COURT WAS MISLED IN BREYMAN CASE

His Testimony Was Heard By Grand Jury After He Had Been Indicted.

FOREMAN JOHNSON TELLS STORY OF PROCEEDINGS

Was Urged Not to Say Anything That Would Tend to Incriminate.

Why the facts in relation to the case against A. H. Breyman, charged with leasing a building for immoral purposes, were not brought to the attention of Presiding Judge George, when the court was asked to dismiss the indictment of the grand jury, has not yet been ascertained. The indictment was quashed by Judge George on the motion of Carey E. Mays, Breyman's counsel, on the ground that Breyman's constitutional rights had been violated when he was required to testify against himself before the grand jury.

"Mr. Breyman was not required to testify against himself," stated F. M. Johnson, foreman of the late grand jury, yesterday, when asked about the case. Mr. Johnson reviewed the proceedings, and asserted positively that Breyman was cautioned not to say anything that would bear on his own case. Mr. Johnson's statement was:

"The grand jury of which I was foreman first considered the evidence against A. H. Breyman and John Summerville, and voted on November 18 to return a true bill in their case. Breyman had not been called up to that time.

"We had competent legal advice that caused us to guard against violating any indictment by compelling a defendant to testify in his own case. We proceeded with caution in this instance. Having indicted Breyman and Summerville on November 18, we handed to District Attorney Manning on November 17 the data upon which he was to draw a formal presentation to the court.

"That closed the Breyman case, so far as we were concerned, and it was then the duty of the district attorney to act. He seemed reluctant to do so, and did not want to draw the Breyman-Summerville indictment.

"We desired information concerning the person who was then conducting the Paris house, so we called Breyman before the grand jury and told him frankly that we wished to ask him only one question, and that he was not required to answer, if he thought to do so would tend to incriminate himself in any particular. He answered that he desired to make a complete statement of the facts, as he had heard the grand jury proposed to indict him for leasing the Paris house.

"We insisted that he need not do so, and cautioned him repeatedly that he was not compelled to tell us anything, if he chose not to do so. He was still insistent that he tell everything, so we finally informed him that any statement he made would be voluntary, and it was to be understood that such was the case, and that it could not under the law be held that if he made voluntary statements he was in any manner erecting a bar to proceedings against himself.

"This was clearly understood, and our cautioning of him was the result of the legal information we had received, that the rights of the accused must always be respected.

"Then, he went on to relate the facts as already published in The Journal, doing so on his own volition. This was on November 25, nine days after the grand jury had voted to indict him.

"District Attorney Manning, several days later handed in the true bill, signed by himself, and it was filed with the court.

"The members of the grand jury were amazed when the indictment was quashed on the ground that Breyman had been compelled to testify against himself, for that is not the truth."

FIGHT FOR THE RIGHT, SUBJECT OF SPEECH

E. S. J. McAllister Will Address Sunday Club This Afternoon.

E. S. J. McAllister, the attorney for the Anti-Saloon league, who has been the leader of the local option forces in the fight at Salem against the amendment of the Local Option law, has been assured to speak before the Sunday club this afternoon. His subject is "A Fight for the Right." Mr. McAllister brings with him from the east a reputation as a very eloquent speaker, and his active participation in political affairs has shown him a man of resources. The music for the occasion will be furnished by the Ladies' Glee club of sixteen voices, from the Western Academy of Music, J. Adrian Epping, baritone, and Coulter's orchestra. A special feature of the afternoon will be a collection of the famous madonna and Christ pictures by Raphael, Titian, Hoffman and other great artists, which will be on exhibition in the auditorium.

The program in detail is as follows: Half-Hour Concert, Coulter's orchestra; Beautiful Isle of Somewhere, Ladies' Glee club; "Tear Not Ye, O Israel," Dudley Buck, J. Adrian Epping; "The Recessional," DeKoven, Ladies' Glee club; address "A Fight for the Right," E. S. J. McAllister.

Last Sunday afternoon the auditorium at Fourth and Yamhill streets was filled with young men between the ages of 18 and 25, but the meeting of the Sunday club today will be open to men of all ages. Program begins at 3 o'clock and no charge is made.

