LAST TRIBUTE TO MRS. S. G. REED

FUNERAL SERVICES OVER THE DECEASED WIFE OF THE DECEASED HUSBAND. FUNERAL SERVICES OVER THE DECEASED WIFE OF THE DECEASED HUSBAND.

Funeral exercises over the remains of the late Mrs. S. G. Reed, one of Portland's most beloved pioneer women, who died at her temporary home in Pasadena, Cal., last Monday, were held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon from the residence of her nephew, Martin Winch, at Seventh and Main streets.

Comfortable with the principles of Mrs. Reed's life, the exercises were most simple, her clergyman for many years, Dr. T. L. Elliot, of the Danian church, pronouncing the last words, and the music being under the direction of Edgar Courson, in charge of a small choir from the church.

In the gathering were practically all the old-time Portland people who had intimately known Mrs. Reed. Each of these had visited her in her home through many years, knew personally her beautiful character and the many kind things she quietly did to help the church and the poor of Portland.

In the list of pallbearers, honorary and active, were the men most prominent in the church, social and commercial life of Portland. The honorary pallbearers were: C. A. Dolph, for many years the legal adviser of Mr. and Mrs. Reed; Judge Bellinger of the United States court; Judge George H. Williams, mayor of the city; John McCraken, George L. Storey, Theodore Wildman, Frank T. Dodge and B. G. Whitehouse. The active pallbearers were William M. Ladd, Fred Page, Dr. William Jones, C. F. Swiger, J. Frank Watson, T. Scott Brooks, L. M. Moore and Frank Robertson.

The remains of Mrs. Reed arrived from California last evening, accompanied by Mr. Winch, who with his wife was at the bedside of Mrs. Reed when she died. They were met at the train by a few friends of the family. This morning the casket was removed from an undertaking parlor to the home of Mr. Winch.

As she lay in the casket in the parlor of Mr. Winch's residence Mrs. Reed looked much as she did during her last visit to the city. She was peacefully sleeping, and it was as though she were asleep that her friends of years ago by saw her for the last time today.

Interment took place in Riverview cemetery in a grave beside that of the late husband of the deceased.

HOP CROP WILL BE ENORMOUS THIS YEAR

Jefferson Myers, president of the Lewis and Clark state fair corporation, returned last evening from a short trip up the Willamette valley. "While in Marion county I looked over the hop crop," said Mr. Myers this morning, and I was pleased to find it in splendid condition.

Marion county is, in my opinion, the finest county in Oregon. The crop this year will be much larger than that of last year, I feel safe in saying that in 10 years from now Oregon will be producing 30,000,000 pounds of hops a year, which is 60 per cent of all the hops raised in the United States.

"The people up the valley are all very enthusiastic over the 1905 fair, and are willing to do whatever they can to promote its interests. Crook county is shipping a collection of vegetables and other material to the St. Louis fair to demonstrate the value of their lands and to encourage settlers to take up government claims. There are now 2,613,000 acres of vacant government lands in that district. George Summers, secretary of Prineville, has charge of the fair exhibit.

SOCIALISTS OPPOSE NEW PRIMARY LAW

Socialists of Portland have adopted the following resolutions: "Whereas, We, the Socialist local of Portland, Ore., after thoroughly investigating the pending primary law, find it to be against the principles of the Socialist party of Oregon; and

"Whereas, We further find that said law would be to our detriment in that it affords a chance, or what we believe to be a chance, for the parties to come in and overrule the purposes of the aforesaid Socialist party; and

"Whereas, We find that said law provides for central committees to be compulsory. This is contrary to our ideas of the imperative mandate by which we now hold our leaders at bay; and

"Resolved, That all members of this local be called upon to do their utmost to bring about the defeat of the aforesaid law."

MINING CONGRESS WILL HELP FAIR

Many important questions of general interest will be considered at the congress of the American Mining Congress, which will be held in Portland August 23 to 27. The relation of mining to the general industries of the country will be discussed, and one session will be devoted to the Lewis and Clark fair. The permanent location of the national headquarters of the congress will be considered, and Denver will probably be chosen. The declassification of the nation's mining laws, and the creation by the government of an independent department of mines and mining will be argued. It being proposed that the secretary of this department shall be a member of the president's cabinet.

In all the official announcements and notices that are being sent by the thousands to every town and paper in the country, besides to many foreign countries, Portland is highly praised, and the Lewis and Clark fair is given prominent mention.

Irwin Mahon, secretary of the American Mining Congress, has issued the official call announcing the annual gathering of the congress at Portland August 23-27. The call is being sent to not only all mining and miners' associations, but to chief executives of foreign nations, governors of states and territories, boards of trade, chambers of commerce, mayors and newspapers, as already mentioned in The Journal.

