WILLIE WESTINGHOUSE EDISON SMITH INVENTS A COAL ELEVATOR

Dear Tommy—it made me so weary to see Mary Ann lugging coal up from the cellar—

That I built an automatic coal elevator.

You just pulled the brake and, presto! the bucket was filled.

Mamma came in to see it work, when the brake got jammed and we couldn't stop it.

About two tons of coal was dumped into the kitchen before the weight ran down.

We had to send for Jim to carry the coal back to the cellar. I got an awful scolding. Yours, etc., Willie.
