

STATE UNIVERSITY DIPLOMA DAY OF PLEASANT MEMORY

EDNA PEARL LUCKEY. ROSA DODGE.

LULU VIRGINIA CLEAVER. LULA MAUD HOLMES. EMMA ESTELLA MELTRATE.

Commencement at the University of Oregon is of interest to more than the students and the people living in Eugene. As the state university it has many friends throughout the state. Every year visitors from far and near return to Eugene, but there is never the same crowd two years in succession. Most of the visitors are graduates or old students, some are interested in the graduates and other are interested in the state institution. The opportunity of meeting President P. L. Campbell is in itself a privilege worth hunting. President Campbell is as keen and entertaining a conversationalist and after-dinner speaker as one may meet anywhere. His supply of stories is unlimited. And better still, he enjoys your stories as much as his own. Dr. Condon is another man in the university worth meeting. He is of such well established reputation as a scientist far beyond the coast that little need be said of him. Dr. Condon is now over 40 years old.

Portland has its share of the commencement laurels this year. Dr. Homer I. Keweney, '97, was elected president of the alumni association. Dr. Keweney practices in Portland. Miss Susie Bannard, first vice president, was formerly a Portland girl, though her home is now in Grants Pass. Mr. Clifton McArthur of Portland is chairman of the athletic council. In the oratorical contest Miss Edna Pearl Luckey of Portland won the first prize. There are five Portland graduates in the class: Miss Lulu Maud Holmes, Miss Lulu Virginia Cleaver, Miss Emma Estella Meltrate, Miss Edna Pearl Luckey and Mr. Fred Buxer.

Commencement week began last Sunday with the baccalaureate service. This is always the signal for summer fashion to make its debut. Everyone who has a new frock sits through the sermon complacently. The music under the direction of Prof. L. M. Gladstone, has a word to say concerning the lamentable habit young students have of rushing away immediately after examinations. No remedy suggests itself unless examinations be placed after commencement, and this would be a sad thing for the prevailing glances of commencement. Monday afternoon the track meet for the medal given by the alumni association was pulled off and "Dutch" Thayer and "Rex" Moores tied for first place. Monday evening Miss Ethel Carolyn Palmer gave her graduation recital in piano.

Class reunions were scheduled for

Tuesday morning, but some were too sleepy to get up and others were too wideawake with electioneering to settle down, so that few materialized. Alumni meeting found a fair contingency ready for the election of officers. The president's reception was given in the afternoon to all friends and visitors. In the evening the banquet to the alumni was given in the dormitory reception room. The tables were pretty with green and lemon yellow, the college colors. The favors were dainty, the menu palatable, and the toasts short and few—there was nothing lacking to make the banquet enjoyable. C. N. McArthur presided as toastmaster. The prevailing spirit seemed to be that the alumni do not do all they should for the growth of their alma mater. President Campbell spoke of the high grade of scholarship in the university, comparing it with that of other colleges, and made mention of the four fellowships and the Rhodes scholarship secured by students this year. Governor Chamberlain was the guest of honor. In the evening, he gave an address on the opportunities and resources of Oregon.

The feature of commencement week is the oratorical contest commencement day. There were five contestants this year representing those who had qualified in grades and required work. The falling prize of $150 was awarded Miss Edna Pearl Luckey of Portland who spoke on "The Passing of Dogmatism." Miss Rosa Dodge of Ashland won the Beekman prize of $100. Her subject was "Over Steps of Broken Stones and Temples." Two graduates were given the degree of master of arts, 15 bachelor of arts, four bachelor of science, one bachelor of music, 14 bachelor of laws, and 17 doctor of medicine.

Wednesday afternoon was given over to resting, farewell calls, preparations for the alumni ball, and various other things, according to the disposition of each. The ball in the evening was a pretty affair and well attended.

A REVUE OF BRAVES.

The Suspectible Editor of Sports is Overcome.

(By The Editor of Sports.) It was my good fortune to be present at the annual hop of the University of Oregon's Alumni association, last Wednesday evening at Eugene and the splendid impression made upon me by the rare beauty of the young women who were present will remain with me as long as my sense of appreciation keeps keen and impartial. I had often heard of the prettiness and sweetness of Eugene's fair ones, but it remained for me to pay a visit to the home of the state university in order to satisfy myself by seeing, and as soon as I saw, I believed. First impressions are seldom effaced; and I feel secure in saying that time itself will have a difficult time to wear out the memories of Wednesday night. All men are susceptible to beauty and its influences, though some are not ladylike enough to admit it. If there was one man present at the affair who did not honestly feel that he was in the presence of sixty of the fairest and best looking young women who ever assembled for a college hop, that man must have soul and heart set with cobblestones. It was not the fact that the girls were well dressed that made them appear to advantage, nor was it because they wished to make a good showing on the occasion of the commencement dance, but it was the style that prevailed, the charm that pervaded, and the general finished appearance of each and every girl that made the whole affair one of enduring beauty. The gowns were not worth millions, neither did costly gems glitter on all sides. The real beauty was in their faces, their eyes, expression, spirit, and grace. Colonel Tucker, chief paymaster of the United States Army of this city, told me in confidence—and the colonel is always accepted as an authority on "beautiful women"—that in his entire experience he had never encountered so many beautiful young women. Both the colonel added that Wednesday night's collection of women would attract attention in any part of the world, at any function, state, court, or private. Besides their personal charm, the young women had brains. Both go well together, but the former will never endure so long as the latter, a brilliant woman, though not possessing the good looks of her sister, can attract by her intelligence, but of face that has no other recommendation save good looks will not make a lasting impression. Of course the vanity of man oftentimes leads him to court the girl with the pretty face, but from my brief experience, courtship excluded, I have found that as a rule the bright men want the bright women.

