

PLATFORM IS ADOPTED BUT NO NOMINATIONS

Republican National Convention Waits Until Tomorrow.

HIT OUT OF THE RACE

His Withdrawal Practically Makes Certain the Nomination of Senator Fairbanks as Vice-President.

Chicago, June 22.—The second day of the Republican national convention opened bright and cool, continuing the same ideal weather conditions as existed since the first hours of the gathering.

Before the convention assembled it was rumored that Hitt's name would not be presented for the vice-presidential nomination, this story coming from Senators Cullom and Hoop.

Telegrams were passed between the leaders of the Illinois delegation and Washington and Hitt said he left himself entirely in the hands of his friends.

The galleries filled slowly. A large oil painting of Roosevelt smiled on the convention from the platform.

Senator Allison was the first prominent arrival to receive recognition, but generally there were few demonstrations as the big men who control the party politics of the several states marched in and sought their seats.

When "next Vice-President" Fairbanks, as he was already being called by many delegates, came in at one of the side entrances shortly after noon, the entire band and all delegates assembled arose as one man cheering lustily.

The entrance of the Alaskan delegation at 12:12 o'clock, with their totent poles crowned with big white eagles, attracted great attention.

A band up in the gallery played various selections and when "America" was started the crowd cheered and everybody in the hall arose and remained standing until the piece was concluded.

At 12:23, in a fanfare of shouting, singing and clatter of conversation, Elihu B. Root rapped sharply and repeatedly for order.

To the front of the platform, in his somber black robes, came the Reverend Father Cox, a figure well known in Chicago. In a resonant musical voice he offered an eloquent prayer while the convention arose en masse and the delegates stood with bowed heads.

Immediately after the prayer the convention again broke into a buzz of conversation which lasted until McCann, chairman of the credentials committee, had presented his report and a motion for its adoption had been offered.

Down through the aisles came the committee to escort Cannon, the picture.

Chicago, June 22.—Although the general expectation had been that the Republican national convention would close its labors today, as everything had been practically arranged for that program, the Chicago representatives succeeded in creating such a sentiment for a hold over that another day will be used.

The day's proceedings moved with clock-like regularity, but consisted in the main of various committee reports and a speech by "Uncle Joe" Cannon.

A great portion of the work had already been accomplished when the day's session opened, even to the adoption of a platform.

Developments have made it certain that the ticket will consist of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

This it is expected will be followed by other withdrawals, leaving Fairbanks a clear field.

At 3:51 o'clock this afternoon the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Dr. Jacques Loeb, who is on the track of the secret of life and who announces he can reverse the natural growth of animals and make the head grow where the feet ought to be, and vice versa.

Chicago, June 22.—The platform which was unanimously adopted at 3:40 o'clock when its reading was finished by Henry Cabot Lodge, follows:

Fifty years ago the Republican party came into existence and was dedicated, among other purposes, to the great task of arresting the extension of human slavery.

We firmly established the gold standard, then menaced by destruction. Confidence returned to business and with confidence came an unexampled prosperity.

We refuse to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba. We fought to a quick victory the war with Spain. We set Cuba free. We governed the island for three years, then gave it to the Cuban people with order restored, with ample revenues, with education and public health established, free from debt and connected with the United States by wise provisions.

efficiency, passed laws for the improvement and support of the militia and pushed forward the building of our navy.

Our administration of the great departments of the government has been honest and efficient, and wherever wrong-doing has been discovered the Republican administration has not hesitated to probe the evil and to bring the offenders to justice.

We promise to continue those policies and declare our adherence to the following principles: Protection, which guards and develops our industries, is the cardinal policy of the Republican party.
