

KNIGHTS OF THE MACCABEES WIN PRIZE FOR FLOAT AND WILL CELEBRATE THEIR VICTORY

MOUNT HOOD, TENT NO. 17, MACCABEES FLOAT.

In honor of having won the capital prize of $100 for the best float in the Fourth of July parade, the members of Mt. Hood tent, K. O. T. M., are rejoicing this week; and at their hall, Seventeenth and Marshall streets, next Thursday evening, they will celebrate the victory with a social "high jinks." At that time the prize money will be expended for ice cream, cake and other delicacies, and State Commander Sherwood will preside at the installation of the new officers of the tent.

The float which captured the grand prize was a reproduction of the head temple of the order at Port Huron, Mich., with the local tent in front and a widow and her two orphans in the rear with an emissary from the organization handing her a check for the insurance that had been carried on the life of her husband. General attention and admiration along the line of march was won by the float.

To George G. Fell, lieutenant-commander of the tent, and a committee consisting of N. Munger, Leonard Becker, A. P. Becker and Ed Carson, is due the credit for building the float. Mr. Fell being the designer and the others aiding in carrying out the design.

Than Mr. Fell there is no more energetic member of the order in the northwest. From 1900 to 1902 he was deputy organizer of the Modern Woodmen of America, during which time he organized several large camps in southern Oregon, his banner camp being at Acma, Or., which started with a membership of 103.

In the summer of 1903, while working as deputy for the Eugene camp, M. W. A., on the strength of a float that he had built while at Acma, he was sent from Eugene to Albany to represent the camp of Eugene with a float at the Albany carnival, which took place in September, 1903. This float took first prize at the carnival.

This carnival also showed the worthiness of Mr. Fell to be a member of the order, he having captured the following individual prizes: First prize, chopping contest; second prize, sawing contest; second prize, log-rolling contest, and second prize, with Miss Lilly Branard, in the oak-walk contest.

Entering Albany college in the fall of 1901, Mr. Fell further distinguished himself by playing right guard with the Albany football team, which won the inter-collegiate championship.

In 1902 Mr. Fell moved to Portland and at once became an active member of Mt. Hood tent, No. 17, K. O. T. M., was elected captain of the degree team, which position he still holds, and at the June election was chosen lieutenant-commander of the tent.

GEORGE G. FELL.

PAUL JONES' GUNS WIN NAVY TROPHY

IN ANNUAL TARGET PRACTICE AT PANAMA TORPEDO DESTROYER'S CREW CARRY OFF HONORS IN HER CLASS—HER SIX-POUNDERS BEAT EVERYTHING.

The Paul Jones, lying at anchor between the Burnside and steel bridges, in the Willamette river, bears the distinction of having won first prize in the annual target practice held this year at Panama. It is also interesting to note that the Paul Jones is the first torpedo boat destroyer that ever came to this port, and holding as she does her proud target record, her visit here is unique, and one that will long be remembered by the people of Portland on account of her great fighting crew and her admirable and efficient officers.

Every ship in the United States navy has held target practice this year. The scheme is in keeping with the navy department's endeavor to have our gunners rank highest in the world in point of accuracy and rapidity of fire, as well as in other ways, and the splendid showing made this year by the ships has evoked high praise from the officials at Washington.

This year the Pacific squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Glass, was ordered to Panama during the recent revolution between Panama and Colombia. In the fleet were the New York, Bennington, Patrol, Preble, Concord, Wyoming, Marblehead and Paul Jones. The fleet was anchored in Chama bay, and the shooting was done during the months of February and March. The target was erected on a float and its size was 82 1/2 feet. The range was fixed and the shots were fired from a distance of 900 to 1,000 yards, with the secondary battery.

While no actual comparison can be made between the scores made this year and those of former years, on account of the conditions not being such as to insure accurate scores, sufficient is known to warrant the assurance that this year's scores were the best ever made by the navy. The range this year was a measured one, and allowed the department the opportunity to calculate correctly the actual scoring.

The interest manifested by the officials at Washington regarding the target practice was appropriately expressed by Admiral Taylor, chief of the bureau of navigation, in a letter to the officers of the Paul Jones, complimenting them upon the splendid showing made.

To Captain Davison considerable credit is due—first, and principally for the sight that he cleverly devised, and which is of inestimable service in giving the gunners the proper aim; and secondly, for the careful and painstaking manner in which he instructs the men in his command. This sight device was made on board the Paul Jones by her machinists, under Captain Davison's instructions, and experts have pronounced it most useful. The other officers on the Paul Jones are Ensigns E. H. Dodd and W. E. Conn. All three officers are graduates of the naval academy at Annapolis, and held high rank in their classes.

In the giving of trophies there was one offered in the battleship class, one in the gunboat class and one in the torpedo boat destroyer class. The Oregon carried off the honor in the first, the Dolphin in the second, the Paul Jones in her class. The Paul Jones, besides winning all the honors in her own class, won the trophy for the six-pound guns, beating all the other ships in the navy of every other class. An evidence of the improvement made by the Paul Jones gunners is shown in the percentage made in the preliminary trials held two months before the actual practice. In the former test 2.15 hits per minute were made, while 10.53 hits per minute were made in the final, a creditable increase in proficiency.

The average made by her three best six-pounder guns was as follows:

No.	Shots per min.	Hits per min.
1	20.75	12.88
2	20.85	12.25
3	25.97	12.21
Ave. of ship	21.75	10.83

The best 3-inch gun made 4.24 hits per minute, and the average was 4.73 hits per minute.

From the forward 3-inch gun, chief gunner's mate, J. Buckley, made 7 hits out of 7 shots in 22 seconds, gaining the record for the 3-inch guns.

A. C. Clarington, apprentice second class, made 15 hits out of 19 shots in 23 seconds, with a six-pounder.

A. A. Peterson, seaman, made 16 hits out of 24 shots in one minute, with a six-pounder.

H. C. Hunnicut, apprentice second class, made 14 hits out of 23 shots, in 49 seconds, with a six-pounder.

Out of 241 shots, 118 hit the target. Three shells burst before reaching the target. The actual firing time for this work was 13 minutes and 13.55 seconds.

For the torpedo destroyer class the Paul Jones wins the navy trophy. For the best six-pounder she also receives the first, second and third navy prizes. The six-pounder that won the first prize was loaded by C. A. Hickman, and it was through his ability to load quickly that made it possible for the gun to score 30 per minute.

Besides the navy trophies, the department distributes cash prizes to the men who participated in the winning.

The six-pounder's crew were Fred Showers, A. C. Clarington, C. A. Hickman and H. Virgin; the 3-inch crew, J. P. Buckley, J. N. Linsey and W. E. West.
