad policy for the church. So far their vote has not come very near the danger line—211 cast in favor, to a necessary 463.

"There are many things to be considered in the election of such bishop—and the difficulties to be solved are all constitutional ones, for since it is a foregone conclusion that we could not elect an African to the episcopacy in its itinerant form, it would be necessary to restrict him to a field among his own people, which is a direct violation of the 'third restrictive' rule."

"The third restrictive rule reads, in part: 'The general conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away with the episcopacy, nor destroy the plan of our itinerant general superintendency.'"

"So right here is where the difficulty lies, and where warm discussions took place in the last conference. The question is certain to come up again in May for renewed debate.

"In the Christian Advocate of a recent date, Dr. A. R. Fisher editorially says of the proposed change in the constitution to admit the negro bishop:

"The arguments pro and con, are not new. Our bishops are not chosen with reference to adaptation to any particular section of the country. Personal rivalries among the bishops will be endangered, and debates over assignments may prove unpleasant and injurious to influence. Then, rotation offers advantages in the opportunity of correction of mistakes in appointments. The general conference has never assumed to order the assignment of bishops to particular fields. It has simply admitted the existence of constituted disability by requesting rather than directing four years' assignment. The 'third restrictive rule' was evidently adopted to prevent the districting of bishops."

Would create war.
Rev. W. B. Hollingshead, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, said today:

"The race problem is yet to be settled. The colored men owe a great deal to the Methodist Episcopal church. Collections are constantly being taken for the maintenance of work among them, and they have some good men among them, too. But that does not justify them in asking for a colored bishop to come here and preside over us. The Freedman's Aid society and Southern Educational society have done wonders among them. When they pass out from that period of development, they may see fit to stand alone, but the end is not yet. They are far better now under the leadership of the church. Ultimately they may see fit to withdraw and organize a church of their own, but they are certainly not ready for that change yet."

Immense Shipment.

Woodard, Clarke & Co., northwest distributing agents for The Anthony & Scott company, have just received a consignment of photographic supplies, including all the desirable goods in the line of photographic materials for studio and photo-engraving work, as well as the latest contrivances for amateur photography.

Among the many new items received are "Cyko," a gelatine photographic paper of the development class, which may be printed at any time, by any light, and from all classes of negatives; also, "Aneco" platinum paper, a very simple and satisfactory paper.

For the benefit of those interested a special demonstration of all the new things will be given Saturday evening in the front window on Fourth and Washington streets, from 7:30 to 9 p. m.

WAKEFIELD BEFORE THE GRAND JURY

C. Guy Wakefield, charged with using the United States mails for the purpose of fraud, is still occupying the attention of the federal grand jury. Wakefield this morning gave testimony before the jury but his case was not finished and it was further continued this afternoon, as the jurors are considering the information against Harold Sparkes of Baker City, charged with detaining a letter. W. H. Kelly, who is charged with embezzlement of postoffice money at Oregon, will have his case considered immediately following the Sparkes case. The grand jury had no report to make this morning.

RUSSIAN CRUISER REPORTED SUNK

from their conversation I gathered that something of moment had transpired.

"A Tcheliabinsk, the admiral, received a message in which it was reported that the Japs had invaded Korea. He seemed to think that any conflict would result in a walkover for the Russian troops, and was most sanguine as to the ultimate outcome. There are 250,000 Russian soldiers in Siberia and Manchuria, but the Russians recognize the fact that in naval strength they are woefully deficient.

Found Lake Frozen.

"On February 3 we arrived at Lake Baikal and found the lake solidly frozen. Ice sleds were at hand and the entire train party was desirous of these vehicles and commenced the journey across the ice. The weather was bitterly cold, the thermometer registering 15 degrees below zero, and we all suffered intensely.

"The Russian soldiers, who were compelled to cross over, must have endured untold hardships. Sleds were drawn by six horses, and it took four hours to complete the journey, a distance of 24 miles.

"At Kharbine, a town in Manchuria, along the railway, all Japs were leaving, bag and baggage. These little fellows seemed to be in possession of information concerning the course of events that the Russians were unable to get.

DENIES SEVERAL REPORTS.

Fling Says No Land Engagements Have Occurred.

(Journal Special Service.)
St. Petersburg, March 24.—General Flug telegraphs from Mukden today stating that there is no truth in the report that the Japanese crossed the Taptung Pe Soa pass or had engagements with the Russians. The same applies to the alleged engagement at Port Arthur on March 19 in which 600 Russians were alleged to have been killed and wounded.

A Liao Yang dispatch states that General Kouropatkin was welcomed into the Trans-Baikal territory by General Linovich in a telegram saying that his troops were thirsting for revenge. South Manchuria and South Korea are both reported quiet.

FIREMEN TO PORT ARTHUR.

Experienced Men Sent to Extinguish Flames from Bombardments.

(Journal Special Service.)
Odessa, March 24.—Twenty experienced firemen have been dispatched to Port Arthur to deal with fires started by the oft-repeated Japanese bombardments.

