THE MONTH'S WEATHER.

The weather forecast reported hast night: Maximum temperature, 40: minimum temperature, 57: river reading, 11 s. m. 8.5 feet, change in 24 hours of 1.1 feet; total precipitation, 5 p. m. to 5 p. m., .02 inch; total precipitation since September 1, 1903, 42.17 inches; normal precipitation since September 1, 1903, 37.54 inches; excess, 4.53 inches; barometer, reduced to sea level, at 5 p. m., 30.28.

A slight disturbance made its appearance during the afternoon off the Oregon coast. It has caused considerable cloudiness in southern Oregon and northern Celifornia and a few sunall showers are reported at scattered places in that section of the country. Elsewhere west of the Rocky mountains the weather is clear, sithough somewhat cooler than usual at this sesson of the year.

Cloudiness will increase during the next 24 hours west of the Casende mountains and result in showers Sunday in Oregon and in southwestern Idaho.

MARKET REVIEW OF WEEK

TONE OF POTATOES SHOWS A CHANGE

REMARKABLE RECOVERY IS MADE IN MARKET AFTER PUBLICATION OF NUMBER OF CARS SHIPPED DURING SEASON AS COMPARED WITH LAST YEAR.

Front Street, March 26.26 p. m.—There was much of interest in the local wholesale markets during the week just ended. The number of changes were not so large as the previous week, but for the most part they Potato Tone Is Changing.

The tone of the potato market during the week showed a remarkable change from one of extreme weakness with no offers of any kind from the dealers to one of fair steadiness with most of the potato men willing to buy at current figures. The cause of this change in sentiment is due to the publication of the potato shipments from this city to the southern states during the current season and those of the season previous. The figures which représented the actual cars which passed Ashiand. Or., on the way to the south, showed that during the season of 1902-3 there were just 921 cars shipped, while up to March 16 of this year the total for the season of 1903-4 had reached a grand total of 1,040 cars. This statement is remarkable the season of 1903-4 had reached a grand total of 1,040 cars. This statement is remarkable inasmuch as the local dealers had been very loud in their complaints of a dull market this year. There is a regular demand for old Oregon potatoes until nearly the first of July, and as an average crop of potatoes in the state of Oregon will reach in the neighborhood of only 2,000 cars it can be easily seen that from this time forth there should be better prices paid. The amount of potatoes remaining in the state out of the dealers' hands is much less than the figures given above, as many of the speculators have large stocks in this city which will have to be taken out of the grand total.

San Francisco Only One Dull. One of the curious facts of the potato situa-tion is that the San Francisco market is the lonly market in the United States that is not clamoring for potatoes. In all other places prices are showing a steady advance, while in San Francisco they remain inactive and only the very lowest prices rule. This condition in the bay city is due entirely to speculation, as there is nothing in the conditions of that market which justify the present course—except speculation. The several floods which have invaded that state of late have laid low a large pertion of its potato-producing area and even that ground which was not made unfit for the planting of potatoes this season will require some time before it will be in a proper condi-tion for seeding. This will make the next year's crop late in maturing and will create a larger demand until that time for Oregon stock. East Wants Our Potatoes.

There is an increasing demand for Oregon potatoes from the middle states and even some of the eastern states are clamoring for the Cregon Burbank. This year there was a general shortage in the potato situation all over the country and before the completion of the presseason higher prices are expected to rule. Few Doings in Onions.

There were few doings in the onlon market during the past week—the quality of the receipts being the same as those of the previous week—very poor. The better grades of stocks, though, found a ready call at the highest figures

There were but few chickens in the whole-sale markets this week and the usual high prices ruled. One bad feature of the receipts this week was that most of them were old hens, when the demand wanted about half springs and half hens. This is the reason that prices did not show any gain this week.

Mohair Season New Open. During the week the 1904 mohair season opened. There were but slight operations during the week, on account of the cold weather, but general shearing operations are expected to begin during the coming week. This year the price of mohair opened several cents lower than last season, the reason assigned by the dealers being that the demand is not so great from the large eastern centers. During the previous the large eastern centers. During the previous season there was quite a demand for mohair from the manufacturers of silk hats, but this year they will use much less stock.

