FEAR MOVE TOWARD CONSERVATIVE MILITARISM

INDIANA REPUBLICANS OF THE FUTURE OF THE 'BIG STICK' POLICY WOULD PREFER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO HARRISON ADVOCATES.

(Indianapolis Correspondent of Brooklyn Eagle, by N. O. Fanning.)

Indiana is the first debatable state to start the presidential campaign. The national committee of the two parties have given their sanction and aid to the plans of the state committees, which have all been formulated; and it is now possible to describe with accuracy the situation, which promises to develop extraordinary interest at a very early date.

More than in any other campaign since the civil war, perhaps, questions of national policy will be forced to the front in Indiana. The Democrats believe they have the best of the issues and the best chance to win. Their campaign will be aggressive. The Republicans will endeavor to show that neither Bryan, or McKinley, nor Roosevelt, will end as have the best of the issues and the best chance to win.

By his attitude toward the nomination at St. Louis, and his speech at Peoria, Judge Parker out away the Democratic embarrasment of the past and left the Democracy free to profit by the Republican embarrasment of the present.

The Indiana campaign will set the pace for the national campaign. Some services of the politicians to meet practical exigencies of the situation as it develops, may be expected; but, however it may begin, in Indiana or elsewhere, the Republican party is at a disadvantage in the present campaign.

It has been accentuated by the president's independence of department and impatience of restraint when speaking of the importance of the country and to his party were under discussion.

While Mr. McKinley was alive, Republicanism distinguished itself by unusual deliberation, introspection and the exercise of its powers. Mr. McKinley was the embodiment of the principle tariff protection of American industry and sound business.

After the war his insular policies were a moderate Republican. He was the last to yield to the pressure for a declaration of war with Spain.