SMASHUP DELAYS THE JETTY WORK

The delivery of rock at the jetty on the Columbia river has been delayed somewhat, because of an accident on the Northern Pacific railroad, at some point between Chicago and Fort Stevens. The delay has caused no damage up to this time, but has been annoying to the engineers in charge of the jetty work.

On the belated train were two locomotives consigned to the government officials from the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia. The machines are to be used in running trains for hauling rock on the jetty. They passed through Chicago April 15, but have not reached their destination.

At some point on the Northern Pacific an accident occurred, delaying the engines in transit. They were damaged to such an extent that the railroad company was compelled to send them to the shops at Tacoma for repairs. The repairs have been practically completed, and the railroad today notified the local engineer's office that they would be delivered at Gobles on Saturday.

The delay has caused no special loss or damage, but engineers express great annoyance that the work should have been interrupted in any way.

"THE ROGERS BROS. IN LONDON." If there was a person present at the Marquam Grand last night who didn't laugh until he got tired laughing, then that person must certainly have a faded sense of humor or something is radically wrong with that portion of his anatomy that usually displays appreciation for a good thing.

"The Rogers Bros. in London" is a splendid show, and last night's production was the finest, most complete and artistically organized performance seen in Portland in many years.

As legitimate funmakers, Gus and Max Rogers excel. Their jokes were modern, dialect pleasing and actions funny. One of the best features of the show was the hard work of every one engaged. They took it together. When they sang in chorus there were no discords; when they danced, everybody kept step to the music, and when they marched they did so with military precision. In other words, the team work was perfect.

It might be mentioned that the Rogers are not the whole show. Joseph Coyne made one of the most natural Piccadillys that ever wore a monocle. His style was unaffected, and his voice so real good that every time he spoke the crowd roared.

George Austin Moore sang "The Sycamore Tree" and several other selections in a very sweet voice. His work was warmly appreciated.

Well as the men did, the women of the company were not left to any extent. Miss Carrie Reynolds as Rosie was just as sweet and winsome as she could be. Her acting was natural, and her dancing graceful. Miss Reynolds' voice has a pleasing ring to it, and she won many friends. Miss Lillian Hudson made good impression, as did Miss Neva Aymar.

In chorus work and spectacular work the show is as good, if not better, as anything ever seen in the north-west. The closing performance will be given tonight.

The commencement orators and oratrices in Oregon colleges are now beginning to sit up at night and fret at the robin's earliest roundelay, to consider what to tell a waiting, anxious world.

EAST SIDERS MUST WAIT FOR BRIDGES

STRUCTURES ACROSS SULLIVAN'S GULCH MAY COST LESS THAN ADVERTISING FOR THE DISTRICT. SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO SUKE BROOKLYN SEWER.

The isolated condition of east side residents depending on the Union and Grand avenue bridges across Sullivan's gulch was considered by the executive board yesterday afternoon, but no solution to the problem was found, except to ask the council to hurry matters. E. D. Curtis started the discussion by inquiring why something was not done to provide thoroughfares for the east side north of Sullivan's gulch.

"The plans for three bridges across that gulch were turned down," one member remarked, after whispering with the assistant city engineer.

"The cost of advertising for that entire bridge district would amount to more than the bridge work," reported Auditor Devlin.

"The people on the east side won't pay for a good bridge, and want a cheap wooden structure, which I am not in favor of," remarked Mr. Goddard.

"It is no use to request the council to hurry matters," the mayor, "there is not much it can do at present."

A courteously worded plea to expedite the work will be sent to the council by the board, though just what the answer will be was not indicated by any of the members.

To hurry Brooklyn sewer. To hurry Brooklyn sewer again proved a thorn of contention, a number of Brooklyn citizens appearing before the board and requesting that the sewer promised some time ago be built. Another complaint of the Brooklyn people was that some of them had been notified to build cesspools, when it had been understood that a sewer was soon to be constructed. On the request of the visitors a special committee, consisting of Curtis, Boise and Wortman, was appointed to hurry the construction of the sewer.

Because the city is 40 days behind with its street work on the east side, and 20 to 30 days behind on the west side, Mr. Boise moved that a 10-ton steam roller be purchased, and to hasten matters Mr. Goddard amended that only city streets be given to let the contract. The motion was carried.

Sprinkling Question Discussed. "When is there going to be some street sprinkling done?" asked the mayor. "I thought my head was going to be taken off this morning by an irate citizen who was mad at the dust." The street committee stated that complete arrangements had been made with the streetcar companies for their sprinkling, and that this work was already being done. For the first time the O. W. P. company will sprinkle First street first of charge this season.

James Higley was appointed deputy poundmaster, vice John Reeves, who was discharged after a fisty encounter with Poundmaster Reed.

Driveways from First and Washington streets to the race track, and from Washington street to the Lewis and Clark fair grounds were adopted, and an order passed prohibiting heavy traffic on these streets.
