Grand avenue between East Morrison and East Burnside streets may remain closed for many months. The property owners affected by the proposed improvement entered a remonstrance against a district assessment which defeated it. The Portland Consolidated has finished its portion of the trestle between East Stark and East Pine streets and replaced the old track with heavier iron. The trestle will not be planked until the property owners improve their portion of the street. Guard rails, similar to those on the Morrison street bridge, have been laid along the outside of the double tracks. Business houses south of Stark street are protesting over the closing of the thoroughfare, as all the traffic is thrown to Union avenue.

E. B. Dufur, a pioneer lawyer of Portland, after an absence of many years during which he has practiced law in The Dalles and discovered a placer mine near Gold Hill in southern Oregon, has returned to this city, and will resume his practice in partnership with E. H. Riddell. Mr. Dufur was county assessor of Multnomah county in the early 70's. He removed to eastern Oregon many years ago, and founded the town of Dufur, later going to The Dalles. Several years ago he went from there to Gold Hill, and began prospecting in the mountains of that district, finally locating a deposit of placer gold.

The entertainment of St. Mary's cathedral parishioners at the Armory last night was eminently successful and was attended by 700 persons. A supper was served between 6 and 8 o'clock and was well patronized. During the evening an excellent program was rendered. Dr. A. C. Smith delivered the opening remarks. Among those who sang were Mrs. Walter Reed, Miss Agnes Watt, Mrs. Lois MacMahon, Miss Kathleen Lawler, Mrs. Jordan Purvine, Mrs. Bertha Grimes, Mrs. Byron E. Miller and Mrs. Lulu Dahl Miller.

Frank James, who violated the conditions of the pardon granted by Governor Chamberlain, was taken to Salem yesterday to begin the service of his five-year sentence. James was pardoned with the understanding that he would leave the country on a ship going to Australia, but instead went to Tacoma, where he held up a Chinese and robbed him of $17, overlooking $900 which was in his victim's pocket. James' sentence in the courts here was for robbery in an Albina saloon.

Many unique features for the school exhibit for the exposition are being planned by the rural schools. The Mount Tabor pupils will describe the Bull Run pipe line from the city to the headworks, and many photographs of scenes along the line and drawings illustrating the Portland waterworks will be placed on exhibition. The St. Johns school will describe the different manufacturing establishments in the town.

The trustees of Portland lodge No. 142 B. P. O. E., will receive bids for leases upon the basement, first and second floor of their new building now under construction on the corner of Seventh and Stark streets, either as a whole or in part. Address all communications to "Board of Trustees," 332½ Washington street, rooms 4 and 5.

A George Washington birthday party was given by Rev. and Mrs. Burkholder, of 160 Nebraska street, Fulton. An address was given on Washington. Several young men of the Y. M. C. A. spoke of the opportunities afforded by the association, and games were played. Miss Grace Gilbert sang.

I O U'S ARE BARRED BY SHERIFF WORD

Stringent Rule Insists That Taxes Must Be Paid in Good Hard Money.

REMARKABLE INCREASE IN RECEIPTS THIS YEAR

Owners of Real Estate Should Send in Their Property Lists for Revision.

"No one owning property in Multnomah county will be permitted to leave an I O U in the cash drawer for his taxes," said Chief Tax Collector Ferguson today. "This is the positive order of Sheriff Word and will be obeyed with favor to no one. Furthermore, no rebate will be allowed on taxes that are not paid before March 15. This rule is absolutely inviolable, as is also that which requires that 10 per cent penalty and interest be added to all taxes not paid on or before the first Monday in April.

"A rebate is allowed on all taxes paid in full on or before March 15, and taxes become delinquent after the first Monday in April, when the penalty and interest are added, unless one half of the tax be paid before that date. If this be done, time is allowed on the balance until the first Monday in October without penalty or interest."

Up to Saturday night $254,657.68 had been collected. Last year in the same period the collections were $158,482. The excess this year over last is $96,175.68.

"I expect that $2,000,000 will be collected before March 1," said Mr. Ferguson. "The people appear to have plenty of money with which to pay their taxes and they are coming in with it more readily than in the past."

The tax money collected is now turned over to the county treasurer every week. Up to Saturday night $172,330.31 had been receipted for by County Treasurer Lewis.

It is believed that the strict enforcement of the tax laws as to rebates and penalty and interest has been in part the cause of the liberal payment of taxes this year. Methods have been adopted that are similar to those in vogue in the conduct of a bank with daily balance sheets and monthly trial balances showing exactly the status of the various funds. Knowing that no favors will be extended to any one, the property owners are coming in promptly and securing their receipts.

