A WORLD TOUR AT SMALL COST

A TRIP TO THE ST. LOUIS FAIR EQUAL TO TWO YEARS OF TRAVEL IN STRANGE LANDS—APARTY REVEALED BY FAILURE TO COMPREHEND THEM.

(Special Correspondence of The Journal.)

Roseburg, Or., June 30.—To one who has visited the St. Louis fair, not only is it indeed the depository tone in which one is asked the question, "Well, is it so big after all?" We've been hearing and reading of the Louisiana Purchase exposition for four years and more; we have heard so much of its stupendous proportions that we have all come to feel that probably it has been somewhat overrated. But to realize what it really is, one must see it, for though it is confirmed in the mouth of many witnesses, while one may believe, one cannot comprehend this gigantic show save one beholds it with his own eyes.

of the fair grounds are gathered all the peoples of the globe, and here they are living just as they live at home, robed in their strange garb, speaking in their unintelligible jargon, and eating their queer unpalatable, and sometimes inedible food; here are gathered the relics of the world, antique thousands of years old, pathetic monuments of prehistoric peoples; here are the fine arts, products of the world's greatest talent; the applied arts showing the world's greatest skill and genius in every line; here indeed is the best of all the world produces, the finest and most perfect of all that man makes. And one must pause, feeling one's incompetence to convey to another any adequate idea of the wonders of this enchanted realm. Truly a month at this international exposition is a liberal education.

ten without money or without price to the world's best music, for the world's best bands are there for one to hear. In a previous letter the matter of prices was dealt with and the amount of money one must spend to see the fair, and after a three weeks stay there, the statement may be reiterated that one person can manage to live nicely for $2.75 to $4 a day, exclusive of admissions to the grounds. Pike attractions and souvenirs. Fifty cents is the price of admission to the grounds. The Pike attractions vary from 25 cents to $1, and one can spend much or little in the way of souvenirs. Of course many people who go to the fair, either through indifference or poor management, find their expenses enormous, but if one makes sufficient effort to find them, there are numerous places which are all one could ask for as to comfort and fairly good style, and where the amount given will be ample for one to hear. In this connection it may be well to venture the hope that in the coming Lewis and Clark fair, Portland's flats and rooming houses will not be permitted to go into the hands of any sort of a combine or syndicate. St. Louis is at present suffering terribly from such a concern. In the early spring a combination was effected, which took in practically all the desirable flats and rooming houses of the city, and rents were raised to unheard of prices. Flats which had brought $27.50 per month were raised to $50 the first jump and without further ado to $150. One naturally wonders where the syndicate imagined the plain citizen of St. Louis would be able to make the money to meet such a demand, and inasmuch as this question has not been satisfactorily answered as yet, St. Louis is full of empty houses. People left comfortable flats which they had occupied for years to take small, undesirable places far in the suburbs, many men absolutely abandoned their families out of town, or stored their household goods and sent their families to board the summer out in small places. Many were not fortunate enough to be able to meet the situation in any of these various ways and being compelled to retain their houses, they have cramped themselves into the smallest possible space and put out a card "Rooms for Rent," that they may be able in this way to meet the rent bill. Let The Journal, always advocate of the greatest good to the greatest number, be relentless in its fight against such a condition being repeated at our own Lewis and Clark fair next year.

SAILORS IN PARADE ON FOURTH OF JULY

NATIONAL GUARD, POSTMEN AND LABOR ORGANIZATIONS ALSO WILL BE IN LINE—SPECIAL EXHIBITS AT REVIEWING STAND ON PARK STREET.

