

DR. W. H. SAYLOR DIES THIS MORNING

HEART DISEASE CARRIES AWAY
ONE OF PORTLAND'S BEST KNOWN AND MOST SKILLFUL
PHYSICIANS—DEATH WAS NOT UNEXPECTED—LED ACTIVE LIFE.

After suffering intense pain from a severe attack of heart disease for three months Dr. William H. Saylor, one of the most widely known and honored of Portland's physicians, died this morning at 1 o'clock in the Good Samaritan hospital. His body was immediately removed to Holman's undertaking parlors. The funeral services will be held at Taylor street Methodist church at 3 p. m. tomorrow, and interment will be made in Riverside cemetery.

Unable to Recover.
Dr. Saylor's death was not unexpected. For years he had been subject to heart disease, and three months ago had an unusually severe attack. He then spent several weeks in California, but the trip did him little good, and he returned here in poor health. He was unable to attend to his large practice on account of the effects of the disease.

Five weeks ago a second severe stroke compelled Dr. Saylor to go to the Good Samaritan hospital, and there he remained until death relieved him of his sufferings.

Sketch of His Life.
Dr. Saylor was born in Wapello county, Iowa, August 17, 1843, came to Oregon with his parents in 1852, went to Olympia the next year and remained there until 1854, then moved to a farm on Rock Prairie, going next year to Port Henry during the Indian war, and settled at McMinnville in 1856, where he got his early education, and clerked in his father's store.

In 1863 he mined at Oro Fino, Salmon river, and Boise, and began his medical studies, graduating at Willamette university, after having clerked in a drug store at The Dalles and done service in the volunteers in 1864, getting his degree in 1865.

His first practice was at Forest Grove, for three years, after which he took the course at Bellevue Medical college in New York, returning and locating in Portland.

During these latter years he was surgeon at Good Samaritan hospital, physician for two years to the G. A. R., physician for the A. O. U. W., formed the state medical society, read many treatises each year, and actively followed his profession.

He was married in 1873 to Phoebe A. Wing, who died in 1875, leaving their daughter, Miss Grace, who died about a year ago. In 1883 Dr. Saylor married a second time, to Miss Carrie Caples, daughter of John F. Caples, and is survived by his wife and daughter, Miss Evelyn Saylor.

LIFE CRUSHED OUT BENEATH WHEELS

While crossing Third street at the intersection of Oak at 8:30 o'clock last night, John Burke, aged 61 years, a native of Ohio and resident of Portland for many years, was crushed so badly by a City & Suburban street car that he died at 5 o'clock this morning at the Good Samaritan hospital. Coroner J. P. Finley is today making an investigation.

Claims Agent Mallory, speaking for the company, stated this afternoon that he had called upon many witnesses and had failed to find any who could place blame at the door of the company's agents. The victim was crossing the street, according to their statements, evidently in great thought and did not notice the car, which was approaching at ordinary speed. Motorist J. C. Dixon could not stop the car and lower the fender in time to save the man's life. Burke was terribly crushed and bruised. Both legs were fractured between the knee and hip and his back and chest were crushed. At no time was there any hope for him.

Burke was a man of mystery. No one knows anything about his past, whether he has relatives or not. Anton Rich, proprietor of a lodging house at 41 North Front street, at which Burke had lived for four years, said that Burke never received letters or friends at his room, and said nothing of his past, except that he was from Ohio. He existed by working at odd jobs. He had no property of value here. He will probably be buried in the county cemetery. He was a Grand Army veteran, but not a member of any camp.

WILL REMOVE MOSS FROM BUILDINGS

VANCOUVER FIRE DEPARTMENT
TRYING TO REDUCE DANGER
FROM FIRE TO A MINIMUM—
QUIET WEDDING—YOUNG PRO-FILE GRADUATES.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Vancouver, Wash., June 8.—Louis Berg, chief of the Vancouver fire department, is taking all precautions possible to prevent the outbreak of accidental fires. In line with this intention he is notifying all the property owners and renters to clean the moss off the roofs of the buildings under their supervision or control.

This demand applies to all buildings whatsoever, even chicken coops having moss-covered roofs. In case of any owner refusing to comply with this request, compulsory steps will be taken or the city will do the work at the owner's expense.

There are a large number of buildings in Vancouver with moss accumulated on the roofs and in some instances quite thickly. During the summer time this moss becomes exceedingly dry and easily ignited by the sparks of fire from the chimney, and it is to avoid such accidents that Mr. Berg has decided to take the action above stated.

