A Word About Early Closing. A clergyman asked us the other day: "Don't you folks lose money by closing at 6 p. m. on Saturdays?" Frankly and candidly WE DON'T KNOW. Any any rate, we eat and sleep well on a clear conscience in doing it, and—as candidly and frankly we state—we don't believe we lose a dollar's worth of business in pursuing this modern course of conducting a great business. It costs this house about $6,000 a year to send its helpers on their summer vacations without loss of pay—do we lose that? Not much! We have the best corps of employes in all the west, and we're proud of 'em. We get better quality help and their best heart and hand service 51 weeks of the year by sending nearly 600 helpers out to bring back rosy cheeks and buoyant spirits from a week of summer vacation. It's a mighty good investment, we think. Just so we believe the 10-hour day another. So we close at 6 p. m. on Saturday as all days. If you believe in this movement, wherever you trade, shop before 6 p. m. tomorrow. It means a better Sabbath observance for us all.

THERE'S A GRAND FAREWELL SALE HERE SATURDAY

In which several of our busy shops, that go to make up the aggregation forming PORTLAND'S FOREMOST STORE, say good-bye to quarters they have occupied for years, to move to newer, better and larger ones in the new Sixth Street Annex which will be thrown open to the public in its entirety on Monday. And the whole store chimes in with one strong bargain acclaim, making Saturday the greatest opportunity day for buying at underprices of all the busy "AMERICAN WEEK." Like nature's overflowing cornucopia of autumn's ripened fruitage, this great November mercantile harvest gathers to itself all that is newest, best and style-perfect of the world's productions, those of our own country being given special exploitation in the great "COMPARISON SALES" of "AMERICAN WEEK." Matchless inducements we believe to be unparalleled in western merchandising, are offered tomorrow. A partial list is catalogued below. In shopping bear in mind WE CLOSE AT 6 P. M.
