This Great Store Organization a Tower of Mighty Commercial Strength!

Nature affords no sturdier type of physical strength than the building elephant, whose ponderous physique, whose resistless muscles, whose tireless power find a striking analogy in the constructive strength of the Olds, Wortman & King store. As the elephant, under intelligent guidance, is a mighty builder of architectural marvels, so is this great store organization the builder of an industrial and commercial fabric of unassailable durability. From the scattered stones lying useless and neglected in the mercantile field, rough-hewn and ignored by those who have not understood their utility—which stones are OPPORTUNITY—we have steadily upraised a magnificent commercial institution, solid as Gibraltar from foundation to pinnacle. THE PANAMA CANAL MODEL

STANDING OF THE SCHOOLS AT 4 P. M. YESTERDAY:

Lord Bacon wrote: "There be three things which make a nation great and prosperous—a fertile soil, busy workshops and easy conveyance for men and commodities from one place to another." Inland navigation certainly provides the easiest and cheapest mode of conveyance and canals and navigable rivers are of utmost importance to a nation's material prosperity. This and other matters of intense interest around the canal, brought up by the proposal of this house to give some Portland school the large working model of the Panama Canal, now on exhibition in one of the large show windows. The school will be chosen by popular vote of the people—a vote with every 12¢ purchase. The voting to close at 9 p. m. on Wednesday, November 28, the award to be made on the result of the vote of that time. We list only the names of the first 15 schools in the STANDING AT 4 P. M. YESTERDAY:

Table with 2 columns: School Name and Total Votes. Includes St. Mary's Academy, High, Portland Academy, Harrison, Atkinson, Williams Avenue, Park, Falling, Sunnyvale, Highland, Central, Clinton Kelly, Holladay, Couch, Brooklyn, and Total Votes.