GEORGE H. WEMPLE VERY ILL AT HOSPITAL

George H. Wemple, janitor of the High school and tyler of the Portland Elks' lodge, is lying very low at the Good Samaritan hospital, where he was operated upon yesterday morning for gangrene appendicitis. Although Dr. Barrett, who is attending him, is of the opinion that Mr. Wemple will survive the operation and recover from the disease, hospital officials say that Mr. Wemple's condition is very serious.

Last Saturday evening Mr. Wemple complained of being ill. A doctor was called in and within a few minutes after he felt the first attack he was in great distress. It was decided that it would be necessary to perform an operation, and the patient was removed to the hospital. The operation was performed yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Wemple, who is one of the best-known Elks in the state, and numbers among his personal friends nearly every student at the High school during the past few years, came to Portland 16 years ago. He moved to this city with his family from Jackson, Mich. He is about 50 years of age. Besides being tyler of the Elks, Mr. Wemple belongs to local lodges of the Knights of Pythias and the Woodmen of the World. He resides at 573 Madison street.

MINERS SUE FOR HEAVY DAMAGES

F. F. Booth has filed suit in the circuit court against the Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining company for $30,000, and John F. Harris has brought suit against the same company for $5,000.

They allege that on April 5, 1904, while engaged in drilling in the mine, what is known as a "missed hole" loaded with dynamite, was struck by a drill and exploded, causing severe injuries to both plaintiffs. It is claimed the blast was left in the hole through negligence. Each claims that his eyesight is permanently injured.

OUTLOOK FOR GOOD ROADS PROMISING

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TAKING GREAT INTEREST IN MOVEMENT IN OR-
GON—COMPANY G PREPARING FOR ENCAMPMENT—FIRE IN WOOLEN MILLS.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Albany, Or., June 8.—H. E. Lounsbury, traveling freight agent for the Southern Pacific, arrived in this city from Eugene yesterday and during the afternoon left for Lebanon. While here he spoke with enthusiasm regarding the outlook for the good roads movement in Oregon, a movement in which the Southern Pacific is taking great interest and which the company is anxious to push to the front.

The Lane County Good Roads association, he said, through Prof. J. M. Hyde of the University of Oregon, is in consultation with the good roads department at Washington and has assurance that when the next appropriation is available, about July or August of this year, the department will use its best endeavors to bring a complete set of the road building machinery, used in the building of roads, to Lane county for exhibition purposes and to demonstrate the work. Good roads experts of the department will accompany the train and make demonstrations in the use of road building for the benefit of the people of that county and the state.

The county association is now at work trying to secure the presence of the good roads experts, and is in hopes of arousing sufficient enthusiasm among the farmers and others interested in better roads to attend the demonstrations and view the work as it is done by modern machinery in the hands of practical men, and the railroad company is making every effort to make the movement the greatest possible success with a view to creating a demand for good highways throughout the state and thus enriching the country and make it easily accessible at all times and all seasons of the year.

A few years ago, a good roads train passed the Northern Pacific, and the road and demonstrations were everywhere made with a view to educating the people of the northwest in the practical work of road construction, and since that time the movement has grown and in the northwest has good roads enthusiasts and is beginning the work of road building.

Preparing for Encampment.

Company G of this city is making extensive preparations for the encampment at American Lake, Wash., and the company, recruited up to its full strength with the good roads movement. The members are all enthusiastic in the work and are constantly drilling, with a view to presenting the best possible appearance in the maneuvers.

Captain Wallace of the company has appointed Second Lieut. W. Marks as range officer and a rifle range will be constructed on the Benton county side of the Willamette river near this city at once. There the men of the company practice and it is hoped that a good number will be selected to come sufficiently proficient with the army rifle to entitle them to participate in the sharpshooters' contests. The range will be for 300 yards. They will be armed with the khaki uniform at their drills. Civil officers will also be selected in the company at last night's meeting. Sergt. C. E. Probst was chosen for company clerk, Sergt. H. J. Moore for company treasurer and Private Clyde Crawford and Clifford Adams were made members of the finance committee.

Fire in Woollen Mills.

At 8 o'clock last night the fire department was called to the Albany woollen mills in the lower part of town where a huge fire broke out in the spinning machinery had caught fire while in the machinery, and the flames were threatening the factory with destruction. Chief Engineer Bergman, who lives near the mills, hastened to the scene and in a few minutes the fire was extinguished before the department reached the mills. The damage done was small.