MRS. UNRUH WILL MAKE LONG STAY IN THE EAST

Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh, national lecturer for the W. C. T. U. and superintendent of the public school branch of the purity department, leaves tomorrow on an eight months' trip. She goes first to Union, in eastern Oregon, to hold a meeting, and thence to Idaho, where she will do some legislative work. Thence she will go to Iowa and Pennsylvania to talk before several women's colleges and in Philadelphia she will address a large meeting of teachers in the interests of public school work. Her long absence will be in Maine, where she will remain four months, lecturing before various assemblies under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The campaign there is being arranged for her by Miss Cornelia Dow, daughter of the great prohibitionist, Neal Dow.

Mrs. Unruh will visit the Evangeline country and part of Canada and will return in time to attend the national W. C. T. U. convention at Los Angeles, the first of November.

Peculiar Disappearance. J. D. Runyan of Butteville, O., laid the peculiar disappearance of his painful symptoms of indigestion and biliousness to Dr. King's New Life Pills. He says: "They are a perfect remedy for dizziness, sour stomach, headache, constipation, etc." Guaranteed at Red Cross Pharmacy, Sixth and Oak streets, on the way to the postoffice. Price 25c.

CAN SELL CHEAPLY BUT CANNOT SHIP

Lumber Shipments Must Be Made in American Bottoms, and Portland Hasn't Any.

LAW PART OF SCHEME TO HURT PORT'S INTEREST

If Transport Sheridan Comes Here, Opportunities Will Be Open to Local Merchants.

Although in competitive bidding Portland lumber mills can undersell Puget sound mills, it has been impossible for Portland lumbermen to sell lumber to the United States government since a law became effective about six months ago compelling all shipments of government supplies to be made in American bottoms. It is said at the office of the quartermaster, department of the Columbia, U. S. A., that this law was the result of a scheme concocted and promulgated the sound to defeat Portland's commercial interests.

If the transport Sheridan comes from Manila with the Fourteenth infantry and the Twelfth cavalry to Vancouver barracks she will not carry to Manila the Nineteenth infantry now quartered there. It is probable that a special transport will be sent to Portland to take the Nineteenth, and this vessel will also carry to the Philippines a large cargo of Portland lumber—the first Portland shipment for the United States government since the obnoxious law became effective.

Dispatches to The Journal say it has practically been decided at Washington to send the Sheridan from Manila to Portland, and that she will sail about March 15. No notification has yet been received at Vancouver barracks, where the Nineteenth infantry is waiting to take the voyage to the Philippines, to supply the vacancy caused by the return of the Fourteenth infantry. It is said the second squadron of the Twelfth cavalry will return also on the Sheridan, and will land at Portland, and from here be sent to a home station.

Nothing would be more agreeable to Portland lumber men than to see the Sheridan lumber mill members to sell Uncle Sam a large bill of lumber at this time. There is plenty of good lumber for sale in Portland.

The coming of the Sheridan, while it is in the character of a chance, is possible by the persistent fight waged by The Journal and other local influences to have Vancouver troop shipments made and received at Portland instead of by rail from sound ports—is now the less welcome, and lumbermen will appreciate the opportunity to load her with the best lumber and at the lowest prices obtainable anywhere in the world.

GENERAL NUI WILL GIVE ANOTHER SHOW

The big exhibition of Jiu-Jitsu to be given at Ringler's Physical Culture hall tomorrow night promises to be an event well worth seeing. General Nui, the clever Jiu-Jitsu man, with the full troupe of Royal Japanese performers, assisted by Professor Rippler, will demonstrate the wonderful holds, secret touches and twists that render helpless the most formidable antagonist. President Roosevelt would not praise Jiu-Jitsu so highly did he not believe in it, and the mere fact that upon his recommendation it is to be taught to our boys in blue is sufficient guarantee that it is all right.

