

CHIEF'S MAN KILLS HIMSELF

SEE WIFE ABSENT WERE ABSENT
MORGAN GALLER, APPARENTLY
INTENDING TO KILL HER—
SHE HUNG ON SMOKE SMOKE IN THE HALL.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Chehalis, Wash., Nov. 4.—At 1 o'clock this afternoon Arthur Holland killed himself in the dining-room of the O. K. lodging-house in Chehalis by shooting himself with a .38-caliber revolver. Holland went to his work early this morning at Millie Brock's coal mine, near town. About 10 o'clock he left the mine, bidding Ephraim Miller good-bye. Miller asked him what had happened, and Holland replied that nothing had happened, but something would happen when he got to town. Instead of riding his wheel to town, Holland took over the hill. Miller started in pursuit and told Marshal Richardson to arrest him on sight, as he was dangerous. Holland went to the lodging-house and asked for his wife, whom he also evidently intended to kill. She happened to be out; then Holland killed himself.

SERIOUSLY HURT BY FALLING FROM FLUME

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Collage Grove, Or., Nov. 4.—Morris McKibbin was terribly injured by being thrown from a high flume used for running lumber and ties from the McKibbin Bros' sawmill to the end of the railroad upon a Howe river, about three miles from this city, yesterday afternoon. He was attending the flume, which was running ties at the time of the accident.

The ties became jammed and when he had released the jam the ties buckled, struck and knocked him from the tow board. In falling 18 feet he turned a somersault and struck on his back. Two of the heavy ties fell upon him, one across his legs and one across the breast and face, breaking two of his left ribs and fearfully lacerating his face and body. He was unconscious for more than an hour. Dr. Job was immediately summoned by phone from here and on his arrival at the scene of the accident McKibbin had just regained consciousness. If not internally injured he may recover.

BANCROFT NAMED TO SUCCEED MARKHAM

(Journal Special Service.)
Salt Lake, Nov. 4.—Circulars have been issued and signed by E. H. Harriman appointing W. H. Bancroft, vice president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line, acting general manager of the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific, vice Markham resigned. Bancroft has left for San Francisco. It is announced that this is only a temporary arrangement and it is believed Calvin will be appointed as soon as a suitable man can be selected to succeed him as general manager of the O. R. & N. at Portland.

MISTAKES LYE FOR CONDENSED CREAM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Leland, Ida., Nov. 4.—Ed Benjamin, the locator of Leland, mistook a can of lye for condensed cream and drank a quantity of it yesterday. He was alone in a cabin, and when found was in a hopeless condition and taken to the hospital, where he died soon afterward. He came here in 1884, was aged 75 years and unmarried. He was known as "French Ben."

GERMAN-AMERICAN ARBITRATION TREATY

(Journal Special Service.)
Berlin, Nov. 4.—It is learned that an arbitration treaty will soon be concluded between Germany and the United States. America, it is ascertained, made the proposal for a treaty. The details are not yet settled and officials are reticent regarding the points in question.

SALEM TO HAVE HEALTH OFFICER

CITY COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR APPOINTMENT OF A GUARDIAN OF THE CITY'S PHYSICAL WELFARE IN CONNECTION WITH CHARTER.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Nov. 4.—Yesterday evening the city council finally passed the health board ordinance that has been pending for so long a time. This was in conformity with a requirement of the city charter as passed at the last session of the legislature. This ordinance provides for the appointment of a health officer at $60 a month. The city council also adopted suitable resolutions for the purpose of showing appreciation of the gift, by Warner Broyman and the Eugene Broyman estate of the handsome fountain that now graces Wilson's avenue. The city also decided to notify certain bondholders of city bonds that the city would pay the bonds when the option became effective. These were for the improvement of State and Oak streets and amount to about $4,000.

"BUFFALO BILL" MAKES A GRAND STAND PLAY

(Journal Special Service.)
Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 4.—The Cody bandit and robbers are now probably safe in the Bad Lands, northeast of Thermopolis, and will probably reach the notorious Hole in the Wall this afternoon. Col. Cody after making grand preparations started with his guests on a hunt for game, and has no intentions of joining in the hunt for the robbers. It is now certain that Harvey Logan is in the gang that planned and executed the robbery and murder. It is reported that one of the officers in charge of the posse aided the outlaws to escape.

BURGARS AT TONGA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Tokon, Wash., Nov. 4.—Burgars so-called stole from George S. Fields, druggist, and Troyer & Engle, jewelers, last night. All in stock. No attempt was made upon the till which contained money. The entrance was through a window. No clue to the burglars.

