HOW COMMITTEES WILL BE SHARED

Vawter, Capron, Mayger, Muir and Linticum Sure of Places.

MANY EAGER TO GET HOUSE CHAIRMANSHIPS

Speaker Mills However Will Delay Official Announcement of His Selections Until Monday.

(By George M. Trowbridge.) Salem, Or., Jan. 13.—Members of the lower house in the state legislature are deeply interested in the committee appointments to be made by Speaker A. I. Mills, but no definite information as to his selections will be given until the house reconvenes next Monday. As to some of the committees, however, those conversant with the desires of the various members and the legislation to be introduced are able to make a shrewd guess. The probable appointments for chairmen of the more important committees were published yesterday in The Journal. It is conceded that Vawter will have the chairmanship of the ways and means, Mayger will have fisheries, Capron will be at the head of the committee on military affairs, and Herrmann will be chairman of the committee on roads and highways, unless he should decide to ask some other place of equal importance. Muir or Linticum will be chairman of the committee on judiciary and both will be members of this committee. One of them will probably have the chairmanship of revision of laws. Holcomb of Multnomah will doubtless have a place on the committee on insurance, banking and seems likely to be chairman. The members of the Clackamas delegation have been striving for a place on the railroad committee, and would like the chairmanship, though that is likely to go to Sonneman, with Cooper as second choice. Some significance is attached to the anxiety of Clackamas to get a place on this committee, for Brownell is to be a member of the same committee in the senate and was at one time slated for chairman. It seems safe to conclude that the chairmanship of the committee on elections will go to a Multnomah man. Some important legislation is to be introduced.

amendatory of the Australian ballot law, and the Republican organization is deeply interested in it. Chang of Multnomah will probably be a member, if not chairman, of the committee on game. Bailey has informed the speaker that he does not desire the chairmanship of the labor committee and this will probably go to a man from some outside county. It is surmised that Linticum will have an important place on the committee on public libraries. Hunsley's ambition to be chairman of ways and means will not be granted, although he may get a place on the committee. Cole will probably be chairman of medicine and pharmacy. It has been assumed that Cole would get the chairmanship of the committee on irrigation, but this is by no means certain. The place may go to Sig. Steiner will probably have a place on this committee.

PORTLANDERS AT GOLDEN WEDDING OF WARREN PIONEERS OF '65

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Stevens.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Warren, Or., Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Amos Stevens celebrated their golden wedding Tuesday. They were married in Shelby county, Ill., in 1856, and after many exciting adventures, including two attacks from Indians, wintered in Walla Walla, proceeding in the following spring to the place where they now live. They had seven sons and six daughters and adopted five other children. One son died in Portland, one was drowned in Cowilla river in 1894. Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Stevens of Dawson, Alaska, were unable to come. The remaining members of the family were present, with 14 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. About 50 invited guests, including Mrs. Perry, one of the first women, to cross the plains into Oregon, were there. The wedding service was read by Rev. R. D. Nichols of Kalama, Wash. One of the presents is a gold watch and chain from the sons, the first watch Mr. Stevens had worn in all his life. The following are the sons and daughters present: Mrs. M. J. Scott, Miss Maud Stevens, of Kalama, Wash.; Mrs. Julie Trainor, Mrs. Maggie Casidy, Mrs. E. Garfield, Daniel Williams and John Stevens, of Portland, Or.; Marion Stevens, Hood River; Miss May Stevens, Warren, Or. Umattila and Wallowa and Umattila and Union counties. S. B. 44, by Pierce—To provide for custody and disbursement of school funds of districts of the second and third classes. S. B. 45, by Smith—To amend the act of 1893 relating to practice of veterinary surgery. S. B. 46, by Malarkey—Requiring that conditional sales of personal property be recorded. S. B. 47, by Sichel—To provide corporal punishment for wife-beaters. S. B. 48, by Croisan—To authorize state board to purchase land near Champeop for the use of the state. S. COUNTY ASSESSORS WILL MEET HERE

Call issued for Convention at Which Important Changes Will Be Advocated.

SAN FRANCISCO LAW MAY BE TAKEN AS BASIS

Sigler Says All Property Values for Taxable Purposes Should Be Raised.

An assessors' convention will be held in Portland, January 25," said B. D. Sigler, assessor for Multnomah county, today, "at which important changes in assessment and taxation law will be considered for recommendation to the legislature. I believe the time is ripe to propose the raising of property values as assessed for taxation to the cash value required by law, or, at least, to an approximation thereof. I am in favor of bringing it to pass as soon as possible, and shall advocate such changes when the assessors of the state meet. "No one informed on the subject doubts the wisdom of assessing property according to the law, and providing such higher assessment could be had without throwing open the treasury to too great drain in the levying of the millage imposed for taxes, it would be well to follow the letter of the law, which commands the assessment of all property at true cash value at a voluntary sale. "The assessors' convention could profitably consider recommending the adoption of some features of the California law, which, in at least two particulars, excels ours. These are the making of the personal property tax a lien on realty, and the provision that, when a property-owner does not assist the assessor by bringing in a statement of his property, an arbitrary assessment shall be made, which cannot be reduced by the board of equalization. Amendments Necessary. "Some important amendments are needed in assessment and taxation laws, in order to bring the statute as near to an ideal as possible. We cannot make it perfect, as suggested by Assessor Dodge of San Francisco county, who, in a valued treatise on "Franchise Assessments," quotes the saying: "Whoever hopes a faultless tax to see, Hopes what never was, is not and never shall be." "But we have reached a period of development when we must have significant changes in our laws, and I hope the assessors' convention will recommend several amendments." The assessors' convention was called by J. H. Morton, assessor of Union county, who has sent out the following notice, after extensive correspondence with assessors throughout the state: "La Grande, Or., Jan. 7, 1904. "To the Assessors of Oregon—Greeting: "Some time ago I assumed the responsibility of taking the initiative in the matter of holding an assessors' convention, about January 30, 1905, and suggested to some that it be held at Portland. "I have received replies from 20 assessors, all of whom agreed that such

(Continued From Page One.) he accepted the third vice-presidency of the Southern railroad. In 1895 he was promoted to the second vice-presidency, and in the following year was called to succeed Austin Corbin as president of the Long Island railroad. Mr. Baldwin had a remarkable capacity for work, and found time to engage in widespread interests in addition to those of his railroad. He was an earnest student of social economy, and was deeply interested in educational work. He came prominently before the public as chairman of the caucus committee of 16 which investigated vice conditions in New York city during Mayor Van Winkle's administration. He was active in the civic federation and was frequently called upon to arbitrate labor disputes. Much of his time in later years had been given to the work of the southern education board, and to the general educational board, of which he was chairman. He was a director of the Corn Exchange bank, the Equitable Life Assurance company, the Union Exchange bank, and several other corporations. He was a member of the Harvard City, Law and Nassau Golf clubs, the Hamilton club of Brooklyn, the chamber of commerce and the New England society. With Mr. Baldwin at the time of his death were his wife, who is the daughter of the late Samuel Howles, and his son and daughter.