A number of inquiries at the box office have been made regarding the presence of ladies at the performance. The management wishes to announce that the performance is for both sexes, nothing coarse or rough is seen throughout the exhibition, and the ladies will enjoy the work as much as the men. List of the physical culture girls from Ringler's school will attend. They are after portraits. Seat sale now in progress at hall, 309 Alder street.

The Great Rush in Building Seems to Keep Up

Yesterday was the busiest day in months with the well known firm M. J. Walsh & Co. Their lines are as follows: Gas and electric chandeliers, grates, mantels, wall, floor and bath room tiling, residence, store and factory electric light wiring and gas fitting. They also carry a complete stock of lighting supplies in gas and electric. Parties building should make it a point to see them at their show rooms, 343 Washington, or phone them.

Grandest display of true scenery ever seen—Portland at the corner of Third and Alder streets. On exhibition from 9 in the morning till 9 at night.

"THE HOME COMFORTABLE" HAS A BUCK'S HEATER

Cold weather has no terrors for the home that has one of our great comfort-giving and fuel-saving heaters. No matter how bleak and cold it is outside, there is always cheer and warmth in a room like the one we show here. Buck's Heaters are neat and compact, handsomely finished and the best that can be made. They radiate more heat and consume less fuel than any other heater made. We'll have more cold weather this winter—better be prepared for it by having a heater you can depend upon.

A Plea for Our Homes.

Portland, Feb. 11.—To the Editor of the Journal—What is to become of our homes—the very foundation of the world? The marriage tie is beginning to be a farce, home a place to stay away from and love and trust between husband and wife nearly an unknown quantity. Instead of each finding the real, true, heart-felt pleasure in each other's company, they go their separate ways, finding in clubs and receptions, or in parlous and such places as the Paris house, other companions and interests. God help the man or woman who even starts the downward road. Forgetting what may have been a happy past, they plunge deeper, ever farther into sin, until all hope of heaven and happiness is lost. It is not only themselves who suffer, but all their friends and loved ones are hurt by their downfall. To me, a pleasant, happy home with my loved ones around me, is as near an earthly paradise as this sin-worn world will ever know.

What is this world coming to when our boys and girls are in the streets or in the saloons? Yet can it be wondered at when fathers and mothers are careless of home and each other's interests? Let the little cares and annoyances go, be unheeded, help each other in joy and sorrow, sunshine and storm, be true to each other in thought, word and deed, then there will be no chance for so many ruined lives, broken hearts or unhappy homes. Both are generally to blame in the misunderstandings. Perhaps the husband drinks, beats his wife or is untruthful to her. Perhaps the wife is careless of her own and her home's appearance, caring more for dress and other men than for her husband. But no man who is worthy of the name and of a good, true wife will treat her in any way but with love and respect. No woman who is all a good, true woman ought to be, will flirt or do one act that will cast one stain on her own or her husband's honor. Because one does a wrong act is no reason for the other to forget the vows taken at the marriage altar. By helping each other to make life pleasant, it only helps to make the world better and to make marriage just what God intended it to be—one of joy and help to better the world. We who have children should set them a good example by being true to the very best there is in us. Each one knows right from wrong and we should teach our little ones that the glitter and glare of the saloons are only a trap for the unwary and the stepping stone to utter sin and degradation. May God help us all to do our very best to make home a resting place where husband and children will come instead of going from; a place where they will be happy and content and for them outside attractions will be second to their home. May each one in the homes throughout this broad land be sincere and true, then we will not be guilty of ruining our own or others' lives. There is always two sides to every question, no matter how good or bad, and in our own hearts we know which is the right one to choose.

A HOME LOVER.

For Single Span Bridge.

Portland, Feb. 10.—To the Editor of the Journal—The matter of open draws which appears to be of such trouble to the residents of the east side, can be obviated by the building of a structure over the draw upon which cars and foot passengers could at all times pass without waiting.

The draw to operate as it does and a span to be built above the draw to be strong and permanent, would be of sufficient height that all vessels could pass under at any stage of water.

Make the bridge independent of the draw. Keep business moving. The east side is of such proportions and importance to the west side that connect on is required without a broken circuit.