The fire department at Port Arthur is said to be woefully deficient in drill and also lacking in appliances. The crudest methods of fire fighting have been used whenever fires were started.

ALLEN CARLES SITUATION.

Korea Opens Port—Russians Can't Cross Anju River—No Serious Encounters.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—Minister Allen at Seoul cables the state department as follows: "The Port of Yongnampho will be opened to the trade of the world by the Korean government. A thousand Russians have moved south to the Anju river, but the floating ice makes crossing most difficult. There have been few encounters, with very slight casualties."

MIND NEARLY LOST WORRYING FOR SON

The sheriff's office is in receipt of a pitiful letter from Mrs. L. N. Snyder of Charles City, Iowa, who is desirous of ascertaining the whereabouts of her son, William F. Smith. She declares that she is almost insane on account of prolonged anxiety, and begs the officials to try to learn where her son is located, saying she will repay them for their work.

Smith, she writes, was here two years ago, and since then has been in Seattle. The Portland directory for last year gives the name of William F. Smith, an employee of the Multnomah trunk factory, living at 63 Sixth street north. He is not in the city now and it is not known whether he is the missing son or not.

HEAVY FROST IS PROMISED TONIGHT

District Forecaster Edward A. Beals, of the weather bureau, predicts heavy frosts in western Oregon, and western Washington tonight. The weather in the northwest is reported very cold for this season of the year and the prediction is based on the indications for clear weather.

The storm of yesterday that was central in Nevada has crossed to Denver. Tomorrow Mr. Beals says cold weather may be expected east of the Mississippi.

vin as manager of the state Southern Pacific lines as well as those of the O. R. & N.

Stubbs and Kruttschnitt.
At President Mohler's office it was stated today that Mr. Stubbs and Mr. Kruttschnitt, two of the chief Harriman officials, were expected to visit Portland in the near future. The time of their arrival was not known, the office not having been informed of their departure from San Francisco.

"The story about the consolidation of Oregon lines of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company and the Southern Pacific does not take into account the peculiar status of the Southern Pacific here," said one Southern Pacific passenger official. "If Mr. Calvin were to assume the management of the Southern Pacific as well as of the O. R. & N., it would seem that Mr. Koehler, manager of Oregon lines for the Southern Pacific, would be superseded. The line of the Southern Pacific between Portland and Ashland is a leased line owned by a corporation called the Oregon & California company. Back of this are wealthy German stockholders, and when the Southern Pacific was given the lease the appointment of Mr. Koehler as the representative of the German interests was made. The line is still leased, the German interests still find their representative in Mr. Koehler, and in spite of many rumors of change in his place you will always notice that Mr. Koehler remains manager of the Oregon lines of the Southern Pacific, and he probably will continue in that position until he desires to accept some other position."

The current belief is that official announcement will be made in a few days of Mr. Mohler's appointment to the management of the Union Pacific with headquarters in Omaha. Mr. Calvin will be announced as general manager of the O. R. & N., with headquarters in Portland, and for the time the management of the Oregon lines of the two Harriman roads will remain practically the same.

Other Lines Look Westward.

Another phase of the question that may detain the Harriman management from making changes that would cut down Portland's railroad importance and would transfer her prestige as a headquarters to Salt Lake is that not only the financial forces of Portland but of the northwest are ready to offer inducements to other lines to enter this territory whenever the present lines do not afford such service as can reasonably be expected. The Santa Fe is near the Southern Oregon line and looking for a northern terminus. The Gould lines are at Salt Lake waiting for fortune's westward beckoning. The Northwestern is at Caspar with a straight-away run to the coast, miles on miles of which is over the natural overland route, and the Milwaukee in North Dakota as an independent line, is looking for western openings.

Another point which may be recalled with interest now, together with the fact that Harriman is noted for keeping his word, is the statement made by Mr. Harriman on his last visit to Portland.

"We know about this country," said Mr. Harriman in an interview, "and we expect to grow to meet our obligation as rapidly as possible. We will have a modern roadbed and equipment between Portland and San Francisco as soon as one can be built, much of the work is already done, and all Portland needs is patience, these things can not be done in a minute."

ANOTHER 10-CENT VAUDEVILLE HOUSE

Still another 10-cent vaudeville theatre is projected. The southeast corner of Seventh and Alder streets has been leased by Keating Brothers & Flood from R. W. Hoyt. L. C. Keating, of this firm, has been in Portland for several months trying to secure a suitable location. The lease is for five years, with the privilege of a renewal for an equal length of time. The house is to be called the Keating theatre and will seat 1,200 people.

Mr. Keating said this morning that his company was planning a circuit of 10-cent vaudeville houses in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Butte, Great Falls, Mont., Spokane and Portland. At present the company has not erected any building.

NONSUIT GRANTED.

In the suit of Henry Violi to recover $10,000 damages from the Portland Lumber company for injuries received at its mill on May 9, 1903, Judge Sears granted a nonsuit on motion of the company's counsel yesterday afternoon. He held that the risk taken by Violi, whose foot was crushed in a cog wheel, was obvious, and that he was also guilty of contributory negligence.
