

PREPARING TO GREET ROOSEVELT

Streets of St. Louis Present Gala Appearance, with Display of Bunting and Flags.

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TAKEN FOR PROTECTION

Greater Portion of Day to Be Devoted to Tour of Grounds and Inspection of Exhibits.

(Journal Special Service.) St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 25.—The finishing touches to the preparations for the visit of President Roosevelt and his party are being put on today. The down-town section of the city is taking on a gala appearance. Building after building is one great mass of color from sidewalk to roof, and the national colors are everywhere in the shape of shields, bunting and countless numbers of flags.

The presidential special is due to arrive at the exposition grounds at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The vacant space immediately west of the Palace of Transportation has been inclosed and will be used for the parking of the train. Breakfast will be served on the train, and a half hour later President Francis and the exposition officials will call and pay their respects to the chief executive. In compliance with the expressed wish of the president the greater part of the day will be devoted to a tour of the exposition grounds and an inspection of the exhibits. It is probable that the distinguished visitors will attend the football game in the afternoon between the Haskell Indians and the Carlisle Indians. In the evening President Roosevelt will be entertained at a banquet.

Elaborate precautions are being taken to insure the protection of the president while in St. Louis. In addition to the squad of secret service men accompanying the party from Washington a considerable number of plain-clothes men have been detailed by the chief of police to look after the safety of the president, and these will be further reinforced by the Jefferson Guards, who will at all times see that the crowds are kept at a distance.

(Journal Special Service.) Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—The president's special train enroute to St. Louis arrived at Pittsburgh at 10 o'clock this morning. After changing engines the train started westward over the Pennsylvania division of the Pennsylvania at 10:45. The president waved his greetings from the platform as the train passed through the city, but none of the party left the cars.

KILLS MAN AFTER LONG PRACTICE

Charles Martin Who Shot Frank Parker at Colfax Shot at Target for Ten Days.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Colfax, Wash., Nov. 25.—Frank Parker, aged 51 years, who was shot four times in the abdomen, lung and thigh yesterday morning on the depot platform, died at midnight last night at St. Ignace hospital. Charley Martin, aged 23 years, who did the shooting, is feigning insanity, saying he was commanded to shoot Parker and Wesley Weinberg, a former city marshal and wealthy citizen, by a hypnotist last summer and has been lying in wait for them ever since. The shooting was done with a new Colt's revolver. He has been practicing in the hills back of Sheriff Canutt's house for two weeks. Parker said he could give no reason for the shooting.

HOLY ROLLER VICTIMS LEAVING THE ASYLUM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Corvallis, Or., Nov. 25.—Cured of Holy Rollerism, Mrs. Maud Hurt-Cremfield returned last night with her father, O. V. Hurt, from the Salem asylum, where she was sent several months ago. Frank Hurt and his wife are to return home Monday, cured. Mrs. O. V. Hurt is improving, but is not yet able to come home.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN WRECK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Ashland, Or., Nov. 25.—A man named Barth Saggard No. 15 near Keswick last night and reported that he had seen two men placing an obstruction on the track, and that seeing him, they had fired at him. Conductor Depanger had the engine uncoupled and proceeded to the spot. He found two dynamite cartridges on the track all prepared for discharge to wreck the train.

AT THE THEATRES.

"Arizona" Tonight. Tonight at the Marquam Grand theatre the greatest of all American plays, "Arizona," will begin an engagement of two nights, with a special price matinee tomorrow (Saturday) at 2:15 o'clock. The dramatic motive is simple and the complications which lead to the denouement rational. The young wife of a colonel, many years her senior, being wearied to the point of despair by her lonely life, has a passing passion of romance and is on the verge of elopement with almost too transparent a villain, when the young lover of her sister foils the plan, but at such a critical moment that he must himself bear the burden of suspicion or reveal the wife's frailty to her husband, who has been to him as a father. With genuine manliness he chooses to shield the woman and await the future for his justification. Tomorrow, Saturday night, will be military night, when the officers of the Third Infantry, Oregon National Guard, will attend "Arizona" in a body.

At the Columbia.

Following "Lod Astray," the beautiful Dion Boucicault play, the Columbia Theatre stock company will present "The New Dominion," the superb comedy-drama in which Clay Clement made the hit of his life as Baron Hoenstauffen, the simple German botanical student who goes to Virginia and falls in love with a fair southern girl, and finally wins her away from a designing villain of her own nationality. Edgar Baume will play Clement's part and Cathrine Countess the sweetheart whose hand is so persistently sought. The other members of the company have been cast for splendid roles—the play never has been a one-man affair—and a performance that will delight the patrons of the house is assured. The scene of the legend of the Hudson River, usual. Artist Frank King made the original scenery for Clement and will give an exact reproduction of it for the stock company. The engagement begins Sunday afternoon and will last one week.

Thomas Jefferson Coming.

