

The Great Store that Befriends the Working Man

THE HUB

COR. 3RD & BURNSIDE STS.

Cost of Garments Brushed Aside

THE COLORADO CLOTHING COMPANY FORCED TO PART WITH ITS STOCK OR GO TO THE WALL

The Hub Bought $147,000 Worth of Clothing, Shoes and Men's Furnishings at $28,000, or Less Than 19c on the $1.00

Cripple Creek and Victor, Colorado, seats of the destructive war upon the miners, lost all its first class men's apparel when our train moved out.

Positively Appalling Bargains While This Sale Lasts—Suit of Clothes for Less Than $4

$3.95 takes the pick of a really substantial suit of clothes, built for miners' wear, capable of enduring great hardship, just the thing for the farm, woods or mill, wool and worsted goods, double breasted sacks and frocks, 600 suits to select from, and while they last these $7.50 and $8.50 garments will be sold at $3.95. This is less than it cost to sew the cloth together after the cutter had done his work.

An $11.50 Suit for $5.95

This is an all wool fabric, hand tailored, sewed with best silk thread, cut in latest style of sack and frock, and worth every cent of the $10 and $11.50 at which the garments sold for at Cripple Creek and Denver. No other clothing house in the city can touch these suits at less than double the price we ask for them.

$7.45 for a $17.50 All Wool Suit

$7.45 gives the buyer pick and choice of all those handsome man-tailored $12, $15 and $17.50 all wool suits in light, medium and heavy weight. They are dressy as they can be, worth every penny they sold for in Colorado, and can not be duplicated anywhere in Portland at double the prices we ask for them.

$9.95 for Elegant $20 to $30 Garments

$9.95 takes pick and choice of the finest tailor-made suits of imported cloths in black clay worsted, unfinished worsted, serges, vicunas, tweed and Oxford mixtures. In fact, every known weave of cloth and cut of garment, the most fastidious votaries of fashion ever knew. No man was ever so rich that he need be ashamed to wear these clothes. We would like to see them upon the backs of some of Portland's most stylish young men. If they told where they procured them and the price they paid, no further advertisement would be necessary to speedily clean up this lot.

Fine Top Coats

$6.95—think of it, only $6.95—for any one of the Colorado Clothing company's $12.50 and $15 summer top coats in 15 different styles. It would seem like almost any man could afford such a comfort. They will never be sold again at this price.

$8.95 for a Medium Weight Overcoat Worth $25

There is every style in this lot. There are $500 to pick from and they were good values at $20 to $25. We sell them at $8.95 because we bought them at less than 19 cents of their worth—of their invoice price.

$10 for Heavy Winter Overcoats Worth $50

Men, who are a little forehanded have now an opportunity to provide against the storms of next winter at so small a cost as to make the expense almost imperceptible. They are of Fries, Beaver, Chinchilla, Meltons and Kersey, and there is style and fashion in every coat, they are certainly worth five times the price we are asking for them. No better coats will ever be sold in Portland.

There's rejoicing in the country, there's happiness in town,
At the way the price of clothing has been slain,
And the populace is stinging: "He's a fellow of renown,
And we'll drink a double health to Mr. Strain."

Bargains in Hats

There are Stetson and Longley Hats in this lot, and we ask the reader to note these prices. Any man will tell you that the Stetson factory sells its hats on condition that the dealer shall not sell them at less than $5 each. But we didn't buy these hats from the factory. We bought them from the Colorado Clothing company at less than 19 cents on the $1, hence we can sell them at whatever price we please. They will go, therefore, at $2 each.
