HOLDS THAT MAYOR IS RESPONSIBLE

TOWN TOPICS. Marquam Grand... The Children's Opera company will appear at the Marquam Grand theatre...

REV. RAY PALMER CONSIDERS THE... RESPONSIBLE FOR PORTLAND'S WICKEDNESS... "Who is responsible? First of all, the mayor, George H. Williams, I bring me charges against him..."

Prizes were awarded yesterday to the Sunday school children of St. Michael's church who have been most faithful in their attendance during the past term...

"I do not say that Portland is worse than many other cities, I have personally looked into the conditions in Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle and St. Louis and believe Portland has less wickedness than the cities named."

This was on divorce by the good people of the country is commendable. War on the old, antiquated fire-heated laundry polishers has placed the steam-heated ones in the foreground of public favor...

"It is false logic, however, that argues that because other cities are bad, we should try to do nothing for our own. We know that gambling and other forms of vice are wide open in our city."

A most excellent musical and literary entertainment will be given at the Tabernacle Central Christian church, East Twentieth and Salmon streets, tomorrow evening, May 10, at 8 p. m.

"One of the most pitiable sights ever seen in our city is that of our honored mayor going before the grand jury and, in round about way pleading the cause of the violators of the law, or again, to see him falling on his hands and knees before the supreme court, and with tears in his eyes pleading to be excused from executing the law against the lawbreakers of the city..."

The excursion trains to Seaside every Sunday in May and June are under the supervision of the A. & C. R. R. management. They wish to assure the people of Portland that all visitors to the beach will have good seats on the train and everything possible will be done to give their patrons an enjoyable day's outing...

"I expect better things of you than your predecessors. We must hold you responsible as one of the watchmen of the city's walls."

The best excursion out of Portland next Sunday will be under the supervision of the A. & C. R. R. Every passenger is assured of a good seat, a delightful ride, beautiful scenery and five hours at the beach to enjoy old ocean...

Special services marked the re-opening of Grace Methodist Episcopal church yesterday, after being closed about two months on account of repairs. At both morning and evening services there was a special musical program...

A popular rally in support of the local option law will be held at the old Congregational church at Second and Jefferson streets this evening. Short address will be made by F. McKerscher, Rev. J. H. Allen, B. Lee Paget and A. C. Millican...

over 20 years old was presented with a beautiful coronation by Mrs. Short. Dr. Short took for his text Hebrew, XIII: "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." He said in part: "The promises of God! They are the corner stone of the Bible, the joy of the saint. They are a balm for the wounded, a cordial for the weak, a restorative for the faint-hearted, and food for the hungry. The world would be miserably poor without friends; the character of our friends is the counterpart of our own; the friendship of Christ implies three essential elements—consideration, comfort, constancy."

"There can be no abiding friendship without consideration. The rights and opinions of all concerned must be considered. This is a fundamental principle in both business and society. Christ has considered our every condition and need. He comforts the sorrowing, toiling, discouraged, dying man; tenderly an even a mother comforted her child has He comforted the sons of men. His constancy is beyond question. His basis is His fathomless, boundless, deathless love. This has made for Him friends, disciples, martyrs. As to Jacob and Michael, as to our own city, it is 60 or more years old. He has proven an abiding, considerate, comforting, constant friend. I congratulate you this morning upon your length and utility of your lives. You have been, and still are, a hero and a heroine. We owe you a debt of lasting gratitude."

"I congratulate you upon your health and vigor. You are not old yet. Your heart is still tender. The condition of the heart and not the number of years is the measure of life. I congratulate you on your life of Christian service and your hope of heaven. These endure. As the smoke of the battle lifts you are already catching glimpses of the city beyond. Soon you must say good-bye to earthly friends, and even to the old body in which you have tabernacled so long. Yes, old body, farewell. I hope to see you again where age and pain are unknown, but now we must part. So farewell, old friend, true friend, good friend, farewell."

SERVICES IN NEW CHURCH. General Christian Congregation Worship in Their New Home. The members of the Central Christian church worshiped for the first time in their new tabernacle, East Twentieth and Salmon streets, yesterday morning. The edifice was well filled at both morning and evening services. The structure is a modest one, sufficient to accommodate the present needs of the congregation, although a more elaborate building will be erected so soon as sufficient funds have been raised.