Deputy Ferguson urges property owners to send in lists of their property, in order that statements of taxes due may be mailed to them.

"People should not wait until the final rush," said Mr. Ferguson, "when it will be difficult to handle the business. It will be to the interest of property owners to act with expedition and avoid coming too late to be served before the expiration of the period when rebates are allowed."

YOUNGEST DISTRICT ATTORNEY IN STATE

Clarence Crawford, Born at Dayton, Wash., and Is Twenty-Six Years Old.

Clarence Crawford, who has been appointed to fill the position of district attorney for the tenth judicial district, comprising the counties of Union and Wallowa, is the youngest district attorney in the state of Oregon. He was born in 1879, and is, therefore, 26 years of age. He was born in Dayton, Wash., but has spent the greater part of his life in Union county.

Clarence Crawford.

Mr. Crawford was a member of the class of 1903 of the Stanford university.

MISSOURI SOCIETY TO ENTERTAIN FRIENDS

Saturday evening the Missouri state society will entertain members of all other state societies of this city at the Knights of Pythias hall, Marquam building, when a literary program is to be rendered. President W. D. Fenton, of the Missouri society, has issued invitations for the event, which state that something is to be considered for the aid and advancement of the Lewis and Clark exposition.

Missouri citizens of Portland were among the first to organize a state society. They have been enthusiastic in regard to the work, especially since the exposition unfolded Oregon's opportunity to interest the nation. The line of effort that will doubtless be adopted will be to arouse citizens of Missouri to take the trip and arrange for their entertainment when they come to visit the fair.

BOLD HIGHWAYMAN UNDER LOCK AND KEY

Charles E. Marchand Arrested for Holding Up Three Men in Hoeft's Saloon.

SUPPOSED VICTIM SAID TO BE AN ACCOMPLICE

Robber Talked to Police Who Had His Description in Their Pockets.

In the arrest of Charles E. Marchand the police feel certain they have placed behind the bars the man who held up and robbed three persons Tuesday night in Albert Hoeft's saloon, at 763 Hood street. P. R. Treau, one of the men thought at first to have been held up, is also under arrest on the charge of being an accomplice of Marchand. Hoeft and Finley positively identify Marchand as the robber.

The case is most peculiar, an extraordinary feature being the appearance at police headquarters yesterday of Marchand and his wife, who claimed that some clothing had been stolen from their rooms at the St. Johns hotel. At this time detectives carried a description of the highwayman in their pockets. The theory for this bold act is that Marchand desired to satisfy himself that he was not under suspicion.

The arrest was made by Detectives Hartman and Vaughn, who say that this morning they discovered important evidence tending to clinch the case against Marchand. An automatic revolver was used by the robber, and the detectives assert they have discovered that it was purchased some time ago by Marchand.

Both men were taken into the police court this morning on charges of assault and robbery and being armed with a dangerous weapon. The preliminary examination was postponed to Saturday morning. Treau appeared nervous and ill at ease, but Marchand was cool and deliberate in word and action.

The bond of each prisoner was fixed by the court in the amount of $2,500. Attorney Murphy said that bail could not be furnished by Treau, and Marchand also confessed his inability to provide so large an amount.

Neither of the men will give the police a definite statement as to whether or not he was connected with the crime. Under the advice of lawyers they say what proof they have of their innocence will be furnished at their trials, and not before.

Marchand has been in the city five years. Treau has spent only a short time here. The men say they met at Kelso, Wash., where they agreed to form a copartnership in the laundry business. Marchand is aged 28 years and Treau 24 years.

RISKY SORT OF REPENTANCE.

"Repentance That Need Not Be Repented Of" will be the subject of the evangelistic address at the revival services tonight at the First Christian church, corner Park and Columbia streets. This is the fourth of the series on "God's Part and Man's Part in Salvation." "The Penitent's Plea" is the subject of the special duet this evening. Song service begins at 7:30.

Card of Thanks.

SHE IS UNASSUMING BUT ENTHUSIASTIC

Mrs. Emma L. Lanphere Comes to Organize the Retail Clerks of Portland.

BELIEVES THERE IS GOOD FIELD FOR LIFE WORK

Has No Quarrel With Citizens Alliance, Which Is Her Very Good Friend.

At the Perkins hotel is a comely, unassuming guest, firm of purpose and enthusiastic in her work. On the hotel register is Mrs. Emma L. Lanphere; on her card and in the labor world in which she wields influence she has the high-sounding title of International Organizer of the Retail Clerks' Protective association.

Mrs. Lanphere is here for the purpose of uniting the 7,000 retail clerks of Portland into a mutual, fraternal organization for their assistance and improvement.

