TOREDOES TO END

PERSON WATER PART TO PRE-AWAY WITH SALT WATER HUDT

According to Major C. W. Langfitt, loredoes will not do very much more lamage to the piling in the jetty work at the mouth of the Columbia river. He states that the insect is a salt water worm and it is impossible for it to inrive where there is any fresh water. The flow of the Columbia extends over to big area off the mouth of the river, and for that reason he holds that the loredo will not likely cause any more trouble.

The damage that they have thus far wrought, explains the major, was in a sort of an eddy which consisted of salt water altogether. Outside of that small area, which is made up of a liberal supply of fresh water, the pilling has remained untouched by the insect. An samination shows that the timbers are as sound as the day when they were friven. In making the repairs the plan which the United States engineers have fecided upon is to drive the new pilling tround the eddy mentioned, where the waters of the Columbia extend, and it is then believed that the toredo evil will have been overcome.

A couple of the pieces of the piling which had been eaten out by the insect were sent up to the city yesterday, and they are now on exhibition at the pustom house. One of them is from a piling that was placed in position during the summer of 1903. It has been literally bored full of holes, and at a distance resembles a large sponge. Some of the holes are almost half an inch in liameter, while others are smaller, showing that the worms have attained various degrees in size.

The holes resemble small tunnels and chafts, connected in the same mariner that a miner might perform the work on a claim from which he is preparing to take out ore.

but should it wither and die a long train of evils will ensue.

Whether the Chinese residents of New York have made up their minds to test the theory or not is unknown locally, but 4,000 lily buibs are being sent them. They came on the Aragonia and are now being discharged at the Alaska dock. It is one of the biggest shipments of bulbs ever made by way of this port. In addition to them there are also 1,000 cases of Japanese lilles consigned to the metropolis. They consist altogether of roots, and it is said that if they are placed in water of the correct temperature it will be but a matter of a few weeks until they will bear flowers of a spotless white.

The work of discharging cargo from the Aragonia is progressing under adverse conditions. Almost two weeks ago a gang of men was employed to replace a number of the old piling on which the dock rests with new timbers, and the task is yet far from complets. As a result of these operations the south end of the structure is pretty well torn to pieces, and the floor space for freight is rather limited. This afternoon it is the intention to move the vessel to the other end of the dock, and it is expected that the work of getting the cargo ashore will progress more satisfactorily.

According to present plans the steamer will be loaded and ready to start on the outward trip on the morning of October 26. She will go out loaded to the guards

WEATHERS BIG STORMS. British Ship Glaucus in Big Rlows and Scames Are Injured. Caught by a mammoth wave, which swept over the deck of the vessel as she was rounding Cape Horn, three sailors on board the British ship Glaucus, which reached port yesterday afternoon from Antwerp, had a miraculous escape from death. They were carried against the spars and sides of the vessel with such force that they were rendered unconscious. By heroic work their mates succeeded in reacuing them, but not before they were almost drowned.

succeeded in reacuing them, but not be-fore they were almost drowned.

Badly bruised, but with no bones broken, the men were taken into the cabin and there remained for a week before they were in condition to renew their labors before the mast. The gale that almost caused their death continthat almost caused their death contin-ued with unabating fury for the greater part of two days, and the vessel shipped water freely. When the storm finally subsided there was fine weather for a few days, and then another of only a triffe less fury came up. The sails had all been taken down and no damage re-sulted. The officers explain that while

When the Pacific was finally reached the skies cleared and ideal weather reigned supreme until San Diego was sighted, where the vessel put in to discharge a part of her cargo. The trip to that port was made in 126 days, and from there to the Columbia river 12 days were required to make the run.

The cargo brought to Portland is consigned to W. P. Fuller & Co. and is being discharged at the foot of Pine street. It is made up mostly of cement. glass. spirits, linoleum, preserves, currants, etc. There are 400 barrels of currants, which were grown in Greece. The Glaucus is not chartered for the outward trip.

They were married January 11, 1903, at to the water's edge last Saturday. At the time she caught fire the vessel was moored at a landing and the officers and crew were all ashore. How the blaze originated is not known. The vessel was owned by a stock company composed of a number of merchants of southern Oregon. She was valued at $2,000 and carried $1,500 insurance.

southern Oregon. She was valued at $2,000 and carried $1,500 insurance.

Mr. Nickerson has been steamboating on the lake during the past six months and expects to return shortly to his vocation. He says that a new boat, called the Keno is being built by Thomas McCormick to be operated on the lower lake. It will be about 50 feet in length and will carry both passengers and freight. He says that Tutton and Hansbury of Portland are also preparing to build a new craft. They have purchased the old boilers which were formerly in the Iraida of the Kellogg Transportation company's fleet and a few days ago procured engines at Shoatwater bay. In addition to these there are now a few gasoline launches running on the lake regularly, but it is said there is a great deal more business than they can handle. In speaking of that section Mr. Nickerson said:

"An irrigation ditch is under construction by the Klamath Falls Canal company, and when completed it will be capable of watering 50,000 acres of land. When that project has been brought to a successful conclusion that entire section is going to have one of the biggest booms in its history. Klamath Falls is now a town of about 1,500 population, but in a year from now the indications are that it will be double its present size. Steamboating will also be given an impetus and will prove an important factor in building up the country."

COUNCIL MEETS

TAR BUSINESS TRANSACTED—SA-LOOK THAT WAS AT OUTS WITH POST HOSPITAL TRANSPERS LI-CHESE TO DIFFERENT LOCALITY.

Mayor Clough, who has been absent from several meetings. was able to preside at the meetings. Was able to preside at the meeting.

The principal business transacted was the transfer of the license to Brumley & Co. for the sale of liquor at the corner of Seventh and Reserve streets to the Rierdon cafe at the corner of Seventh and Main streets. This saleon has been obnoxious to the post hospital. Colomel Huston established a cossack guard to prevent any of the soldiers from patronizing the place.

There was a petition presented to the city council last night by the citizens of that vicinity to prevent any further iloenses being granted to establish a saleon in that portion of Seventh street. This was brought about through the false rumor that a license application had been made to establish a saleon on the corner of Seventh and East B streets. Two other resolutions were introduced to form improvement districts. One providing for the grading of Eighteenth street, was adopted and the time set for the hearing of protests fixed for Monday, November 7, the next regular meeting of the city council. The estimated cost of the work is $1,350, including intersecting street crossings.

The other resolution provides for improving Kausifman avenue from Twenty-first street to the city limits, which was also adopted.
