JUDGE AWAITS AN AFFIDAVIT

WHETERE DETECTIVE DAY WILL BE SUMMONED FOR CONTEMPT DEPENDS ON WHETHER FORMAL CHARGES ARE FILED AGAINST

Whether or not Circuit Judge George Whether or not Circuit Judge George investigates the charges made against Detectives Day, Snow and Kerrigan, depends on whether or not some person sees fit to draw the matter to his attention by affidavit. Under the law, the court cannot take cognizance of an act of contempt committed out of his presence unless an affidavit relating the facts is filed.

White Judge George will not admit

While Judge George will not admit that it is his intention to draw a grand jury at the September session of court, the language he uses is significant, "Sections 654 and 665 of the codes prescribe the action to be taken in cases of contempt," said Judge George. "If con-tempt is committed in the presence of the court, he can take action on the spot. If, however, the contempt charged takes place when he is not present, an affidavit embodying the facts must be filed before cognizance can oe taken by the bench. None of the detectives have committed an act of contempt in my

of Frank Rummelin's furs, of buildozing him and threatening to see that he got the limit, seven years, for his offense if he did not plead guilty. If the accusations are true, the detectives virtually asserted their ability to control the machinery of the courts and thereby placed themselves in contempt.

As regards the charge made against Day by Mr. Rummelin and also by McCarthy, that he said the stolen furs were in the city and that all but one garment could be secured if $120 were paid, that is a matter which can be investigated only by the grand jury. Day is also accused of having Bob Patterson send a letter to Vancouver, B. C., in an endeavor to have the furs returned in order that the reward might be secured, instead of trying to capture the two men instead of trying to capture the two men maid to have committed the theft.

"A grand jury can investigate any charge of violating the state law," said Judge George. "As a rule district attorneys ask for the drawing of a grand tury. This is not always true, as the torneys ask for the drawing of a grand jury. This is not always true, as they are frequently drawn when a district attorney does not so desire. I do not care to say what will be done relative to a grand jury for the September term of court. Many things may happen between now and the time the September jury comes in."

(8,scial Dispatch to The Journal.)
Wasco, Or., Aug. 16.—Harvest is progressing rapidly, and while it will not be as large as expected in the earlier part of the season, still the yield is excellent and more than a good average. Spring grain seems to be yielding almost as much as fall sown. Fires have been very few this season, with the exception of the burning of Henry Hewell's combined beryester there has been none of of the burning of Henry Hewell's com-bined harvester there has been none of consequence, though there have been sev-eral narrow escapes. Roseburg, Or., Aug. 16.—There was placed on exhibition here today a fine lot of first-class coal taken from a large deposit now being developed about four miles from Elkton in this county. miles from Elkton in this county.

This vein of coal is over nine feet in thickness and of large extent. It is also very easy of access, being near the Oakland-Elkton stage road and within four miles of the recently surveyed railroad route from Drain to Coos bay.

The development of the property has progressed quietly for some time under the direction of George W. Dimmick, James S. Hildeburn and Albert Abraham of Roseburg, but it was not until today that they made known the extent of the valuable deposit.

Analysis by experts shows the coal to today that they made known the extent of the valuable deposit.

Analysis by experts shows the coal to be of excellent quality, and this, with its known volume, will demand the construction of a railroad to the new coal field at an early date.

Due perhaps to the greater attention paid to mineral search than for bituminous deposits, the coal industry of this section of the state has heretofore been neglected. The location of the new fields is perhaps a sign indicating a rapid growth in a new and exceedingly important development.

Considerable attention is being given the display and several men who have at times been interested in coal lands are planning trips to the field.
