TODAY'S MARKETS

Farmers Now Unable to Sell Potatoes Because Dealers Are Unwilling to Take Chances—Rise of 2 Cents in Cattle—Hops Unchanged.

FARMERS CANNOT SELL POTATOES

STOCKS GO A-BEGGING ALONG FRONT STREET BECAUSE DEALERS DO NOT CARE TO TAKE ANY CHANCES OF A FALLING MARKET—PRICES IN PROVISIONS DOWN.

Front Street, Oct. 25.—The principal features of the Portland wholesale markets to-day are:

Potatoes going a-begging.
Prices on beans firmer.
Dressed veal somewhat dull.
Dressed hogs temporarily scarce.
Egg market is easier.
Poultry demand continues excellent.
Hams are ½c lower.
Local lard declined ¼c.
Huckleberries are more plentiful.
Raspberries come from Mount Tabor.
Hop market remains at top.

Potatoes Go a-Begging.

If any of the potato growers do not believe the statements that potatoes are going a-begging in this city, they would undeceive themselves by bringing in a few wagon loads and trying to sell them at the present market. It has come to pass that the growers, not finding a market for their potatoes along Front street at the high prices, go to the larger hotels, as well as the retail groceries, and sell them at less figures. This condition brings about a very small demand from the jobbers and they hardly care to buy at any quotation. Until potatoes go down to practically 65@75c there will be absolutely no demand from outside sections as freight rates are against this market. With every potato-growing section having a very large crop this year, it will be nip and tuck for the growers here to unload at anything like the figures they received a year ago. Then nearly all sections had a short crop, but despite this potatoes opened much lower in this market than they did this season. The fact that Oregon only has one half, or possibly two thirds, of a crop does not necessarily mean that this state can make the prices elsewhere where they raise much larger stocks than we do here.

Onions Are the Reverse.

The onion market is just the reverse. The supplies are not what could be called heavy either here or elsewhere and growers have some sort of cause to hold for an advance.

Prices on Beans Firmer.

The bean market is gaining in firmness each day and some slight quotations are made. That there will be a great scarcity of first-class beans from California this year is agreed upon by all the dealers and growers. There will, however, be a large crop of second and third class goods, and in these lines prices will be shaded according to quality.

Dressed Veal Somewhat Dull.

During the past few days the receipts of dressed veal have been rather larger and the market is just beginning to feel the effects of it. Today's tone in veal is not so firm, but quotations were not disturbed. There is somewhat of a scarcity in dressed hogs, but the situation could not be called strong. Prices unchanged.

Provisions Are Lower.

Local values on provisions are down today on account of the weaker feeling in the hog market both here and in the east during the past few weeks. A cut of ½c per pound is announced in local manufactured hams and ¼c per pound in both kettle leaf and steam rendered lard. There was no change in other provision prices.

Egg Market Is Easier.

A slightly easier feeling is ruling in eggs. The receipts are showing a very small increase, but the warmer weather is the chief cause of the dullness. Prices remain unchanged. In poultry the receipts and the demand are about on a par and no advances can be made in the quotations.

Hop Market Remains At Top.

Values in the hop market have not changed during the past week, 31½c being the top price then and today. Some small buys are reported around the printed figures, but generally the growers are holding for an advance. Of late the dealers, finding that they could not buy, have been busily engaged in taking in the stocks already purchased, and much shipping to the east has been done during the week. There continues a good demand from the continent and nearly all dealers have orders on hand.

Better Apples Are Coming.

As the season advances, the receipts of apples of the better grade are larger, but the supply is still under the demand even at the high prices. Some small shipments of raspberries came in this morning from Mount Tabor and found a sale at 20c per pound. Strawberries from the same locality were quoted at 15@20c per pound according to quality. There is a better supply of huckleberries and quality being better, there is an improved demand. A car of bananas came in this morning.

Wheat Market Is Dullar.

There is only dullness in the wheat market, the scarcity of cars for eastern shipment of the holding by growers contributing. and barley are firm, but the tone of the markets is dull. Stocks are, however, being held as firm as ever.
