IRRIGATION WORK GOES STEADILY ON

ENGINEERS WHO HAVE TRAVERSED PALOUSE FIELDS SUBMIT THEIR REPORT TO WASHINGTON —FIND NO OBSTACLES IN THE WAY—DELAYS NOT EXPECTED.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Colfax, Wash., Oct. 27.—Prospects for the speedy construction of the Palouse irrigation project by the government at a cost of $2,500,000 are better than ever. The three engineers who drove over the country last week have sent their report directly to Washington, D. C. The project is to irrigate 100,000 acres north and east of Pasco, Wash.

The engineers who took the five days' drive from Pasco up into the Connell country are H. N. Savage, supervising engineer from Salt Lake; John H. Quinton, consulting engineer from Los Angeles, and T. N. Noble, district engineer of Washington.

The engineers say that for the purpose of more definitely determining the cost of construction, a diamond drill boring outfit has been ordered to determine the nature of the material through which excavations must be made to determine the cost of the construction of the dam.

Savage said: "We have no authority to give out the nature of our recommendations. I can say that we agreed on our report and that we found no obstacles which appear serious. No one but the secretary of the interior can say one of these irrigating projects will be undertaken. The government has $25,000,000 for projects of this kind, and this fund is rapidly increasing. Therefore no unnecessary delays are permitted. At the same time all work is done carefully.

"We examined Rock lake in the northern part of Whitman county, and this seems suitable for a storage reservoir to regulate the flood flow. The main supply, however, would come from the Palouse river. The water would be allowed to go down Rock creek into the Palouse river as it is needed.

"The plan is to divert the water from the Palouse river at a point near Hooper in Whitman county. It will be taken from there by a canal into the Washtucna coulee, the western half of which will be used for a storage reservoir. This will be the supply for the irrigation distribution canals. The reservoir will be about 17 miles long, reaching from about Kahlotus near to Connell. It will be about a mile wide, and there will be a difference between our high water mark and our low water mark of about 60 feet. The water will leave the reservoir through a tunnel about 12 feet square."

This project is worth at least $500,000 to Whitman county alone. In this county will be constructed a dam at Hooper, on the Palouse river, a dam at Rock creek and a dam at Hangman creek, just north of Tekoa; this latter dam will divert the waters of Hangman creek into Pine creek and then into Rock lake. Edwin T. Coman, cashier of the First National bank of Colfax, and William Huntley, a merchant and heavy land owner of Endicott, together own 10,000 acres of land which will be directly benefited should this project become a reality, and it is altogether probable that it will.
