From the mail orders received by Mr. Strain from all parts of the state, it is evident that persons outside of Port-land know a good thing when they read about it. His recent large purchases of ng at ridiculously low prices, the facilities of shipment by mail and express to all parts of the country, enthat gentleman to sell his garments to the man, youth or bay at a distance, under just as favorable conditions as if the purchaser called at either of his stores in person. Suit was brought against the Bankers' Union of the World in the circuit court yesterday by Ida C. Robb to recover $728.50, which amount is alleged to be due as life insurance on her son, when monthly payments from the date of his death to the unexpired term of life expectancy are deducted. Proof of death of the son, who held a policy in the union, payable to his father, it is claimed, has been given and accepted by the supreme union, but a demand for the insurance has not been honored.

After a conference with the executors of the P. F. The executors of the estate agreed to this arrangement and Judge Webster signed the orders.

AT THE THEATRES | PREACHER'S NIGHT

B. M. SOTHERN COMING.

Sothern's presentation of "The Proud Prince," the new miracle play by Justin Huntly McCarthy, author of "If I Were King," which will be seen at the Mar-quam Grand theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday nights, June 28 and 29, is a dramatic event of importance. "The Prond Prince" is admitted to possess all the poetic, idyillo and romantic features that made "If I Were King" so distinguished an addition to stage literature, but in addition possesses a religious, supernatural and mystic theme. While a love story pure and simple, it is called a miracle play because it pictures the legend of Robert, king of Sicily, of whom it is told in Sicilian folk lore that of his evil deeds he was trans-OBUSO formed from a king into his court moticy. Longfellow immortalized this legend and Leigh Hunt wrote R In prose. A Scriptural quotation may be taken as inspiration for the story of the power "put down the mighty of Heaven to from their seats and exalt the meek and humble."

Mr. Sothern s role is an extraordinary one, and in it he has given a new dramatic creation to the stage. First he is seen as the proud, brilliant king and then as a grotesque court fool. His impersonation of this dual role is said by dramatic students to be the most remarkable portrayal seen in years on the stage. The play's action shows the steady ennoblement of the king through the deeds of chivalry through which he finally wins redemption from Heaven of his kingly place and state.

Over 150 people are employed. Musieffects play an important adjunct, 52/ numbers having been composed for the piece, requiring a special augmented orchestra. / There are 27 speaking roles, and Mr. Sothern has in his support, as always, a company of unusual excellence. The advance sale of seats will open next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. "A JAPANLSE COURTSELP."

"A Japanese Courtship" is the most pretentious musical extravaganza ever resented in Portland at popular prices. Producer Zinn came direct from New York with Broadway ideas and his chorus and ensemble arrangements are "Navajo" and its accompanying of Indian maidens is the song hit of the season. The entire show is running smoothly and it is one continuous laugh

IN CITY JAIL REV. W. T. ELLIS TELLS NOW HE CAME TO BE ARRESTED FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMALS AND

WHAT HAPPHEED TO HIM AFTER HE WAS LEFT IN HIS CELL. Rev. W. T. Ellis, who was arrested

Monday afternoon, on the charge of cruelty to animals, believes that Paul prison and Moses battling with the children of Israel have no lessons for him, since he has experienced a day and a night in the city jail and his kindness has been misconstrued and made to appear cruelty.

Mr. Ellis was arrested at the Union depot on a charge of cruelty to animals. He is accused of driving a team that is in bad condition. His trial will take "Those horses cost me $16 and wouldn't take $150 for them," said Mr. Ellis. "I don't suppose, they are much to look at just now. You see, one of them I paid $3 for and I found him on a pile of shavings; it took three of us to boost him onto his feet and when he was on 'em he couldn't stay there but fell down three times before we got him started. I know that horse still looks rather bad, but he can pull a ton and a half out of a sand pit by himself now, and I guess he ain't been misused very much since I got him. The other horse was about dead too, and my friends told me I was a fool to take him at any price, but he is coming out all right. I blistered him for spavin, and doctored up his sore shoulder and rubbed liniment on his soft spots and he can work with any of them now. When that litthe officer took me in, he said the pad was to cover up the sore on the horse's shoulder. Why bless his ignorant little soul, I put a pad from the horse's jaw bone back to the crupper to ease the strain on the sore shoulder. It was a frightful looking sore when I got the horse, but it was healing nicely and it is about well now." "Well, we had a fine time singing hymns. One of the Finns had a bass voice that would still a tempest, and I held a little service right there till morning. One of the officers tried to shut us up, but he didn't succeed to any marked extent.

"When morning came I had them phone to my wife and told her to send down my Prince Albert suit and she did, but the chief held it back and I had to go to court dressed like a rag bag and was herded with the worst drunks in the place. They would have let me out sooner when they found I could get ball, but I wanted to stay and find out how they fed the prisoners.
