is brilliant wickers when hits were needed. Their work in the last two sames has been excellent when contrasted with their playing all season. They batted and ran bases like flends, and clearly demonstrated that they can play ball if they are in the humor.

The game was interesting from the start, and continued to be until Portland's score in the ninth. Three hits in the third by Drennan, Beck and Nadeau scored two runs. The trouble started with Iberg going out. Drennan singled and McCreedie walked. Nadeau's hit scored Drennan. Beck laid a beautiful bunt along third, and before it could be fielded McCreedie was home. During the excitement that attended an attempt at a double steal between Beck and Nat a double steal between Beck and Nacan the latter was caught off third by perfect throw by Miller. Francis flew

DIAMOND GLISTENINGS

Thursday's and Friday's games were not the first two successive victories that Portland has won this season. In the last series in Seattle, when President Ben Ely had the team, two games in succession were won. Butler pitched a 2-to-1 game, and Iberg won the Sunday of the Su day contest 7 to 6.

Murphy should have been given a sac rifice hit in the official score for that well-placed sacrifice in the ninth that resulted in winning the game. It's hard enough to get hits, and when they are earned the players should be given the acked to the doors last evening, by an nthusiastic crowd of the local followers of pugdom, and they were thoroughly satisfied with the card presented by Tommy Tracey. Each bout was a hummer and the contestants mixed in such fast style that the spectators were kept on edge throughout the evening.

The first bout on the program was between Ed Wiley and Frank Watkins. Watkins was in the better fighting condition and went to his opponent so strongly that Referee Goodman stopped the bout in the third round, giving the decision to Watkins.

Young Beckman and Kid Harrison were the next to display their ability in the fistic line. Beckman, who is a pupil of Tommy Tracey, displayed all of his teacher's ring characteristics, such as foot work, blocking, etc., in which Tracey was proficient. Beckman's eleverness won him the decision.

Peterson and young Jeffries mixed it in a lively four-round draw. The next and concluding bout of the evening was between two clever boxers, Jack Sullivan and Tommy Warren.

This bout was more of a scientific affair than the previous ones, for the principals are both good fighters for youngsters. Sullivan, who is a pupil of Tracey's, displayed the usual style which he exhibited in his former bouts before this club. Sullivan earned the advantage in the first rounds, but Warren put up such a game finish that the referee called the bout a draw at the conclusion of the fourth and last round. After the fight was over Sullivan immediately challenged Warren to another
