TRAITOR IN CAMP OF MILLS AND OF KAY REVEALED BY THE BALLOTS CAST IN THE SPEAKERSHIP CAUCUS

SECRET IS DISCLOSED

Double-Dealers in Both Camps Thwarted Each Other.

ATTEMPT TO CONSIDER IT CLOSED INCIDENT

Double-Crossers Known to Only a Few—Seating of Each Candidate's Supporters in Body Reveals Treachery.

(By George M. Knowlledge.)
Salem, Or., Jan. 11.—Facts have leaked out concerning the Republican caucus on the speakership which throw a remarkable light on the contest. There was a traitor in each camp. The identity of these two men is suspected, but as yet probably is known only to one or two others. The vote of each offset that of the other, so that their defection did not change the result.
In caucus Mills and Kay sat side by side and each voted for the other. The Kay men and the Mills men occupied chairs on opposite sides of the room. Two tellers collected the ballots in hats, one collecting from the Kay side, the other from the Mills side.
When the ballots were emptied on the table, besides Kay's vote for Mills there was another for Mills from the Kay side. Similarly from among the ballots from the Mills side there was one for Kay besides that cast by Mills.
It was instantly apparent that there had been treachery on both sides, but no comment was made and there is now a strong disposition shown by both sides to regard the incident as closed.
In the opinion of some of those present at the caucus there were two traitors on each side, but this is not clearly established, as the ballots became mixed before the count was completed. As every man in the caucus was solemnly pledged to the candidate whom ostensibly he was supporting, the discovery of treachery was a disagreeable surprise.
All the Mills men and nearly all the Kay men were in writing. A general disposition is shown to let the matter drop. Kay admits the facts, but depreciates giving them publicity, saying the fight is over. The identity of the men who gave their leaders the double-cross will probably remain unknown.

RUM-MAD BUTCHER

Walter Kills Wife, Two Babies and Himself in Chicago.

WITH RAZOR AND PISTOL MURDERS WHOLESALE

Begins by Hurling Dishes at Customers in Restaurant and Chasing His Fellows With a Knife.

(Journal Special Service.)
Chicago, Jan. 11.—Crazed by drink, John Miller, a restaurant waiter, this morning cut and stabbed his two small children with a razor, then shot them to death, cut and fearfully mutilated his wife, then shot her, turned the gun on himself, put a bullet through his brain, and then cut his throat.
He started in at the restaurant where he was employed by hurling dishes at the heads of customers and through plate glass windows. Grabbing a knife he attacked the other waiters, who fled, pursued by Miller.
Losing track of the fleeing waiters, Miller ran to his home which was on the upper floor of a tenement, finding his wife preparing breakfast for their two children, who were still in bed, he grabbed the latter, threw them on the floor and proceeded to stamp on them by jumping up and down. Then taking his razor he cut and slashed them repeatedly, carving off their ears and noses. Producing his revolver, he proceeded to empty the chambers, shooting the babies repeatedly through the head and body.
His wife made a frantic effort to interfere and her screams could be heard throughout the building. The crazed man dropped the revolver and again taking the razor caught his wife at the door as she was endeavoring to escape, threw her down and cut her throat with the razor and badly slashed her face. He then reloaded his gun and shot her, inserting the muzzle of the revolver in her mouth, killing her instantly.
Miller then turned the gun on himself and the first shot imbedded the bullet in his brain. Still conscious, he struggled to the stairs where the razor lay and cut his throat. By this time assistance had arrived and Miller, breathing his last, was taken to the hospital where he is not expected to survive.

GOVERNOR ALBERT MEAD OF WASHINGTON

DOUBLES IN VALUE

Land Worth $19,000 Two Years Ago Sells for $42,000 Today.

WAS IN LITIGATION FOR A NUMBER OF YEARS

Property on Which Was Old Curio Shop, Southwest Corner of Washington and Thirteenth Bought by Dr. Cornelius.

The title to a valuable property at the southeast corner of Washington and Thirteenth streets has been cleared and today the land was purchased by Dr. C. W. Cornelius of Portland for $42,000.
"I have made no definite plans for any further improvements on the property," said Dr. Cornelius. "There are two 50 foot lots fronting on Thirteenth street, and the ground has a frontage of 115 feet on Washington street."
It is regarded as an ideal location for a large apartment house or family hotel. For some years the property has been in litigation, and in a year its market value has nearly doubled. Two years ago it was all but sold for $19,000. It was owned by Mrs. Frohman, who kept a curio establishment in the corner house. She borrowed money from the German Savings and Aid society of San Francisco, and gave a second mortgage on the property but did not place the instrument on record. When the aid society's foreclosure proceeding came on Mrs. Well intervened and asked the court to make provision for satisfying her claim. The case was decided against her on the point of law involving the non-recording of her mortgage, and she took an appeal to the supreme court.
During this litigation O'Shea Bros. of Portland negotiated with the aid society for the property and bought it for $27,000.
The refusal of Mrs. Well to settle on terms proposed and dismiss her suit forced a cancellation of the sale to O'Shea Brothers, and since that time the Well case has prevented any further negotiations for the property until Dr. Cornelius took up the matter.
He made propositions to both sides at interest. Pines & Tift representing Mrs. Well, and L. J. Goldsmith for the German Savings & Aid society. Mrs. Well accepted the terms offered. The agent of the aid society has drawn up formal papers and forwarded them to San Francisco for approval.

