

A PROMINENT OPTICIAN HAS SELECTED PORTLAND

D. Chambers, Late of Chicago, After a Careful Inspection of the Pacific Coast City Decided to Cast His Lot With Portland.

He Equips a First Class Retail and Wholesale Manufacturing Optical Parlor, Where Every Late Device Necessary for Perfect Examination and Fitting of the Eye Is Installed.

Quite gladly did Portland receive D. Chambers, late of Chicago, when a few weeks ago he located at 129 Seventh street, where he has fitted up one of the most complete optical parlors, wholesale and retail, on the Pacific coast.

A Model of Neatness.

The building occupied by Mr. Chambers has been fitted after his carefully-laid plans, as shown by the accompanying cuts, is a model of neatness and at the same time complete to every detail from the manufacturing department to the salesroom and the beautiful eye-testing parlors. No money was Chambers, Inskeep & Co. of Chicago, will have charge of this department, and it will be in good hands.

Has Had Years of Experience.

Mr. Chambers has had years of experience in refracting and fitting the most complicated cases, and can accomplish the correction of one's vision quickly, knowing the effect upon the eye of every lens used. His instruments used are of the latest models—in fact, his instrument for measuring the curvature of the cornea for the correction of astigmatism, is one invented and patented by Chambers, Inskeep & Co. of Chicago, and is sold all over the world. This instrument was awarded the medal, the highest and only award at pared in equipping a place of business second to none on the Pacific coast, while the stock he carries is the largest this side of Chicago.

He Selects Portland.

Mr. Chambers selected Portland as a place for his future home and place to conduct a business, after careful consideration and investigation of all the coast cities, finding Portland more to his liking for a future place of business and to reside in. He expresses himself as having perfect confidence in the future outlook for business in Portland, and that it was much brighter than any of the cities he looked over.

Meet Him in to Like Him.

To meet Mr. Chambers in a business way is to like him; the more you see of him the more favorably are you impressed, and the confidence between yourself and him is at once established. We produce here a number of views of Mr. Chambers' establishment, which will give you a better idea and knowledge of his place of business than that which could be described by pen, but better still call and see for yourself.

Has Experienced Workmen.

Mr. Gerue, a trained workman and lens grinder, who has had years of experience and learned his business with Mr. Chambers when of the firm of the Paris exposition in 1900 and the highest award at the Pan-American exposition in 1901.

Expert Instrument.

For examining the eyes for diseased conditions which cannot be corrected with lenses he uses a Luminous Ophthalmoscope. With this instrument he is enabled to expose the inner portion of the eye, and examine the optic disc and nerve. This wonderful little instrument has concealed in it a small electric lamp, the light from which passes through a powerful lens to a small mirror, and from it is reflected into the eye, and enables the most perfect examination that can be made by man. This examination is accomplished without the least inconvenience or pain to the eye when under observation.

Leased Store Five Years.

Mr. Chambers leased his store room for five years, and fitted same with costly furniture and fixtures and came to Portland to stay, and is bitterly opposed to the fakes methods often adopted by opticians, so-called. Grinding his own lenses, he is enabled to furnish persons with their glasses quickly. Parties from out of town can have their eyes tested, glasses ground and fitted the same day, which will prove a great convenience to persons visiting the city.

Perfect Satisfaction Guaranteed.

Mr. Chambers guarantees perfect satisfaction in every case, and makes no charge for examinations or consultations unless glasses are as ordered.

Free Examination.

If your eyes are troubling you he will be pleased to have you call and will make a free examination, and will tell you frankly if glasses are needed, and if they are needed you will be dealt with upon a satisfactory basis that will insure your friendship and future business for years to come.