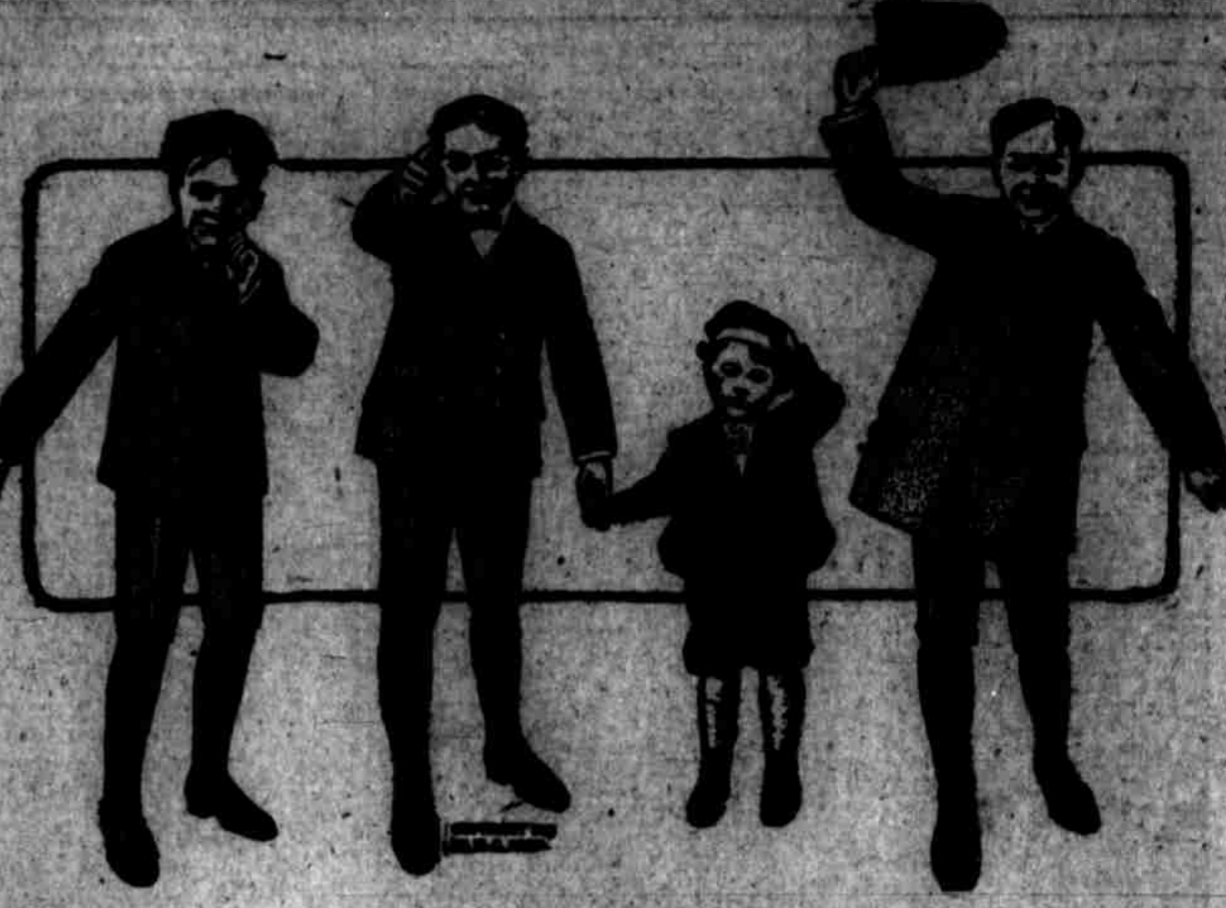

Since Mr. Roosevelt's accession to the presidency Republicanism has been unsettled. Mr. Lodge and Mr. Cummins, the one dealing with a constituency, urgently requiring reciprocity with Canada, the other representing the lower middle class of Chicago.

"Are you afraid that the president is not a Republican?" "No," said McKinley. "I am not afraid of the tariff."

McKinley Republicans charged that the administration of President Roosevelt exhibited unfriendliness to the commercial interests of the country in the case of the Hawaiian Islands and the anthracite coal strike.

It was the power of Senator Hanna in life which checked the open revolt against President Roosevelt in the great states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

publican reasons. It signifies readjustments of Republicanism much less encouraging to the campaign managers of that party than the Democratic reorganization signified by Judge Parker's nomination is to the campaign managers of the Democracy, because it leaves Republican conservatism weaker than it has been since the ascendancy of Blaine, while Democratic conservatism is as strong as it was in the Cleveland epoch.

Mr. Roosevelt has given the first true justification for the use of the word "imperialism" in relation to American affairs. Conservative expansionists in both parties suspect that imperialism in its broadest European sense, embracing militarism, conquest and the centralization of the law-making and war-making and general governing powers in the executive office is the ultimate goal of Mr. Roosevelt's personal ambition.

Mr. McKinley's conservatism of temperament, holding the Republican party to the then existing stability of his party were the reassurances, lacking in Mr. Roosevelt's case of safe federal procedure in foreign and insular affairs.

Mr. McKinley, with these advantages reduced the anti-imperialist cult to a feeble group of academicians, without political vitality or influence. Mr. Roosevelt charged as he is by factional opponents in his own party, and by Democrats, with arbitrary disregard and abridgements of the constitution; with the usurpation of legislative and judicial functions, and with impudent, extravagant and military and naval establishments, has endowed the issue of anti-imperialism with new life.

It is, in this campaign, an issue of profound importance, not because the contest of the two parties would reduce the sphere of American influence on the civilization of the world have espoused it, but because destiny of the nation, desire strictly to preserve the distinction between the expansion which is now an accomplished fact and the imperialism of which Mr. Roosevelt's career and character give promise.

Indiana Democrats are, along these lines, holding the Republican party to a defensive position which it little relishes. President Roosevelt, they say, is the issue. Mr. Fairbank's nomination for vice-president was within the knowledge of the Indiana Republicans, intended to allay the apprehensions of conservative voters.