At 2 o'clock this morning a Chinaman employed by the C. & E. railroad, who lives in a derelict boxcar near the roundhouse, was aroused by a noise emanating from two men who were making an attempt to enter the Chinaman's domicile. The Chinaman seized his revolver and fired several shots after them. The noise was a peep into the darkness after letting out an ear-splitting yell or two. Officers are now searching the woods near the roundhouse for the men.

HARNEY AND JOHN DAY PROSPEROUS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Baker City, June 8.—The John Day and Harney valleys are in a very prosperous condition just now. S. S. Litchfield, the well known surveyor and Levi Strauss & Co., with general northwest office in Baker City, has just returned from an extended tour through that country. He says that wool is doing well and the ranges are looking splendidly.

"I never saw the ranges in that country so fine as they are today. They are a perfect emerald carpet extending clear into the timber on the mountains, making perfect parks. The country everywhere was magnificent. Wool sold the other day at 17 1/2 cents, 2 cents higher than it was last year. Cattle are picking up and in 60 days will be in the pink of condition. There is a good deal of money on everywhere and the wool is being hauled to market.

"General business is waiting. It is the same there as everywhere else. Conditions are fine and before September 1 there will be a live stock market business in every line all through eastern Oregon. The fact that it is a presidential year has been discounted. I think it will be the best year in a decade. Everything is hopeful and they have a reason for it. There will be big hay crop and war will continue in the orient and keep up prices of horses, cattle and other products. When wool buyers are anxious there is something doing. The seller is king this time."

KENTUCKYANS UNRESTRICTED.

OREGON PRUNES IN PENNSYLVANIA

N. J. DAMON RETURNS FROM FOUR MONTHS' CAMPAIGN IN INTER-
EST OF WILLAMETTE VALLEY
PRUNE GROWERS—NEW OREGON
RAILROAD.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, June 8.—"I would give $1 a foot for all the pure air to be found in Pittsburgh," said Mr. N. J. Damon last evening.

Mr. Damon has been in the east for the past four months representing the Willamette Valley Prune Growers' association, conducting a campaign of education, teaching the people of that state to appreciate the finest evaporated fruit the world, Oregon prunes. Speaking of the conditions generally, Mr. Damon said:

"I guess it does one good to spend a winter in the east, and get frozen, just to thaw out again, and to carry one's lungs full of clean and smoky air. The air is so filled with coal smoke that one could wash his hands, and then by passing them over his coat make them black again."

"I found the people so ignorant concerning our prunes that they absolutely knew nothing of them, and I thought I had heard of them did not care to try them. I spent three weeks in the hardest kind of work before I made a single sale, and then had to guarantee the fruit to sell or take it back, before they would agree to give it a trial. In every case the merchants gave me second orders larger than the first. I carried plenty of samples with me and distributed them freely, and always made those who sampled them acknowledge the superiority of the Oregon prunes they had ever tasted. I was then met by the statement that the prunes could not be purchased in that market, the merchants having become used to selling California prunes, and were loath to branch out. It is simply a case of doing missionary work to create a demand for our prunes, and there is no question that it can be done, but it appears to me the work has only just begun. This personal work, of getting people to taste the fruit and then acknowledge it, is the finest they have tasted is a profitable method of advertising."

"I am sure the customers I created will be permanent, and will buy more next year than this. A few such trips to the east will create a demand for all the prunes grown in Oregon, and we get far better returns for them, than when dependent on the jobbers, and are compelled to force prices against practically no demand. This method of doing business, using the prunes of Pennsylvania, where our prunes are absolutely unknown, and in Ohio there is a splendid field, but at present no market."

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Damon spent four days at the St. Louis exposition. He inclined to explode some of the reports as to the unfinished condition of the fair, saying there were a few exhibits not completed but they were not missed, as there was already enough to occupy the attention of the visitors for four months, and then he wouldn't see it all. The buildings and exhibits cost about $50,000,000, the largest sum ever spent on such an enterprise. He brands the reports of extravagant charges as false, as with a few exceptions the cost of the fair is not so great as the reports. The hotel charges are not yet filled, and one can live as cheaply there as in any other city. The charges at the inside inn are reasonable, and at the Christian Endeavor hotel, just outside, and excellent meals are obtainable both inside and outside at a reasonable rate.

New Oregon Railroad.

Articles of incorporation were yesterday filed with the secretary of state of the Oregon & Idaho Railroad company, the object of which is to construct a line from the city of Weiser, Idaho, to erect flumes, locks and handle the rights, and for the acquiring and utilizing of water-power, either for direct use or for generating electric power.

The head office of this new western railroad is at Weiser, Idaho, and the capital stock is $500,000. The incorporators are R. W. Baxter, F. S. Stanley and H. T. Hendryx.

