CLIMATIC TROUBLE CUTS COMMUNICATION

There is considerable climatic trouble in nearly all centers of the country and much damage has resulted to the telegraph wires. San Francisco was all but cut off from communication with the rest of the world most of the day.

the Front street houses had any poultry all this morning. Some few coops came in there was a facet foot race between the lous retailers in order to be first on the st and buy supplies. The market is first prices are already so high for this time of ar that there is not likely to be much sage. The bolding of the convention of large. STILL IN MOURNING FOR THE RAVOC WROUGHT BY THE WRECK YEAR AGO YESTERDAY.

Borrow filled the hearts of hundreds of Portland people a year ago today, caused by the frightful accident that befell the Elks' excursion train two miles west of Chehalis, Wash., on the morning of August 22, 1903.

The wreck was caused by the explosion of the engine, which rolled down a steep embankment, dragging with it the tender and several coaches. Charles R. Farleman, a Portland pioneer and a well known local elk, and Frank Gales, a tramp, were killed, while the list of injured numbered several score. Mrs. C. B. Brown of this city was terribly injured. Her left arm was forn off. Elmer Quimby lost his left leg. Mrs. John E. Kelley is still very ill, having sustained serious internal injuries and having aiready undergone two operations. George Blodgett has had one leg in a plaster of Paris cast since the accident, and it is now feared that he will yet lose this member. The other injured are either entirely recovered or nearly so.

will yet lose this member. The other injured are either entirely recovered or nearly so.

The wrecked train left the Union depot at 7:25 a.m., and had on board nearly 500 merry Elks and their friends, all bound for Olympia to attend a great clam-bake to be given by the "best people on earth." A large party of friends were at the depot to bid the excursionists goodbye. No merrier party ever steamed out from the local depot. But within a few short hours all was changed to gloom.

As the train reached a point about two miles west of Chebalis, a frightful explosion occurred. The boiler of the engine blew up. The locomotive rolled down a steep embankment, followed by the tender and a section of the train. Charles B. Farleman was riding in the front coach, which was crowded; he was dead before he could be removed from the car. Frank Gales was supposed to have been riding on the blind baggage. He died a few minutes after being removed from the wreck; as a newly-made friend bent over the dying man to see if anything could be done to relieve the sufferer's pain, Gales looked up and whispered. "Tell my mother—" but this last message of love was not finished.

Charles B. Farleman, the only Elk

charles B. Farleman, the only Elk killed by the wreck, was an Oregon pioneer. At the time of his death he was a local fruit and cigar dealer; he was well known in Pacific coast theatrical circles. The late Mr. Farleman was a friend of Mark Twain, and was one of the party of tourists who have been immortalized by "Innocents Abroad."

The following is a list of Portland