In the Democratic and Republican state organizations there is a corresponding contrast. The Democratic politicians are developing their work logically along lines of popular opposition to the president's policies of centralization, personal, political and governmental, and effectively elaborating the

THESE THIEVES ARE STATE FAIR WILL BE WELL DRESSED MEN GREATER THAN EVER

POLICE SAY THIEVES WHOSE MAY LEAD TO THE ARREST OF TWO WOODLAWN RESIDENTS—LATEST ROBBERY WAS ATTEMPTED LAST NIGHT IN EAST BOSTON STREET.

Residents at Woodlawn are tormented by two well-dressed young men who have been committing robberies there for the past few nights. The last burglary occurred at 11 o'clock last night, when a man answering the description of one of those who robbed the residence of F. D. Morrison Friday night attempted to gain an entrance into the home of W. B. Price, 1359 East Eighth street north. He took flight and ran when he saw Mrs. Price, who was alone, come toward him with a lamp.

"I feel certain that the man who tried to get in was one of those who robbed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, who live next door to me," said Mrs. Price this morning. "He was dressed in a light coat and wore a white straw hat. He was of medium build and answered the general description of one of the robbers. He took flight and ran when I started for the door with my lamp."

The Morrison robbery was one of the boldest ever perpetrated in Portland. On the pretext that they had a message from Mr. Morrison, who had just telephoned his wife that he would not be home until 10:30, the two young fellows were admitted to the house. They drew revolvers, and while one covered Mrs. Morrison with the weapon, his partner ransacked the house. They then disappeared in the darkness, warning her not to call for help until they had time to escape.

Detectives Kerrigan and Snow are working on the case, and both believe that the young men live at Woodlawn and have recently turned highwaymen and burglars. A sensation may develop, as it is understood the officers have clues that may lead to the arrest of two well-known young men of that vicinity.

MODERN WOODMEN AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5.—One of the biggest fraternal gatherings of the summer is the national encampment of the Modern Woodmen Foresters, the uniformed rank of the Modern Woodmen of America, which opened at the world's fair today. Hundreds of members of the order are in attendance from Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin, Kansas, Indiana and other states.

London, Sept. 5.—At Leeds today delegates representing nearly one and a half million of the British Trade Unionists of Great Britain were present at the opening of the annual session of the British Trade Union congress.

FREEDOM DOWNING CONFIDENT OF UNPARALLELED SUCCESS OF HIS SHOW—PORTLAND DAY WILL BE HELD SEPTEMBER 15—BIG RACING EVENTS.

"We expect the best general exhibit and the best attendance at the state fair this year that we have ever had," said H. W. Downing, president of the state board of agriculture, this morning. "The largest attendance is expected on Thursday, September 15, which is Portland day. On that day the Lewis and Clark stake will be on and in the 2:17 trot $2,000 will be hung up. A rate of $1.50 for the round trip, including admission to the grounds, has been made from Portland. For that day and the commercial bodies of the city have promised that 5,000 Portland people would attend.

"Wednesday will be another good day, for $2,000 in the purse in the pacing race and many entries for the event have been made. There will be 200 horses from Irvington at the fair and this feature of the program will be better than ever before.

"Another thing that will be of interest and value will be the state exhibits. The management has set aside $1,300 for the best county exhibits and the best display ever made will be shown. Linn, Lane, Marion, Benton, Polk and Washington counties will enter exhibits in this competition and Union county will also have a display. The cream of the permanent exhibits of these counties will be bought by the Lewis and Clark state commission and reserved for the 1905 fair.

"Tuesday, the second day of the fair, will be a big one, for 14 Woodmen teams will compete for the drill prizes of $400 which have been offered. Portland camps will be there in force, with the Woodman band. We have been forced to build many additional sheds to accommodate the large number of stock and horse exhibits and the machinery section is filled. The state fair is growing rapidly and in a few years the 160 acres now used must be enlarged.
