CLACKAMAS RIVER

MET WATER-COMPANION

prominent Mason.

Mr. Roby was postmaster when a survey hour yesterday and started up the stream.

They went about two miles above the new dam which the C. W. P. Co. is building in order to secure electric power. The water looked shallow, but very swift. They were in the middle of the stream, when young Landon found he could with difficulty keep on his feet. Ross succeeded in reaching the opposite hank in safety, and, turning to see what and carried down the stream by the swiftly flowing current.

Ross ringeding in the current, which, every moment carried him nearer to a deep whirling pool. He ventured toe fare in his caperness and was carried of in feet and for a few moments he struggled desperately before regaining pols. He ventured toe fare in his caperness and was carried of its less than the seem of the friend by jumping in after him, but he was unable to see or hear anything more of his unfortunate companion. In desperation he ran up and down the stream for some time trying to gain sight of the body, but failing, he hastened to Casadero, where he obtained assistance.

A car of men were ordered from Estacada. They took grappling hooks and ropes with which to drag the river. They worked until if grew so dark they were unable to see anything and then returned. This morning, headed by the coroner of Clackamas county, they were unable to see anything and then returned. This morning, headed by the coroner of clackamas county, they were unable to see or hear anything more heart of the took of the seed of the drewning again. With them were the father or the body had not been recovered.

There are many deep holes along the river in the locality of the drowning and it is supposed that the body has washed into one of them. where it may not appear for several days, unless the same of the several part of the several p

R. G. Hibbard was the bartender. He hit Soutman for cracking the nuts on the bar and for being insolent when told not to, he said.

"Have you any other witnesses?" asked Judge Hogue.

"I don't need any witnesses," sarcastically replied Hibbard.

"I fine you $50," said Judge Hogue.

"I appeal." said Hibbard.

THE OTT STRANGS HARVIES

During the next few days the towboats of the O. B. & N. Co. will have all they can do bringing hips and schooners up and down the river. The Harvest Queen arrived in port this morning with the British ship Wray Castle and the American schooner S. T. Alexander in tow, and immediately after they were berthed the Harvest Queen left for two other vessels which are waiting at Asteria to be brought to Portland. It was the intention for her to take the schooner Zampa, which is lumber-laden for a California port, with her, but as the vessel, would not be fully loaded until 5 o'clock the company decided not to hold the Queen in port so long.

On her next trip up from the mouth of the river the tugboat will bring the British ships Eskasoni and Hartfield, which reached Astoria yesterday from San Diego. The French bark Pierre Loti has also reached the city by the sea, and two other vessels are outside awaiting an opportunity to cross the bar. A big fleet of lumber-carriers is due, and to bring them all to Portland will keep the Harvest Queen and the Ocklahama busily occupied for the next week to come.

The Wray Castle, Captain Owens, came from San Pedro in ballast and moored at the Banfield dock. She made a long passange up the coust, but nothing of incident is reported. The trip was schewhat prolonged by the contrary winds which were experienced during the greater part of the voyage. She reached Astoria, September 24. The trap was under charter to Balfour, Guthrie & Co.

to carry a cargo of grain to the United Kingdom. The skipper of the Wray Castle was here several years ago in command of the British ship Ainsdale.

The schooner Alexander was taken to the Portland mill, where she will receive a cargo of lumber for San Francisco.
She is an old-timet in port, and has been engaged in the off-shore trade for a number of years. The Alexander will

At a meeting of the Carpenters', Riggers' and Shipliners' union yesterday afternoon, Contractor A. Meintonh was placed on the unfair list. The labor men say that the action was taken because the contractor is employing none but non-union men in the work of cleaning and painting the tug Tatoosh, which was taken on the drydock Saturday afternoon. They also declare that he has cut the wage scale more than half, as he is paying his employes 25 cents in hour, while the regular union scale is 55 cents an hour. It is alleged that the contractor has employed four members of the Tatoosh's crew, and the others he has at work for him were picked up around the dock.

It is admitted that the character of the work that is being done to the Tattoosh does not require skilled labor.

Sofia, Sept. 26.—A special agent, who is maintained in Constantinople sends the startling information that Sultan Abdul Hamid is suffering from an incurable mental disease, akin to that which affected King Louis II of Bavaria. He adds that serious events are about to occur at the Yildis Kloak.

Under the leadership and presidency of Izset Pasha the most prominent personages of the palace have met to discuss the question of dethroning the sultan. These men do not form a cabal, meditate no revolution, but are impelled by the idea of ridding their country of a ruler whose mind is unbalanced.