Hints in Inaugural Address That Teaching "Un-American Doctrines" Will Be Reason for Removal.

(Journal Special Service.)
Olympia, Wash., Jan. 11.—Inauguration day in the capital city dawned foggy and frosty, but developed into a pleasant, though rather cold day. During the night a brand new flag had been run to the top of the capitol tower, proclaiming the significance of the coming day.
Legislators, visitors and townspeople were early astir, though the program for the inauguration called for no feature of the day before 2 o'clock. The arrangements called for a joint session of the senate and house in the chamber of the capitol at that hour to listen to retiring Governor McBride's farewell address, to be followed by the reading of incoming Governor Mead's message and the delivery of his inaugural address.
At 2 o'clock the galleries of the house joint session were crowded, admission being gained by card only. Fifty seats had been reserved for friends of Governor Mead, the members of the supreme court and other state officers being given blocks of seats. Each member of the legislature received one gallery admission ticket and the demand was triple the supply.
Ex-Governor McBride began the delivery of his farewell address at 2 o'clock. At its conclusion Chief Justice Mount of the supreme court administered the oath of office to Albert E. Mead, who became governor of Washington, and delivered his inaugural address.
After taking the oath of office, Governor Mead delivered the following address in part:
"Called by my fellow citizens to fill the most honorable position in the councils of the state, and entrusted with the stewardship of the highest interests of an intelligent and hospitable people, I accept the invitation, realizing full well in advance its grave duties, its mighty obligations, its never-ending responsibilities, its perplexing, unsolved and almost insoluble problems.
"No coarser education, political service or personal friendship will permit the appointment of inefficient applicants in the public service, nor retain in office a proven incompetent or unfaithful public official.
"I have no foreboding of the future of this state to express; no discordant note to sound; no gloomy picture to paint of the destiny of this fair land now having just passed its half century mark of its existence as a territory and state.
"He spoke further advocating appropriations for schools and colleges, encouraging modern methods in the treatment of the insane, advocated the soldiers' home; promised humane treatment for prisoners, and concluded by praising the pioneers and the resources of the state.
"That part of his address which aroused the most interest was his statement that any attempt on the part of the instructors or management at any of the higher educational institutions to arouse in the minds of the student body a feeling of prejudice or hostility toward that form of government in force, or to influence boys and girls to believe that our system of government is based upon fallacious principles and should therefore be ultimately overthrown; will receive immediate attention from the executive department," and result in the immediate dismissal of the instructor.
"Recommend Economy and Passage of a Law to Regulate Railroad Rates."
Governor McBride's farewell address was in part as follows:

PRIMA DONNA SLAPS ANOTHER'S FACE

Mmes. Emma Eames and Senger Bettaque Came to Blows on the Stage.

EAMES IS AGGRESSOR BUT WON'T APOLOGIZE

Eames Will Not Go on Her Knees Except to Thank God She Is Not Dutch.

(Journal Special Service.)
New York, Jan. 11.—Following a quarrel on the stage at a matinee performance in the Metropolitan opera-house Saturday, Mme. Emma Eames and Mme. Senger Bettaque retired to the wings and came to blows, or rather one blow, that delivered by Mme. Eames. As the palm of her hand vigorously smacked the cheek of the famous German prima donna, the latter cried out with pain.
"You shall apologize on your knees," said Mme. Senger Bettaque.
The book compiled by Frau Cosima Wagner for the festival-house at Bayreuth says:
"If a soprano should slap the face of a contralto, the soprano should apologize on her knees to the contralto and pay a fine of 500 marks."
"You shall apologize on your knees, Miss Touch-Me-Not," she continued.
"Pay $100, Miss Yankee."
"You are not a contralto, and I wouldn't apologize if you were. We are not in Bayreuth," said Miss Eames, "and I shall not go on my knees except to thank the Lord I am a Yankee instead of a Dutch woman."
Manager Conrad later took a hand and Eames apologized. It is uncertain whether she paid the fine. The cause of the quarrel was a trivial dispute.

FEAR THEFT OF BILLS.

Senate Begins Work By Establishing Elaborate System of Receipts.

(By Frank L. Perkins.)
Salem, Or., Jan. 11.—The larceny of the bill making gambling a felony on the last day of the special session of 1902 led to stringent measures being taken by the senate this morning to prevent a recurrence of such a crime. Immediately after organization was completed Coe introduced a resolution prefraged by a request for such action, providing that the president of the senate appoint a responsible person to act as senate bill messenger under oath, who shall be held accountable for all bills and documents transmitted to or from the house. Members and clerks intrusting bills to the messenger to receive receipts from him, and he in turn from persons to whom they are delivered.
In speaking of a motion to adopt the resolution, Coe said that a house bill making gambling a felony, introduced by Hutchinson of Multnomah, and carried in the house by a majority of one, was stolen on the evening of the last special session while on its way to the senate, that a scandal resulted and that he did not want any officer acting for the senate to hide or steal any more bills.
Sichel seconded the motion, which carried unanimously.
"To Stop Waste in Reporting."
The usual resolutions to investigate state offices and institutions were offered. Miller declared that the investigating committees in the past had put the state to a great expense for clerks and stenographers. He moved that a committee of three be appointed to consider the resolutions of investigation and decide on an effective and economic (Continued on Page Nine.)
