MEMBERS OF DISTURBANCE PARADES
JUDGE PARKER'S SPEECH IN NEWARK—CANDIDATE IN LATER
SIXTH OVIATION—DELIVERS
THREE ADDRESSES.

(Journal Special Service.)
Newark, N. J., Nov. 2.—After an attempt made by Republicans to break up the big meeting at which he was later to appear, Judge Parker last night spoke in Essex troop armory.

The armory is one of the largest assembly halls on the eastern coast, seating two-thirds as many as can Madison Square Garden. Before Judge Parker arrived it was filled. At a mention of Roosevelt's name the Republicans, as though by prearranged effort, began cheering and raising a deafening noise, which was prolonged despite the utmost efforts of the police to bring the disturbers to order.

There were made and several smaller disturbances took place. For a time it seemed that the Republicans would succeed in creating a riot, but the Democrats by sheer force of numbers finally restored order.

Parker, after dining at the home of ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., where he was tendered an informal ovation, was escorted by a monster procession to the armory, where with difficulty he succeeded in reaching the platform through a stage entrance.

The Democrats gave him the most enthusiastic applause that has ever been observed in this state. It lasted for 12 minutes, at the expiration of which time Judge Parker stepped to the front of the platform and succeeded in quelling the noise.

His speech was attentively listened to and applauded at intervals, the Republican disturbing element having evidently decided that further attempts to break up the rally would prove ineffective.

"I shall the trust combinations of millions to the campaign fund secure the right to continue wrongful taking of millions a year from the people."

At the close of his speech Parker effected a second ovation with great effort and took his departure for Jersey City, where, in Elks hall, he delivered an address. The hall was filled to overflowing. His address there was brief and nearly the same speech was later delivered at St. Peter's hall, where again his reception was exceptionally enthusiastic. He left for New York at 11:30, and so worn by his evening's exertions that his voice was scarcely audible.

FARRAR'S CONTINUES TOUR.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 2.—Senator Farrar left here this morning in his special car for another day of speechmaking in Indiana, Michigan City being the place at which an address was announced to be made. MORE THAN SIX MONTHS AT SEA

WRECKED SHIP HAMPTON, FROM ANTWERP, MAKING LONG TRIP AROUND CAPE OF GOOD HOPE—EXPERIENCES TERRIBLE STORM NEAR AUSTRALIA.

Struck by a tremendously strong gale while off the western coast of Australia, the British ship Hampton, which reached port yesterday afternoon from Antwerp, was tossed about like a cork on the turbulent water. Waves washed the deck and a number of sailors narrowly escaped from either being drowned or dashed to pieces against the masts.

It was a pitch-dark night when the storm raged the fiercest, and two men were at the wheel. A wave carried them off their feet, and Apprentice French, one of the two, was borne on the current against the side of the vessel with such force that one of his arms was nearly broken. It was three weeks before he was able to lift it.

The members of the entire night watch were hurled from their positions. Everything movable was drifting about the deck and that no one was killed seems a miracle. The galleys door was broken in, and in a few seconds the steward and all the cooking utensils came floating out. Peter McDonald, a son of the captain, was thrown headlong over the wheel, but he quickly picked himself up and staggered to a place of safety. Further than receiving a slight hurt about the body he got out of the predicament uninjured.

Thinking that a quicker passage could be made, Captain McDonald, master of the ship, concluded to go around the Cape of Good Hope instead of rounding Cape Horn, as is done by the majority of the navigators. Fine weather was experienced until the Pacific was reached. When near Australia 10 days of high winds and calms followed, but finally the stormy sea became dark and the storm which caused so much concern and thrilling escapes broke out in great fury. It lasted only one night, or there undoubtedly would have been a different tale to tell. At the time the storm took place the vessel was out from Antwerp 105 days.

Penrhyn Island was passed July 27, and the vessel was so close that the natives fishermen could be plainly seen on the shore. From the longitude of the Hawaiian Islands protracted calms were encountered nearly all the way to Los Angeles, which port was reached September 13, after a passage of 181 days from Antwerp. A portion of the cargo was discharged there, and on October 5 the trip to Portland was started. It required 23 days to reach the Columbia river.

Many exciting episodes have happened in the history of the Hampton. A year ago, while lying in the harbor at Java, the Dutch Indies, she was run into by a German torpedo-boat. Her side was badly scraped, but no further damage resulted. But at the time the officers and crew were afraid that the collision would cause an explosion and blow all of them to eternity. The vessel sailed away in a badly leaking condition. It was later explained by her officers that they lost control of the engines, but the ship could not be stopped in time to prevent a collision.

Fleet Now Under Charter May End Shipment of Cereals Across Seas.

With 110,886 bushels of wheat aboard valued at $92,000, the French bark Duplex has moved out into the stream and will leave down for the mouth of the river tomorrow morning. The cargo will go to the United Kingdom and is being dispatched by the Northwestern Warehouse company. It will be the first grain lot to clear for more than two weeks.

The Pierre Loti and Cambrouze will be the next vessels to be fitted out with wheat cargoes. It is probable that they will be ready to sail within the next week. The Criton is also loading and will likely get away a few days later.

When the fleet now under charter is supplied with cargoes it is generally believed in shipping circles that a long time will elapse before any other vessels are engaged to carry grain to European ports. If the railroads can handle it the statement is made that nearly all of the cereal will be taken to the interior.

This is also evidently the prevailing opinion among the ship owners and they are endeavoring to charter their vessels to engage in the lumber trade. As the demand for lumber appears to be very poor at the ports across the sea the owners have thus far had no success in keeping their tonnage moving.

ALLIANCE WRECK OVERDUE.

Almost a week overdue the steamer Alliance crossed the Columbia river this morning at 8 o'clock on her way from San Francisco and way ports to Portland. She is expected to reach here tonight.

While on the outward trip the vessel was detained at Coos Bay for four days on account of a rough bar and she was forced to remain at the same place nearly three days on the return trip. She sailed from Marshfield on Monday night and had made an average passage she would have reached here last evening. It is supposed that she encountered some very rough weather while coming up the coast.

CITY TO GET AWAY FROM FINE SYSTEM

An ordinance to allow counter-merchandise machines to run was introduced before the city council today in the form of an amendment to the present ordinance. It provides for the taxation of the machines, the amount being $4 a quarter for each, which was considered a better plan than having the license collected in court in the form of a fine.

Originally an effort was made by the saloon men to secure the passage of an ordinance allowing the cash machines to run, as well as the trade machines, but the mayor would not tolerate it. He flatly refused to give his consent. The new ordinance is the result of an agreement made between members of the city council and cigar merchants two weeks ago.