A theatrical treat is in store for those that appreciate good, wholesome comedy. Thomas Jefferson will be the attraction at the Marquam Grand theatre next Monday and Tuesday nights, November 28 and 29, in his father's old masterpiece, "Rip Van Winkle." It is a play that never seems to grow old, and is always a drawing card. Rip and his good natured, natural, vigorous, and hearty friends are our grandmothers, our fathers and mothers, and now a new generation is springing up, eager to see the last, good natured, vagabond, the hero of the legend of the Hudson River, and his remarkable encounter with the spook of Hendrick Hudson and his ghostly crew, who are supposed to return to the scenes of their early discovery and play at nine-pins in the vastness of the Catskills mountains on certain anniversaryes.

The Star's Big Festival.

Nothing to equal the aerial feats of the four Flying Barnards has ever been brought to the Pacific coast, and the management of the Star theatre is probably the first to introduce the innovation of bringing such high-priced acts to the north Pacific coast. It is not, however, a perilous undertaking to pay high salaries for such performers, because the public is very quick to appreciate the superior quality of the entertainment.

Amateurs at the Arcade.

Tonight is amateur night at the Arcade theatre, and performers who have never appeared in public before will be offered an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to entertain. It is doubtful, however, if any of them will display more genuine talent and merit than is shown by the Harvey children. The piano playing by the little girl, who is disguised as a blind beggar child, is wonderful.

Matinee Tomorrow.

There will be a special prize matinee at the Marquam Grand theatre tomorrow afternoon with that great play, "Arizona," as the attraction.

Folkert at the Grand.

Society went wild over Folkert, the famous double note whistler and imitator, at the big Angus benefit this week. He appeared through the courtesy of the Grand for the occasion, and his hit-

HINDS HELD AND MAIER IS FINED

Man Who Made His Son Drunk Must Face the Grand Jury.

SALOONKEEPER PAYS OVER FIFTY DOLLARS

Affecting Scene in Court, When the Lad Testifies Against His Father.

After a succession of the most dramatic scenes witnessed in the police courts in many a day Judge Hogue this morning found Al Hinds guilty of giving liquor to his 14-year-old son, Earl Hinds, and held him to answer to the grand jury.

Charles Maier, at whose saloon the lad procured the liquor, was fined $50. Maier would have been let off lightly had it not been for Clark Olson and another witness directly contradicting his testimony that he was at home when the liquor was sold the boy. They swore that he informed them the day he put up his bond that he was hunting when the liquor was sold. The Hinds testified that he was at home when the liquor was sold the boy. They swore that he informed them the day he put up his bond that he was hunting when the liquor was sold. The Hinds testified that he was at home when the liquor was sold the boy. They swore that he informed them the day he put up his bond that he was hunting when the liquor was sold.

Judge Hogue used the most drastic language in dealing with Hinds, informing him that if he cared to say anything to his young son he should embrace the occasion to do so, as he would not see him again for a long time. The boy was committed to the custody of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society.

When the lad took the stand he testified that Maier was in the saloon when he secured the beer on four different occasions. His father, he said, gave him four glasses of beer to drink. His mother was present and also drank some of the beer, as did a few friends. Hinds admitted sending his boy for beer twice and giving him two glasses of the fluid. He pleaded that he had provided well for his family.

"That has nothing to do with it," said Judge Hogue. "If your methods of discipline have made your boy good, then other fathers are to be pitied. If you have anything to say to him say it now, for you will not see him for a long time. I shall hold you to answer to the grand jury, with bonds fixed at $500. Saloonkeeper Maier was informed that he might not be entirely to blame for the sale of the liquor, but that as other complaints had been made against his establishment, he would be found guilty. A fine of $50 was then imposed. In committing the boy to the Boys' and Girls' Aid society the court gave him some wholesome advice.

"Hold up your head and throw your shoulders back. Go around like a man and not like a sneak," he said. "You will receive good training from the people who will now take care of you, training which should have been given you by your parents. I hope when you are allowed to leave there you will be a better boy."

The lad cried bitterly when recalled to the stand after his father had testified. He endeavored to shield his parents and claimed he had been sent to the saloon four times. Before holding Hinds to answer to the grand jury the court conferred with City Attorney Fitzgerald and Assistant District Attorney Haney relative to the statute.

was one of the most marked of any of the distinguished entertainers. Sam and Ida Kelly, as "Si and Mandy," will make your sides ache with laughter; Gross, the German comedian, will serve Dutch treat from Castle garden; Lane & Dandy are positively great comedy acrobats; the four Olifans made the big sensation of the World's fair this summer, and you who did not see them in St. Louis should see them at the Grand.

Bijou's Watch Night.

Nine at Bijou. What does it mean? A gold watch for somebody at 9 o'clock tonight. Elmore and Bartlett are illusion artists of highest grade, Frye and Allen are the big musical sketch team of the coast, and Zerilda has a unique dramatic act. The vitascope shows an amusing chase; "It is to laugh." Pearl Grayson's songs draw the applause.

ROOSEVELT IS AFTER A GO WITH MIKE DONOVAN

(Journal Special Service.) New York, Nov. 25.—President Roosevelt has written his old friend, Professor Mike Donovan, boxing instructor of the New York Athletic club, asking him to go to Washington and "try him out." The president has been so busy with his campaign during the last months that he has had little or no time to indulge in his favorite form of exercise, and has requested Donovan to recommend a Washington boxer to give the youth lessons. Donovan in his younger days was the middle-weight champion.
