

LAHANIA HAS A STORMY VOYAGE

WAKES 35 DAYS TO MAKE TRIP FROM SAN DIEGO AND FINDS SQUALLS, CALMS AND TEMPESTS ALONG THE WAY—IS DRIVEN 150 MILES OFF OF HER COURSE.

After a stormy voyage of 35 days up the coast from San Diego, the American bark Lahania, Captain Carlson, reached port yesterday evening. She came in ballast, which is being discharged at the Hancock dock.

On the passage she encountered gales, head winds and calms. One day the log shows that the vessel covered a distance of 300 miles, which is equivalent to about 12 knots an hour better than the average steamship time.

Arriving within two miles of the lighthouse at the mouth of the Columbia river Saturday morning the barkentine was struck by the northeast gale which was sweeping at a rate of 40 miles an hour.

When the wind died down they succeeded in beating their way back. The gale that carried them northward is the one that sent the schooner Zampa ashore at Leadbetter point.

After discharging her ballast the Lahania will proceed to the Immanuel, Poulson mill, where she will receive a cargo of lumber for Kalkhow, China.
