WOMEN'S WORK

Uplifting Address By Mrs. Clara G. French.

At the request of many club women of the state, Mrs. Clara G. French has consented to allow us to publish the following address, made before the Baker City convention: The world is rich today because men have labored. On every hand, turn where we may, we find evidence of human activity.

through the stages of their nomadic life to the more settled agriculture period, understand the conditions which made it the granary of the world, trace the growth in the most of the mighty kings, watch the forces that crumble a religious system and finally understand the development which culminated in the creation of the mighty pyramid and the stupendous temple.

It is the home of a mighty people the Nile valley teems with interest. To one who has no backward look it is but a flat, uninteresting tract through which a murky stream winds its sluggish way. The pyramids to that one are but a stupendous pile of stone and the sphinx an ugly monstrosity. The eye which ministers to an unenlightened mind performs but half its legitimate function.

Clara Graves French, Prominent Club Woman of Weston, Or. above the horizon and shines full-orbed on her resplendent figure. To replace its marble ornamentation, to restore the fallen columns which vandals have thrown down, one is to know the religion of the Greek, to know his history.

Notes for Our Club Sisters by a Clubwoman. A clipping from an eastern newspaper quotes the startling fact that in New York City 56,000 children go to school breakfasts every morning. There are many school children as there are in Portland so hungry to school.

Nothing can be truer than the word of the master, who said, "To him that hath shall be given," and justice reached the perfection of her function when she was taken from him who had no talent.

Appreciation of anything good with one's effort. It is a matter of course, a matter of course, a matter of course, a matter of course, a matter of course.

The richer things of life existed as much the heritage of man as in other conditions, but there was wanting the element of the soul to receive it, and when the darkness of years was lightened man realized once more that which lifted him above the sordid, narrow things of life, and the soul, as if taking new flight, found its expression in beauty of color and in grace and in elegance of design beyond the farthest imagination of previous centuries.

Atrocious Bill for Care of Incurable Girls. The club women of Oregon have been striving ever since a state organization was formed to do something for incurable girls. The only thing possible to do is to get a home for them where they may be removed from temptation, and through education be turned into better paths.

Miss Mary M. Chase to Begin Campaign of Education. This department extends greetings to Miss Mary M. Chase, who has just arrived from New Hampshire to take up the organization of the suffrage work of the state.

Resolutions Sent Mayor and City Council. At the last meeting of the Women's club the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted and a copy forwarded the mayor and city council.

Portland Daily Journal was a monstrous volume of 23 pages of illustrated reading matter. It is a book of 23 pages, and contains a membership of 23 active and 10 honorary members.

PRaises OF THE CHRISTMAS JOURNAL

(Continued from Page Fourteen.) to the northwest, aided by the very favorable railroad rates and convention magnates already announced for Portland and the Pacific coast, every effort will be made to have the Missouri valley well represented at the exposition. At proper time strong advertising will be carried presenting the benefits of a trip and visit to the great northwest.

I am really astonished to learn of the wonderful resources of Oregon. I do hope I may be able to go to Oregon, that I may see all the good things I know to be there. There are hundreds of other letters, which have been received by the Portland Journal, and it is gratifying to find that the Journal for its enterprising in giving such a large, up-to-date, interesting and comprehensive edition of the resources of Oregon as did the Christmas number.