PENDLETON SHY OF THE PORTAGE ROAD

BUSINESS MEN WRECK BALK AT SUBSCRIBING $5000 ASKED FOR WELSH ASSURED THAT IDAHO AND WASHINGTON WILL GIVE LIBERALLY.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Nov. 4.—Objections have been raised by Pendleton business men to subscribing the $5,000 apportioned to this town as its share of the $40,000 needed to complete the fund for building the portage road at Celilo. "Already," said a prominent business man, "Oregon has contributed $16,000 by legislative enactment toward the portage road. The benefits that would accrue from the enterprise would be in larger measure to Washington and Idaho than to Oregon. Yet those states have given nothing, up to this time, and Umatilla is asked to be one of several counties that shall pay $4,000 by private subscription."

"Before any Oregon county gives money, the people of the other states that are vitally interested should accomplish something substantial. I am not saying that Umatilla county will refuse to give anything toward the $40,000, but I am saying, and I know I reflect the sentiment of our business men, that we will do nothing until the counties of the other states actually have already given, and given liberally, to the fund."

The value of water transportation such as would be the Columbia river opened throughout its length, no one pretends to deny. Such an enterprise, worked out to its full fruition, would regulate rail rates on all commodities shipped in and all products shipped out. That was accomplished when the Cascade locks portage road was opened for traffic, the result being that, for all territory between Portland and The Dalles, rates fell to a basis averaging perhaps 50 per cent of those formerly effective.

In the event of the Celilo portage road being opened, however, the conditions would be radically different. The difference would be merely in the greater magnitude of the task. Probably boats would be provided upon the upper river. The statement made by Henry Eakin of the Portland chamber of commerce that boats would be provided disposed satisfactorily of one important point. But the boats would be only one of two essential auxiliaries to the portage road. With the road in operation and the boats in commission, and rates along the river lowered, not more than 50,000 bushels of wheat of the 5,000,000 produced would be affected in Umatilla county. The major portion of the crop is produced on lands that lie at least 40 miles from the Columbia river.

Unless then, feeders are built from the wheat section to the river, the lowering of the river rates would be of no more benefit to Umatilla county than if the portage and boat lines were in Abyssinia. The time has passed when farmers will haul wheat 40 miles or more to shipping points. And that is exactly what would have to be done were the farmers of Umatilla county to attempt to utilize a portage road without feeders to haul their wheat from the farm to the river shipping point.

These arguments are not suggestions of resistance to the railroad companies, but of business men who are vitally interested in securing lower rates and would welcome any enterprise that would promise reduction in carrying charges. They are inclined to believe that the landowners and big farmers, who would reap the greater good from the portage road, should bear the heavier part of the cost of building it. The merchants are of the opinion that their benefits would come by indirection, whereas the landed proprietors would be helped directly and in larger measure than business and professional men.

The subject was stirred to renewed interest here by the visit of Dr. N. G. Blalock of Walla Walla, who is one of the chief promoters of the portage road in its present status. Dr. Blalock brought up the matter at the irrigation conference, and appealed to the Pendleton business men to get to work to secure the $5,000 asked from this town. The counties of Washington and Idaho will have to show their share of the $40,000 actually in hand before much enthusiasm may be looked for in Umatilla county.

IS BADLY INJURED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
La Grande, Or., Nov. 4.—James Mulholland had a narrow escape from death last night while driving a team attached to a load of hay. He was crushed between the rack and the post, breaking three ribs, which were crushed into his liver, making his condition still serious. He is aged 35 years.

NEW ROAD TO YACOLT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 4.—County Surveyor Bailey has just returned from completing the survey and the starting of a gang of men to construct a new road from Fargher's lake to Yacolt. This will give the residents in that neighborhood, all of whom have to make frequent trips to Yacolt, a much nearer route. The distance heretofore traveled in a circuitous route was eight miles. The new road will cut this distance down to three miles. Referring to the bridge work in the county, Surveyor Bailey states that all the bridges that the county commissioners contemplated building this year have been completed except one. This one is east of La Center and was destroyed by fire during last summer. The bids for the construction of this bridge were all rejected by the county commissioners.

STUDENTS WILL BE GOOD

Members of the class of '06 of the North Pacific dental college called on Dr. Herbert C. Miller, dean of the institution, last night, and discussed the disturbances that are said to have existed at the college. They agreed to discontinue any further demonstrations against Dr. Lane, and the matter will be dropped.