Eugene should be justly proud of her girls and the university also. I am glad to state that among the most charming of the women present were several Portland girls. The sustenance of this city's well known reputation as having more pretty girls to the square inch than any other city of its size in the union of states. In stating the above regarding the girls of Eugene and Portland, I do so with an unselfish desire to see credit go where it is deserved. I also, on account of my extreme youth, took advantage of Colonel Tucker's opinion to authenticate my statements.

In charge of the bridge talked to the man, asking him what he wanted there at that unseasonly hour. For an answer, they say he leaped over the railing and disappeared. Subsequent search with lanterns failed to reveal his presence or throw any light upon his fate. Corner Finley did not make any investigation, for it is not his duty to do so until it is positively known the man drowned. Perhaps the only solution of the problem, if it is ever solved, will be when the body is in the river, rises. No clue is at hand to establish the man's identity.

LOGGER'S CURIOSITY COST HIM DEARLY

While looking out of a window of a rapidly moving Vancouver street car on the line of the Portland Railway company at the corner of Union avenue and Tillamook street at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, J. L. Field, a logger from Cathlamet, Wash., was struck by a car bound in the opposite direction. He received painful injuries about the face and head, but none of a very serious nature. He was removed to the Good Samaritan hospital, where Dr. H. R. Littlefield attended him. He will be confined there for perhaps 10 days. He was unconscious for several hours, but rallied last night.

Errigon, Eragon, Iragon, Errigan, Errigan, Erigan, Irrington and Irrington are a few of the abortive attempts made by those who address letters to the Irrigon postoffice.

GOLD FINDS MAY PROVE VERY RICH

EX-SENATOR CAMERON ANTICIPATES UNCOVERING OF THE HOTTEN LODE IN JOSEPHINE COUNTY—FOOTPRINTS MADE IN SAME DISTRICT YEARS AGO.

Ex-Senator Ted Cameron, who operates a large placer mine at Walden, Josephine county, is in Portland for a few days. Mr. Cameron has been engaged in mining operations in southern Oregon for many years, and the Walden mine is only a short distance from the rich quartz strike made on Grayback mountain a few days ago. He says there are many just such deposits of rich quartz in southern Oregon, but one cannot see under the ground to ascertain where to locate them. A number of these pocket strikes have been made in Jackson and Josephine counties during the past few years, and many more are destined to be uncovered. Only a few years ago a rich pocket strike was made at Gold Hill, Jackson county, where mining had been continuously carried on for over 50 years. It was called "Gold Hill" on account of the rich strikes made there in early days. The country is what miners call pocketed, but the placers in that vicinity have continued to be operated with profit. This later discovery was a pocket formation of quartz, and some of the pieces of rock taken out appeared to be almost half gold. The pay streak held out until about $300,000 was secured. The discovery of a rich quartz pocket like that found at Grayback mountain does not imply that a rich mining camp will be one of the results of the find. These pocket formations are quickly worked out, although other discoveries may be made in the vicinity, and some lucky individual may find the mother lode. Formerly it was believed that there was nothing in going down on these pocket formations, but the opinion has been demonstrated in recent years. A few years ago Lew Browning and another young companion named Hannum, who had been successful pocket hunters, made a rich find on Grave Creek in Josephine county. They took out hundreds of dollars with a primitive arrastra, and sold their mine to a Nevada company for $50,000. The new owners went deep down on the proposition, and found a well defined lode, put in expensive machinery, and the mine is said to be producing $30,000 monthly.

POLICE PUZZLED BY BRIDGE JUMPER

Did a man who leaped from the west side of the Burnside street bridge at 3:40 o'clock yesterday morning drown, or did he somehow reach the shore? Investigation by the police yesterday failed to solve these questions, and the mystery remains as deep as when it was first reported. The harbor police

GOODYEAR SHOE REPAIR CO.'S PLACE OF BUSINESS

None of Portland's new industries has achieved such signal success as the Goodyear Shoe Repair Company, an interior view of which is shown here. Started about 15 months ago as an experiment, it soon outgrew its Alder street quarters and moved into its present spacious room at 212 Yamhill street near the Gas company's office. The enterprising proprietor, Mr. H. Brunk, is constantly adding machinery in order to turn out work with neatness and dispatch. An interesting visit is that to this place, and if one has shoes to be repaired, can watch the different machines perform their work. Visitors always welcome.

The Blue Mountain Sanatorium

FOR THE TREATMENT AND CURE OF

Consumption

Sanatorium treatment is the ideal and only successful treatment for tuberculosis. It consists principally of life in the open air, rest, forced feeding, hydrotherapy and massage. The baths at this institution are supplied from natural hot mineral springs, the waters of which exert a marked curative influence. Patients from the west side of the mountains are especially benefited by the change of climate. The dry air of eastern Oregon and 2,500 feet of altitude stimulate the appetite and improve nutrition. Reaching Out. Throwing the life line to a bigger trade. The line is the latest and best at less than Portland customary prices. The Chicago, 69 and 71 Third street, between Oak and Pine streets, is sacrificing its entire stock of summer outing suits and summer fancy vests at one-half price. The entire stock that was bought for July and August is being forced out, on account of extensive store alterations that begin early in July.