Wheat Shows a Better Tone. During the week there were several large sales of valley wheat reported made to millers at 80@81c. The entire wheat market shows a FORMER KING SAYS EDWIN HAWLEY PAILED TO FURNISH MONEY at 80@81c. The entire wheat market shows a healthjer tone and a general advance of 1c per bushel was made in all grades. The wheat markets in the east also showed an improvement and this helped to tone up local values. Quite a number of the valley mills were compelled to close up during the week on account of the lack of four orders from the orient. Japan is not buying any flour at all just now and no inquiries are being made. Local demand for flour is quite fair, but nothing extra.

Barley Shows Constant Gain.

Barley Shows Constant Gain. The barley market is showing a constant gain in values and stocks are yet hard to obtain. During the week there were several advances in this market. Brewing barley is not making the advances that feed and rolled grades are, as brewers say they have all the supplies they Oats Have a Steady Tone. Oats have a steady Yours.

The tone of the oats market this week was steady, although the movement was not large. There is still a general disposition among the farmers and the warchouse men to hold, is anticipation of the next government order coming icipation of the next government order coming o this city.

Hogs Are Rather Scarce. Hogs Are Rather Scarce.

During the past week the supply of dressed begs along Front street was inadequate to the demand and prices ruled about 1/2 better than the previous week. The veal market centinued glutted with a very poor grade of stock and prices generally were somewhat down. There was not too much good-grade veal in the market, and this class of goods brought the usual quotations. There is a steady demands for good mutton, but the off grades are quoted very weak. The beef market is not quite so firm on account of the large receipts in livestock during the previous week. No changes were made in quotations.

The scarcity in the egg market during the former week was more pronounced during the past week and prices went up several notches and stayed at the high point at the close of the week. It is evident, say the dealers, that the farmers are holding off the shipments until near fester, when they will all rush them in, and the usual break in prices is expected. This week the price of eggs touched 18c and some few sales are reported slightly above. The general market, however, stood at 17½c. There was some inquiry from the north, but the stocks were so small that they could not be filled.

The per gal cases. There are still too many other uncertainties in the general situation and we therefore believe the best that can be expected is a narrow traders' market for small quick turns.

New York, March 26.—J. S. Bache wires: The stock opening was quiet and firm but after the first 10 minutes of trading the buying power diminished and prices reacted to a moderate extent. Interest centered in Union Facific and Southern Pacific, both of which advanced sharply at the spening. There was moderate buying in Baltimore & Ohlo, Reading and Amalgamated Copper. The market hardened considerably after the first heur under the lead of Union Pacific. The general belief is that the Harriman interests are in a position to have the Northern Securities matter adjusted to its liking.

MARKET SUFFERED FROM OVERSUPPLY

Portland Union Stockyards, March 26.—6 p.

m.—The past week has not been a very active one in the local livestock markets. The large receipts of cattle and sheep during the former week left a very weak feeling and an overstocked market and the result was that stockman did not ship very large droves during the week. The sheep market was especially weak during the six days and prices generally ruled at the bottom of the list. The retail butchers appear to be overstocked with cattle and this caused a weaker feeling. In hogs the arrivals did not come as swift as the demand warranted and prices showed an advance of 15c. The receipts during the week consisted of 802 hogs. The office ruling prices at the close of the week showed:

Cattle—Best constern Orseon steers 1450.

Cattle—Best eastern Oregon steers, $4.50; best valley steers, $3.75@4.25; medium steers, $3.50@3.75; cows, $3.50@3.75; bulls, $2.25@2.75; stags, $2.75@3.25.

Hogs—Best heavy, $6.00; block, $5.25; China fors, $5.00@5.25; stockers and feeders, $4.50@5.00. Sheep—Best grain-fed wethers and lambs, $4.50; mixed sheep, $3.25@4.10; stockers and feeders, $2.25@3.00.

COTTON FLUCTUATIONS WERE SENSATIONAL

(Furnished by Overbeck, Starr & Cooke Co.)

