(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, April 9.—There was not suffi-cient scating capacity's at Cordray's Opera House to accommodate the large crowd that desired to hear the lecture of Commander Booth-Tucker of the Sal-vation army last night. Thief Justice Moore of the supreme court introduced the noted Christian worker and in a brief speech paid high tribute to the army and eulogized its great work for humanity in the past and present.

He told how the salvationists had been persecuted when the work was first begun by Gen. William Booth; how many Christian ministers had denounced bjective point for a monster excursion to be given on Sunday, May first by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen from Roseburg and Portland and Intermediate points. The Brotherhood usually many Christian ministers had denounced the sect as a band of fanatics and how devotedly the first little army bands struggled against unpopular feeling. In the city of New York, Judge Moore said many arrests of salvationists on trumped up charges, had occurred and he told how the example of New York was followed all over this country. He said the American metropolis was the first to retract its slurs, and for many years the Salvation army garbed man gives its excursions to Salem, but concluded that Eugene would be a drawing card this year. Various amusements for the several thousand excursionists who will be here are being arranged for, years the Salvation army garbed man or woman have been treated with the greatest respect whether happening to be in the slums or on the clean paved including, baseball games between teams of the Oregon state league. Judge Melms Acquitted.

The trial of Judge Helms of Proeb-stel, this county, tried before Justice of the Peace Edward Butler, resulted in an acquittal of Helms. The trouble leading to the arrest and trial of Helms was the shooting of L. R. Ferbercher A couple of days ago Ferbercher went into Helms' store at Proebstel to purchase a bottle of medicine, but prior to making the purchase offered Helms a drink of whisky, which the latter refused. Ferbercher then called for the medicine he wanted, and requested that it be charged. This Helms declined to do, A quarrel ensued and Ferbercher, it is said, was making for Helms by climbing over the counter, and received a shot from a pistol. The ball struck Ferbercher in the forehead in such a manner that it gave him only a scalp wound the entire length of his head. The injured man, it is stated, will undoubtedly recover, but must nurse a sore head for a while and will carry the scar the rest of his life.

Helms claims that it was not his in-tention to shoot Ferbercher, but that he had the revolver in his hands and struck a blow at Febercher with it,