"Portland, I think, offers splendid opportunities for our work," she said this morning. "It is a great city and, as I am informed, has between 7,000 and 8,000 clerks eligible to membership in our association. Of course I can't expect to induce all to become members, but out of that number we should secure a good share."

Mrs. Emma L. Lanphere.

Branches Do Not Flourish.

The Retail Clerks' Protective association was nominally in existence in this city before the arrival of Mrs. Lanphere. An organization was effected several years ago but has not advanced as becomes a real, live, branch chapter, according to Mrs. Lanphere. It has possibly 20 members.

"I don't know why it hasn't more members," she said, "but every one knows that branch organizations, if left to themselves, will not flourish like the green bay tree. They must be cultivated and nourished."

Strange as it may seem, Mrs. Lanphere and the Citizens' alliance are fast friends. The name of the International Retail Clerks' association may not suggest it, but just the same it is a union and is conducted along the lines of the most approved organization.

"We have never had any trouble," she said. "In whatever towns I have been we have worked harmoniously. They seem to understand that they themselves are an employers' association just as we are an employes' association. They have actually helped me in my work, and we consider each other very good friends."

Elements Do Not Harmonize.

In her work in Portland Mrs. Lanphere has encountered a proposition that requires much of strategy and cunning generalship. She has discovered that here, as everywhere else, the girls in dry goods stores don't get along very well with their brothers in clothing, shoe, furnishing and hat stores.

"Whenever two factions do not agree or get along well together, we organize separate chapters or branches. That is what I hope to do here," Mrs. Lanphere continued. "But I don't mean to say that there is any real difficulty here. But it is a rule that has been prescribed by the international and must be followed."

Mrs. Lanphere believes that those who employ labor have the right to say how long their places of business shall remain open and at what hours.

"It is pretty generally observed that the best houses close at 6 o'clock in the evening," she said, "but we have no objections to their remaining open as long as they please. We have the right to say how many hours we will work and for how much money we will work. If the employers want their stores open longer than that we offer no objections to their securing extra assistance."

There will be a meeting of the retail clerks of Portland next Tuesday evening. At that time an organization will be perfected and Mrs. Lanphere hopes to complete her labors in this city in two weeks. She came from San Francisco, where she had phenomenal success.

CAMP AT GEARHART PARK.

After two weeks at Gearhart park in July, the entire National Guard of Oregon will probably go into camp for three days at the Lewis and Clark fair grounds. The camp at Gearhart park has not been definitely decided upon, but it is said the trip will very probably be made.

"Because," answered the Russian, confidently, "we have some ships they haven't yet sunk."

STIRS POLICE FORCE TO ACT

Civic Federation Will Want Help From Hunt and His Men.

MERCHANTS MUST KEEP THE SIDEWALKS CLEAR

Instructions Are Given Patrolmen to Cause Arrests If Necessary.

Chief of Police Hunt this morning announced that because the Civic federation has turned its attention to keeping sidewalks cleared of obstructions, policemen will hereafter be obliged to see that the city ordinance is respected. This instruction was given the men after a conference with General Charles F. Beebe, police commissioner.

General Beebe was at the police station early this morning and was closeted with Chief Hunt in the latter's private office for a half hour. At the expiration of that time Chief Hunt walked out, and facing the policemen in line, said:

"The Civic federation has taken in hand the cleaning up of the city's streets and sidewalks. Hereafter you will be required to do your duty in this matter and to make arrests where obstructions are not removed from sidewalks after you have given the persons responsible a warning."

Numerous complaints have been lodged with the police by citizens for some time on account of business men crowding sidewalks with wares so as to make it inconvenient and awkward work to pass their stores. Contractors are said to be the worst offenders in this respect, in many instances completely blocking the sidewalks and leaving them in such condition long after the necessity for it had passed.

Members of the force say it is impossible to keep sidewalks unobstructed on account of the big territory which each has to cover. A few days ago four or five men were taken off beats and placed in plain clothes by the chief, in the effort to stop the epidemic of crime now raging in the city. This leaves the city in worse condition as regards a patrol system than it was previously.

It is a fact that yesterday only two men patrolled the district bounded by Pine street, the river front, Fulton park and Fifth street. One man had to patrol the district included between Jefferson and Glisan streets and Fifth and Twelfth streets. The whole territory north and west from Twelfth and Glisan streets is also patrolled by one man. Three fourths the burglaries of recent date have occurred in residence districts practically not patrolled.

A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of A. J. Bingham, a building contractor, on the charge of obstructing the sidewalk in front of the building occupied by the Union Meat company.