It has been decided that the Fourth of July demonstrations this year shall be under the auspices of the carnival committee. The day is to open with a water-front salute from battery A, O. N. G. On the carnival grounds at 10 o'clock the parade will form, although the line of march has not yet been selected. Those taking part in the parade are members of the national guard, the crews of the war vessels now in port, the G. A. R., labor organizations, letter carriers, civic and social authorities. A reviewing stand will be placed on Park street, near Jefferson. Rev. W. S. Gilbert, of Calvary Presbyterian church, will deliver a 15-minute oration. Rev. Father Daley will invoke the divine blessing. Miss Retha Fowler, a maid to the queen of the carnival, will sing "The Star Spangled Banner." Further plans are in the hands of J. L. Mitchell, room 615 Marquee building. Today was fraternal day at the carnival and the attendance showed a marked increase over previous days. A large number of Woodmen from other towns were present and this evening various lodges of the city will attend the performances. German day yesterday was a grand success. The weather drew large crowds both afternoon and evening and everyone appeared to be satisfied with the offerings. Most of the visitors took up their headquarters at the Quella gardens. Some of the best acts that have been given in the Royal Roman Circus Maximus have been transferred to the center field and one of the best shows of its kind that has ever been given in this city may now be seen for the single admission fee. One of the big free attractions is the electrical fountain. This is in play after 10:30 each evening, and is one of the prettiest things that can be seen on the grounds. Many visitors have gone away before the fountain was in play and so have missed one of the best attractions. "Dare-Devil" Edwards, the plucky tricycle rider, is also included in the list of 10 cent attractions. Edwards rode again last evening and the trip is one of the most successful he has yet made. He did not ride this afternoon, but will ride this evening at 8:30 o'clock. The Austin sisters, in their sensational act on the electrical wheel, will appear in the big field, together with 20 acrobats in tumbling acts and other clever feats. The four flying Banavards, who are well known in the amusement world, do clever work in forward and backward somersaults and aerial twisting acts. Phil D. Green has not yet appeared in his great aerial act, in which he ascends a spiral tower by means of a revolving globe and descends in a shower of fireworks. Green has been here for some time, but his apparatus, which was shipped from Cincinnati, has not yet arrived. It will probably be in place by this evening or tomorrow. This is one of the 10 cent attractions. Tomorrow has been set apart by the committee as labor day, and a large attendance of members of labor organizations and their families is expected. The management will endeavor to put on one of the best performances yet seen. The battle of confetti continues and confetti vendors are reaping a harvest.

PREMATURE FOURTH PROVES EXPENSIVE

BIG GAIN IN LOCAL POSTAL RECEIPTS

Fire that for a time threatened to destroy the residence of Mrs. Mary Milton, 279 Jefferson street, was caused last night at 8 o'clock by the explosion of fireworks in front of the house by boys. All of the lace curtains in the parlor were burned, and had it not been for the prompt arrival of Hose No. 3 and the quick work of the firemen, further damage would have resulted. A crowd of boys were playing in front of the residence, and were exploding fireworks. One of the crackers flew in through a large front window, which was open, and set fire to the lace curtains. Instantly the fire shot up, and the parlor was enveloped in flames. Those in the room hurried out and the firemen were called. They arrived promptly and with but little effort succeeded in quenching the fire. A few minutes more, however, would have given flames time to get a good start, and much damage would probably have resulted. This is the first instance reported of damage to property by fireworks in Portland this year. The receipts of the local postoffice for the month ending June 30 show an increase of 14 3/10 per cent over the receipts for the corresponding month of last year. The increase is attributed to the rapid growth of the city in that time, and the consequent growth of business in the local postoffice. The monthly report, which was completed this morning by Cashier Strauss, was immediately forwarded to department headquarters at Washington. It shows that the total receipts from the sale of stamps, books of stamps, postal cards, stamp envelopes and newspaper wrappers during the month amounted to $29,499.37. The total receipts from other sources for the month were $40.72, making an aggregate of $29,540.09 for the month. The total for the same month in 1932 was $26,863.73. The increase accordingly amounted to $2,676.36, which is equivalent to 14 3/10 per cent. A Benton county girl of six years, the house burning while her parents were at a neighbor's, ran in at some risk and carried a little brother out to safety.

TEACHERS ADJOURN THEIR CONVENTION

(Journal Special Service.) St. Louis, Mo., July 1.—Today wound up the business of the most successful convention ever held by the National Educational Association. The attendance undoubtedly establishes a new record for the association's convention. The fact that many of the visitors to the convention made their headquarters at the various state buildings on the exposition grounds makes it impossible to give the exact figures regarding the total number of visitors, but the register at the general headquarters of the convention shows that more than 10,000 teachers attended the general sessions of the convention. In the sectional conferences and other meetings that were held in conjunction with the big gathering. Fire Sale. $10,000 stock of clothing, men's and ladies' shoes, hats and gents' furnishings, slightly damaged by smoke and water, will be sacrificed at less than cost at 253 First street, near Main.