New York, March 20.—The week's review of the cotton market as far as mere fluctuations go would rest much more sensational than the real experience of trade, Outside of the unfortunate incident last week and its effect upon the market, trading conditions have much improved and values have reverted back to the laws of supply and demand for their guidance. The spot markets of the south have emerged from a period of uncertainty and stagnation and ars gradually lining up to a level more in accordance with intrinsic values based upon the world's supplies of the American staple and the possible requirements of the consuming public.

The market will, of course, in a measure, the increased cost of goods and the inclination and shility of the speculators to hold the world's supplies for a higher market. On this latter there is no doubt that the conditions favor the speculator for the long secount. Conditions governing the new crop are favorable with the prospects of an acreage and planting limited only by labor conditions. Good rains have fallen in nearly all directions and temperatures are seasonable.

New York, March 26.—The Financial Chronicle says: Buyers and sellers are awalting further developments in the cotton and dry goods market. Business continues moderate, print cloths being unchanged at &c. The export business in packages for the week is 1,694. against 13,616 the same week last year. The total since January is 58,695 bales, against 128,547 the year previous.

OUTOF THE RUINS OF THE CAPITOL

From the New York Sun.
To the Editor of the Sun—Sir: In excayating near the ruins of what was known as the Capitol of the ancient city of Washington, the once famous chief city of the United States of America, Total ..... 22,380,000 S2,136,000 20,472,000 In addition to the stocks returned at French ports there are some quantities held in bond at nillers' warehouses, but these quantities cannot more than 4,000 years ago, a work-man found what appeared to be the diary of a defeated congressman. Although bound in what is unmistakably leather, it is nevertheless in a remarkable state of preservation, apparently due to the process known to the ancients and now indeed a lost art, of preparing the leather with alcohol. Even after the lapse of full 4,000 years the odor of that liquid can plainly be detected in the book. Many interesting incidents and names are recorded in this wonderful book, and its recovery is regarded as a great find for antiquarians.

Among other things appeared the folwing quaint - poem, which from the dimly penned lines preceding it appears to relate to the report of a "grafters" investigation" by a police officer known as Joseph L. Bristow, fourth assistant police-general, which, it seems, inculpated a large number of government employes called congressmen, of which the writer of this poem was one.
THEODORE ROOSEVELT JONES.

Topeka, March 13, 5942. My Kangaroo. I do not love thee half so well As in the days of yore; But what has changed me? Who can tell

What makes me feel so sore?

My Sherlock Holmes, my Kansas Joe. It is not that thy beauty, dear, Has faded from thy face; It is not that thy gentle hand Has lost its catching grace.

Ah, no! not these, my long, gaunt Joe, . Now makes me love thee less. Ah, no! When thou didst with thy mailed hand Grab grafters from their festering nest The welkin rang throughout the land, Ah, then, I'm sure, I loved thee best. But now, when thou prickst me like hell,

I find I love thee not so well, SONG OF THE SLAVES.

From the Chicago Tribune. Dressmakers at their convention declared that silks must be used lavishly and that dresses are to cost more .- News

With cuffs that are grimy and worn, With collars that rub and tear, Let the married men cease to be thinking about The things that they have to wear; Pay, pay, pay! Lest you find yourselves swamped in debt. No resting now, for the milliners say That dresses must cost more yet. Work, work, work! For silks are to be in style; Work, work, work!

Keep hurrying all the while, and shame on the man who saves, Since the millifiers want the "stuff," And have said unto fashion's slaves That dresses don't cost enough! O men, with daughters dear, O men, with stylish wives, Give up your pleasures, toil As if to save your lives, Dig out last summer's shirts.

May rustle in silken skirts. Work, work, work! No matter how bad you feel; Work, work, work! Give up the automobile! You must cease to play golf and turn From tennis and shun croquet, Work, work, work!

So that your darlings with joyful hearts

For the ladies must wear more costly things, So the glorious milliners say. Shame on the man who buys Himself a suit this spring; Let hubby be satisfied To appear in any old things What if his trousers bag. Or his hat is out of date? Let him forget his clothes and just

With a collar that saws his neck, And cans that have oft been turned. Let man send the milliner every cent

Keep toiling early and late.
