

HERN CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

Desperate Burglar Arrested with Much Booty from a Store in Rockwell.

WAS ARMED WITH THREE REVOLVERS AND A KNIFE

Looted the Place and Carried Off a Quantity of United States Mail.

With a sack stuffed with stolen goods, some of it United States mail, Lee Hern was brought to a sudden stop as he emerged from the store of A. H. Bell, at Rockwell, shortly after midnight last night by two Winchester rifles in the hands of James Shearnhouse and Leslie Bell. After looting the store, and believing that he was secure, the robber softly let himself out at the front door. Scarcely had he turned around when the two rifles confronted him and a cry of "hands up" told him his part of the game was over.

He dropped the sack and Shearnhouse snatched the robber, while Bell covered him with a rifle. On the robber was found three loaded revolvers, an ugly-looking knife and a complete set of tools for safe-cracking. He was taken to the county jail and turned him over to the sheriff.

Rockwell is a small station near Fairview. A. H. Bell conducts a general merchandise store there. Last night James Shearnhouse, road supervisor of that district, while passing the store, heard a noise inside and knowing that it was unusual for the proprietor or his son to be about the building at that hour, quietly investigated, and saw a man slipping in through a rear opening. He hastily aroused Leslie Bell, son of the proprietor. Arming themselves with rifles they waited for the robber.

In the sack was found a lot of razors, knives, socks, overalls, shirts, some United States mail and several bottles of fancy soda water.

So far as known Hern is a stranger in Multnomah county. This is his first visit here.

WHY MR. CLARKE DID NOT GO HOME TO SUP

Busy Getting Married to Miss Duke and Forgot All About His Dinner.

A. J. Clarke, a florist, did not go home for dinner Monday evening. He went to the courthouse to interview County Clerk Fields instead. The interview was for the purpose of securing a marriage license. This precious bit of paper secured, Mr. Clarke fled away to the home of Miss Cecelia E. Duke, 347 East Twelfth street. A few minutes later Miss Duke became Mrs. A. J. Clarke.

Out at the home of Mr. Clarke, on East Forty-fifth street, near the Section Line road, the tea that had been prepared for him stood cold in his cups, guests gathered around the mutton-chops, and the hot mince pie became frigid. Still Mr. Clarke did not come home. After several hours of weary waiting his relatives began to fear that some wicked highway man had waylaid Mr. Clarke and had killed him for his money.

The police station was telephoned to and a search was at once begun for the missing man. There was some talk of securing the services of Hugh Brady, the diver, to drag the river in hope of recovering the body. But Mr. Clarke appeared at his store yesterday, smiling the smile of the contented.

"I have just been married, and am happy as can be," he said. "The marriage was rather quiet, I admit. The ceremony was performed in this city. I am sorry the police were put to so much bother."

ANOTHER PLASTER ON O'HARA'S FARM

Marion County Rancher Will Have to Mortgage Again to Pay Divorced Wife.

COMPLAINS BITTERLY OF TREATMENT IN CASE

Given Sixty Days in Which to Reimburse and Pay Court Expenses.

"That means another mortgage on my farm," wailed James O'Hara as Judge Fraser ordered that the decree of divorce obtained by Mary Ann O'Hara from the defendant would not be set aside and the case reopened for trial until the defendant had paid the woman's costs in the first action and $250 into the court for expenses money in the retrial of the case.

O'Hara, through his attorney, W. M. Kiser of Salem, urged that the conditions imposed by the court were too severe, in view of the fact that the defendant claimed he had had no knowledge of the previous suit and was given no opportunity to present his side of the case. The court refused to rescind the order, but O'Hara was given 60 days in which to pay the money into court, upon his representation that his only means of securing this money was by another mortgage on his farm which was already encumbered with these bits of papers until he could hardly expect to redeem it in a life time.

The divorce was granted September 15 on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. O'Hara did not appear. Later he came into court with numerous affidavits asking that the case be reopened, as he had not been properly notified of the divorce suit. Counter affidavits showing the divorce was granted were filed by Mrs. O'Hara.

FINDS EVIDENCE OF RIVER TRAGEDY

Engineer Hartman Heard Cries for Help and a Splash in the Dark Hours.

HAT NEAR BY ONLY GUIDE TO VICTIM'S IDENTITY

J. V. Campbell, Loaded With Guns and Ammunition, Narrowly Escapes Drowning.

Engineer Hartman of the steamer Republic, is of the opinion that some one was drowned early yesterday morning near the dock at the foot of Washington street. Just previous to the supposed accident or suicide he was on the steamer fast asleep, but was aroused by a shout and what appeared to be a heavy splash in the water.

The engineer says he immediately rose and went to investigate. Walking out on the gangplank he found a hat, and arrived at the conclusion that the man to whom it belonged had fallen into the river a few minutes previous and had been drowned. He searched in the water in that vicinity for almost half an hour, but seeing no one he returned and went to bed. When daylight came he reported the matter to Captain Shaver, the owner of the dock. It was at first thought that some of the employes about the boat or dock had met with an accident, but it was soon ascertained that none of them was missing. The theory is advanced that a stranger wandered down to the waterfront and stumbled into the river.

A fatal accident was narrowly averted at the same dock. As J. V. Campbell, a Portland business man, was boarding the Republic he slipped and fell off the gangplank. He intended to go down to the Williamette slough to hunt ducks, and was carrying two shotguns and two "slickers." He dropped the guns and coats, and attempted to swim toward the boat. But he was burdened with heavy clothing and could make but slow progress. Finally a rope was thrown to him and he was towed ashore. The fireman sank in about 40 feet of water. By means of grappling-hooks they were later recovered. But Campbell did not wait for them. Borrowing another gun he went on down the river to shoot ducks. The extra gun and coat he carried belonged to one of his friends who intended to accompany him. The slickers are still in the river.

ALBANY BUSINESS MEN ARE NOW WAKENING UP

Albany business men are arranging for a meeting for the purpose of organizing a commercial club and joining the Oregon Development league. R. N. Steele of that city was in Portland yesterday on business, and called at the Portland Commercial club to make an appointment with Manager Tom Richardson for a speech at the meeting, and for such other assistance as he may be able to render in the launching of the new organization. The business men of Albany already have a social club, and it is thought that this may be made the nucleus of the new commercial club.

"Albany is becoming one of the important cities of Oregon, and it is time she had an up-to-date commercial club, and took her place in the front rank of the state's business organizations," says Mr. Steele. "We already have a number of large manufacturing establishments, and we want more of a similar character. The hop industry is rapidly growing in importance in the vicinity of Albany, and we will within a few years be in the center of the hop country. One farmer this year planted 80 acres of hops directly across the river from Albany, and other smaller fields are being started."
