EXTRAORDINARY VALUES IN FOOTWEAR IN AUTUMN'S OPENING SALES—FIRST FLOOR.

Women's shoes for dress or street wear. Men's shoes for every occasion—for the street, the office or evening dress functions. Misses' and Children's shoes of every good sort, and Boys' good, sturdy, well-made, good-fitting, splendid-looking shoes for school wear. Shoes for the children of both sexes who are going back to school to study hard (maybe), but, anyhow, who PLAY hard and should have GOOD shoes—that are cheaper in the long run than "cheap" (?) shoes.

SHOES FOR ALL THE FAMILY

At phenomenally great bargains to lower the stocks to a size that will dovetail into the space we have for them to occupy during the tearing out of the shelving and forced alterations at hand before moving to the new shoe store in the Sixth-Street Annex, which we hope to occupy for the fall season. The fractional prices tell the bargain-story best.

The Greater Olds, Wortman & King Stores Are in Sight

The end is near, and patient waiting will be rewarded. The new Sixth-street building assumes store form, revealing sufficient in architectural lines and interior finish to indicate the aims of its founders was to build the BEST that mortal mind could conceive and hand execute. To assemble the solidest and choicest rather than the cheapest. Not so much to build the biggest in which to store away discards and left-overs from stocks of former generations, but to place quality before quantity—exclusiveness before extensiveness—to build a clearing-house for bright, right, smart merchandise to pass through quickly as water down the mountain brook. And we've built thoroughly and well on the founder's ideas. In the interim between this and occupation time the rearrangement offerings will still further favor the buyer. In many instances 'twill be a case of reducing figures already reduced. No price will be too low to meet the exigencies of the occasion where stocks must be moved; 'twill be but a matter of SELLING if PRICE will accomplish it. 'Tis the easier, better way of moving goods—the new kind of storekeeping that people expect of this "NEW KIND OF A STORE."

The Style That Won't Come Off Clings to Portland's Largest, Foremost

Cloak, Suit and Costume Shop

On Second Floor.

Autumn's authoritative fashions are here. We've no time or newspaper space to waste in counting the express packages the hosts of new Suits and Wraps come in, and telling of it. What do Portland women care, so long as the new garments are here for their choosing? Those are matters that only interest the expressman. It's the women folk we interest; hence the rapid growth of our splendid Apparel Store—the largest and finest in the Northwest, both from points of convenience in shopping and replete new stocks from authoritative makers and designers of fashions that are correct as exemplified in the making of women's garments. Walking Costumes are prominent among our advance displays; new grace, new outlines and effects more daintily feminine than ever characterize them. The skirts are in the "all-round" effects that just skim the ground in front and a trifle longer in the back. Stately new "Directoire" and Louis XIV and XV types are here. Long, wide vests of cloth, velvet or suede, adorned with beautiful novelty buttons. Lapels, revers, cuffs and collars embellished with rare bits of embroidery, frills and jabots of lace displace the severity of the plainer tailored styles. Skirts are much fuller. Novelty mixtures are much in evidence in materials. And thus we might go on and fill a book of ten thousand pages in attempting to describe the beauty of the new autumn dresses for women's and misses' wear, and yet leave the better half of the story untold. The "only way" is to come and revel in the grand, boundless displays so lavishly spread out here in the great Second-Floor Salons of Dress. An immense line of Street Coats, Rain Coats, Evening and Carriage Wraps has just been opened ready for exposure tomorrow. Some things said yesterday are worth repeating today and tomorrow.