Law Students Examined.

The supreme court yesterday conducted an examination for admission to practice before the bar of Oregon, and there were 17 applicants. Most of whom are students of the law department of the State university. Those taking the examination were Lonna L. Parker, Andrew J. Darby, Mortimer D. Lafourette, Henry N. Windsor, Ernest Brand, Jr., George C. Hattler, George C. Hattler, M. Scoble, George J. Perkins, Edward H. Joehnk, Frank Stewart, W. R. Marsters and Ira L. Greninger of Roseburg. Albert N. Orcutt of The Dalles and Andrew G. Thompson of Aurora.

The Law Enforcement League.

The Law Enforcement League of Salem is determined that the saloons of the city are not to run on Sunday, and on account of their brazen daring in openly transacting business on that day every saloonkeeper in the city was notified by the league that if they did not close their saloons by a certain date they would today be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace E. D. Horgan, from whose court the warrants were issued at a late hour last night. Prof. W. P. Drew of Willamette university, an officer of the league, was present, and the league took such an important part in the last municipal election, swore to the complaint. The men arrested under the warrants were J. P. Rogers, Eugene Eckstein, Fred W. Ennum, W. R. Marsters, P. T. Talkington, Mack Hamilton, Back & Nadstancik, W. R. Anderson, John Cooper, Butte & Wenderoth, Nuebaum Bros. and August Scriber. The men are to be prosecuted in state cases for violation of section 1274 of the Oregon Code, which provides a penalty for selling liquor or keeping open on Sunday a place used for that purpose. The league is determined to see that the law is enforced, and will not close the saloons on Sunday under the city ordinance, which was found to be defective by the attorneys, and since that time all saloons have been running wide open.

Population of Greater Salem.

The census of Greater Salem is 13,287, notwithstanding the assertions of so many to the contrary, this fact having been established by a census board which has been at work since early in March. Enumerators were appointed at that time, and the board has been working hard and faithfully since that time to complete the returns, which were made public yesterday.

The census committee was composed of Mayor Warren, Aldermen Hughes, Gesser and Churchill, working with the committee from the Greater Salem Commercial club, composed of Messrs. Bremer, Patton and Graham, which was appointed at a special session of the city council on March 22.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. ## COON WILL NOT GIVE UP HIS NOMINATION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, June 8.—Charles B. Coon has formally replied to the chairman of the state central committee, Senator E. B. Palmer, that he will not give up his nomination as lieutenant-governor on the Republican ticket. Now those who have been fighting him and demanding his withdrawal from the circulation of scurrilous stories must come from cover and back down completely, and that will not satisfy the friends of Coon. If Palmer makes his threat good to force Coon off the earth, he will call the committee together and endeavor to take some action.

Harry Ballinger of Port Townsend brought the letter of Coon's refusal to Seattle yesterday, but Palmer is still "ill," and he was forced to depart without anything satisfactory. Another attempt to change the state involves John D. Atkinson, the nominee for attorney-general. It was represented to him that with Coon out of the way the lieutenant-governor's place would be vacant and he might be switched. Thus another eastern nominee might step in as attorney-general. The candidates are to banquet in this city Saturday night. It is not known how many will be present, but it may be that the fight against Coon will again be renewed at that time.

CONCESSIONS FROM RAILROADS EXPECTED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, June 8.—Millmen expect concessions from the railroads that will greatly improve the lumber industry, in spite of the unfavorable forecast that was made recently to the effect that nothing would be done toward meeting the request for a 40-cent rate on lumber into Missouri river territory. It is confidently believed that an answer will be returned opening the field as far as Lincoln, Neb., thus giving the millmen a large part of what they ask.

This more hopeful view of the outlook is brought by lumbermen who attended the recent meeting with railway officials held to consider the rate question. With a 40-cent rate to Aurora or Lincoln, Neb., the northwest would have two-thirds of Nebraska, and the additional tariff right to the center of the Missouri river district would not prevent the Washington and Oregon shippers from entering into competition with the white-pine trade from California. An answer is now promised within a week.

"JACKRABBIT CLUB" TO BORE FOR WATER

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Colfax, Wash., June 8.—"The Jackrabbit club," as the colony of Colfax people who have taken homesteads in Morrow county, Oregon, call themselves, held an enthusiastic meeting last night and organized an artesian well-boring company. Machinery will be bought and the company will try to secure artesian water with which to irrigate their lands. Two wells have been drilled recently, one on the claim of C. N. Hinchliff, and the other on the line between the home-
