This Store Has Lost a Rib, But Gained a Life Partner!

Have you noted, from the inside of the old store, the ragged temporary partition that now separates it from the Sixth street annex? A rough looking partition, hastily built, to protect the old store from the weather, and those who might "break thro' and steal." Poor old store! Like Adam, a rib has been taken away that a life partner might be given to it—and where that rib came out you will soon be passing thro', from one building to the other, the two forming Portland's foremost best store. Just now things do look a bit shabby—that's a fact. But outward appearances count but little. In house clearing time nobody cares for the looks of things while the work goes on. The ragged looking partition, like an apron or a pair of overalls, simply protects the goods on the other side. The big store, rearranged, is still doing its usual every day work. In these times of upset we are not thinking so much of how we look, but we are doing double thinking to keep up the store service, and taking double precautions against all risks in the building we occupy and the one in course of erection, now nearing completion. Everything is being rigidly inspected and when the building is finished 'twill be the safest and easiest in which to shop in America. The work has been slow, but step by step the Pencoed steel has walked to its place by the help of the steady eyes and hands of the master bridge builders and their strong handed and cool, clear brained helpers. All honor to such men as build so solidly. Visitors in town are invited to come and see this—Portland's one and only all steel, fireproof building.

PORTLAND'S LARGEST AND FOREMOST GARMENT HOUSE

Women's Suits Wraps and Smart Apparel

IN AUTHENTICATIVE STYLES—Just Arrived by Express.
No part of this great store has grown so fast as our garment section. This is due to the facts printed below:
First—The difference and refinement of the styles designed by our organization, that at once remove them apart from the commonplace and ordinary.
Second—The artistic taste and individuality of our organization is shown in correcting styles shown us by manufacturers, transferring such models into distinctive dresses, such styles being controlled by us and not to be seen elsewhere.
Third—We constantly show replicas of imported models after famous foreign designers at a fraction of the cost of originals. Thus it is we offer reproductions of London, Paris and Berlin styles almost as soon as the originals are imported.
Fourth—The power of our peerless buying organization enables us to secure all this additional style in our garments and to sell them as low or at a lower price than the ordinary are sold at the "cheap" stores of no standing in the fashion world.
Fifth—Our policy enables us to show more novelties and new styles because we sell out our stocks on the average of once a month, keeping a constant stream of newer styles going and coming daily. Thus it is that Olds, Wortman & King patrons are always sure to see the very latest at this store.
Sixth—On account of enormous buying—our purchases in the market amounting to more than any other three local stores combined—we are granted great price concessions by the makers, enabling us in turn to make the lowest prices on the coast for women's apparel of every good sort.
Our Miss Bernard will be at the store tomorrow—Tuesday—just arrived from the New York market. She will be pleased to greet her friends and all who may favor us with a call. These are "at home" days with our buyers.