RE-OPENED AFTER TWO MONTHS. Special Services Yesterday at Grace M. E. Church. Special services marked the re-opening of Grace Methodist Episcopal church yesterday, after being closed about two months on account of repairs. At both morning and evening services there was a special musical program. In the morning, John Ross Fargo sang "God, Be Merciful." At the evening service the choir sang "Abide With Me" and Mrs. J. S. Hamilton sang "I've Had a Glimpse of Jesus." Dr. Lathrop's evening sermon was on the "Twentieth Century Church." At the Epworth League meeting, Miss Jessie Watkins, of the Patton Home for the Aged, on piano and vocal solos and readings. There was also a duet by Norman Lewton and Clarence Godfrey.

AT THE THEATRES. "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES." All who want to know "What Happened to Jones" can learn this week by attending the Baker theatre. For its closing week the Nell-Morocco company has chosen George Broadhurst's popular farce. The farce is in three acts, and depends for its humor mostly on the comical situations developing from a case of mistaken identity. It made a hit at the start and seems a fountain of entertainment which the theater-going public does not tire of. Jones, be it known, is a hymn-book drummer, with a side line of playing cards, and his vocation brings him acquainted with most respectable people. Traveling to a small town he attends a prize fight—it's in the blood—and the fight is raised. That happens oftentimes and is in the nature of things. Jones deals with a professor and his prospective son-in-law to their home, and in order to evade detection is garbed in the suit of a brother of the professor, who is a bishop and momentarily expected home. The family enter, mistakes Jones for the bishop and the fun begins. Howard Gould appears at excellent advantage last night in the title role. George Woodward won applause by his portrayal of the professor. Thomas Oberle's Methodistophellian air was missing in taking the part of Anthony Goody but he displayed much versatility as the bishop. The other members of the company acquitted themselves creditably. Of the women Miss Gardner was ill and unable to appear. Bessie Stuart as a Swedish maid got a great deal more out of the part than would be expected from the lines. As Marjorie, Ethel Hopburn showed a capacity for much more important roles. Miss Esmond and Miss McAllister were up to their usual standard. Pauline Herbert and Teresa Maxwell did as well as historic handicaps would permit—their parts were not stellar.

SOME GENERALS TO SPEAK. Tomorrow (Tuesday) night, at the Marquam Grand theatre the Boer war officers, General Joubert and Captain O'Donnell, will give an illustrated lecture on "The Boer War." Sixty views will be given. The advance ticket of $1.00 opened this morning. Popular prices will prevail.

AT CORDEY'S THEATRE. The Platt Stevenson company gave "The Black Flag" last night to a good sized house at Cordey's theatre. The play was to have been "My Wife," but owing to the illness of one of the company the change was made. The play last night is a blood curdling melodrama of the old school that pleases a certain kind of people. The performance tonight, the management promises, will be an improvement.

AT THE ARCADE. The new bill for the week will be put on at the Arcade tonight. It includes several artists never seen in this section of the country. There will be novelties in moving pictures and the good standard of the house will be maintained.

LYRIC OPENS TOMORROW. Tonight Portland's new theatre, the Lyric, corner of Alder and Seventh, will open. The managers, Keating & Flood, claim the oldest family theatre on the Pacific coast. The bill this week for the opening night will be one of the strongest ever seen in the city, and not one of these acts has ever appeared in Portland before. The program embraces the highest caliber acting ever brought by any popular-priced house to the city: Arthur & Carlisle's refined comedy sketch team; the Travodias, jugglers, hoop rollers and head-to-head balancers; Andy Rice, monologist and Jew impersonator; the Great Wainstein, champion roller skater of the world; Raymond G. Baldwin, the baritone soloist and picture melodist, direct from New York; the DeGarnos, meters of the air; Nellie Bruce, in her contortion dance; and last, but not the least, the Great Vitasecopic pictures, Edison's latest film, the Coast Guard responding to signals of distress taken in actual life, making a great hit in New York and San Francisco.