D. Chambers.

A few words regarding Mr. Chambers personally will not be amiss with this article and we know of nothing better than to reproduce the following article from the "Jeweler's Review," a trade paper published in New York: "David Chambers, senior member of the wholesale optical house of Chambers, Inskeep & Co., is recognized as a pioneer optician of the west. He was born in McConnellsville, in the Buckeye state (Ohio) 1855, but it was only a few years before his father moved to Ottumwa, Ia., where David Chambers spent his youth and got his education. Besides taking the common school and business college courses, he made a special study of pharmacy, and in 1870 started out in that business. Eight years later the sign, 'D. Chambers & Co.' marked the location of a prosperous retail drug store. The optical business, especially in the west, was in its infancy, and about the year 1880 Mr. Chambers began to make a particular study of it, and soon made it a branch of his growing drug business. Gradually, besides doing a retail trade, the house undertook a wholesale business in the line of optical goods, and after a few years the drug business was sold out and the Ottumwa Optical company, a wholesale and retail house, continued the trade in optical goods only. In Mr. Chambers' present office, Chicago, hang pictures of the two Ottumwa stores, that of D. Chambers & Co. and that of the Ottumwa Optical company, and on the window-plate of the latter can be seen the well-known eye that still serves as the sign of the house.

"After several years it became evident that Ottumwa did not present the best advantages as a distributing point for a wholesale house, and in 1883 the whole establishment was moved to Chicago, and shortly afterward the name was changed to Chambers, Inskeep & Co. From its first location at the corner of Wabash avenue and Van Buren street the firm was obliged to move on account of water damage resulting from a neighboring fire, and the next quarters were at 229 State street. Thence, a year later, the business home was moved to 146 State street, where it remained until November, 1889. The present quarters of Chambers, Inskeep & Co., at 88 and 90 Wabash avenue, could not well be improved upon. They are desirable from every standpoint. The business offices are pleasant and light, the show and stock room is commodious, and the shop has every feature that makes for contented workmen and good work.

"Mr. Chambers was married in 1880 to Miss Annie Sunderland, daughter of Rev. James Sunderland, then of Ottumwa, Ia., now of Oakland, Cal. They have five children, two daughters and three sons, and the family home is in Woodlawn, on the south side of the city. Mr. Chambers is a man of untiring courtesy, of thorough knowledge of his subject born of experience and study, and of careful business methods. A well-known salesman connected with another optical house said of Chambers, Inskeep & Co.: 'Their customers are always stock, and this is because their goods are to be relied upon and because they make no mistakes and take no liberties with their customers. Consequently, once their customer, always their customer."

In conclusion, will state that Mr. Chambers' business is exclusively optical, and he has equipped his establishment with the proper machinery and skilled workmen, and any work entrusted to him will be given prompt attention, as well as the very best work turned out and the best material used. He will be pleased to see all who are interested in his line of business and will accord all visitors a hearty welcome. Correspondence solicited.

RECORD PRICE FOR HOOD RIVER LAND

Probably the highest price ever paid for orchard land in this state was the consideration for which B. N. Sprout, of Hood River, transferred his apple orchard to the Hood River Fruit company, which at the same time acquired a number of adjacent tracts. There were 10 acres in the piece of land which was sold for the sum of $10,500.

The price paid for the 10-acre tract is equivalent to the sum of $1,050 per acre. It is said that the price is the largest that has ever been paid for orchard lands in the state unless situated within close proximity to the city. The land is used for the purpose of raising apples and the orchard is said to be one of the most productive in the state.

The Hood River Fruit company was recently organized by Oscar Vanderbill and has acquired 154 acres of the most valuable of the Hood River lands. Vanderbill recently became well known throughout the state by means of a law suit which was instituted against him by Almee Austin, "The Haman Fly," who formerly scaled the ceiling of a local vaudeville theater head downwards.

In her complaint she alleged that while in Los Angeles Vanderbill, who was also in the show business at the time, loaned her $500 and accepted a number of her diamonds to keep until the amount was paid. When she finally sent the amount, it is charged, he refused to surrender the gems and still keeps them although she is ready and willing to pay him the money. The case is still pending in the local courts.