TRINITY CHURCH HAS CAPITAL PROGRAM

Trinity church has long been famous for its delightful entertainments which figure prominently in the social life of Portland, and the affair tomorrow evening at Parsons' hall promises to keep up the high standard. The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. The management is fortunate in securing Rosemary Glosz Whitney for a number on the program. Mrs. Whitney's splendid soprano easily won her favor at the Mary Adell Case concert Monday night and some will attend the entertainment tomorrow merely to greet her second appearance in Portland.

Dr. William M. Campbell, well known to many Portland audiences, will also sing. The program will conclude with the laughable farce "Box and Cox." Robert McCracken will impersonate Box, and George Eastman, Cox. Mrs. Bouncer will be sustained by Louis G. Bruce. These men have experienced in greater or less degree the sensation of "awaking to find themselves famous," the morning after the Multnomah club amateur theatricals. Their names alone are assurance enough that the performance will be deliciously funny. Dancing will follow the program. The proceeds are to be devoted to the organ fund of Trinity church.

WOULD MAKE THIS A CITY BEAUTIFUL

Business Men Give Time to Discuss Needed Improvements in Portland.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS HOUSE WARMING

Campaign for Betterment of Conditions Will Be Carried on by Members.

At a house-warming given in the new home of the Portland chamber of commerce last evening, a civic improvement campaign was inaugurated by the appointment of a committee of seven to formulate plans to arouse public interest; to divide the city into districts and organize improvement clubs; to create a law committee that shall secure enactment of needed ordinances and look after their enforcement, and to regularly retain a paid attorney to prosecute offenders.

Speakers made enthusiastic addresses in support of this plan. President W. H. Wheelwright, in a welcoming address to the guests and members of the chamber, outlined the policy to be followed in the movement to clean up and beautify the city. He said that no citizen could fairly feel pride in a city for which nature had done so much, so long as its residents were content to leave nature to do it all. The people of Portland were eloquent in praise of the city's wonderful natural beauties, but they were extremely slow to improve and embellish those features that nature had supplied with a lavish hand. He praised the individuals and societies that had in the past made heroic efforts to beautify the city of Portland, but whose work had been rendered ineffectual by the apathy or indifference of the people, who seemingly were satisfied to drink in the grandeur of distant views, while overlooking unsightliness closer in. He proposed to work a change in these conditions by revolutionizing public sentiment. This work, he said, could be done through the chamber of commerce.

C. E. S. Wood seconded Mr. Wheelwright's suggestion, and said he could see in his mind's eye the proposed city beautiful, whose inhabitants, departing to the heavenly shore, would make invidious comparisons on arriving at the pearly gates; and who, on looking about at the gold-paved streets and eternal mansions, would involuntarily exclaim: "Why, this city is not as well improved as Portland."

He discussed industrial conditions and denied the right of railroad monopolies to make arbitrary rates for transportation. Economic justice and freedom, he said, were the center of gravity around which all human advancement has revolved throughout the history of the world.

Charles A. Emory, attorney for the San Francisco Citizens' Alliance, spoke on the work of the alliance. He said its purpose was not to disrupt unionism, but to correct its abuses, and prevent the tyranny that it sometimes engendered in the industrial world. He said that by reason of their avowed character and purposes unions lacked conservatism and balance, and were often unreasonable and arbitrary in their demands, restricting the right of individuals to work where and under such conditions as the individual had a right to chose for himself. He said there were two forms of monopoly—one of money and the other of labor unionism, and that each was as dangerous as the other. He cited recent occurrences at the exposition grounds as examples of unjust demands by organized labor.

MORE BUILDING THAN CITY HAS SEEN BEFORE

Scanning Plans and Specifications Interferes With Regular Duties of Fire Chief.

There is greater activity in building now than ever before in the history of the city. This is shown by the number of building permits issued by the city auditor, which have averaged a dozen a day this month.

Architects and builders have swamped the fire chief's office with plans and specifications for proposed buildings to be inspected, and the chief and his three assistants are at work on them every minute they can spare from their duties in the department, but they are unable to handle all that come in.

Chief Campbell is very anxious that the city council should pass the ordinance providing for the appointment of a building inspector to inspect the plans and specifications of buildings, and to see that the building ordinance is enforced.

"It is impossible for us to take care of this work," said he. "Our time should be devoted to our duties in the department instead of being spent looking over plans and specifications for buildings. If we do this work we have to neglect something else. There is enough work to keep one man inspecting these plans and specifications. If they appoint an inspector, in our travels through the city we will assist him in enforcing the ordinance."

Few permits are issued for large business houses; nearly all are for cottages and residences, averaging in cost about $2,500 each. The largest number are being erected on the east side.

BYRNE'S UNLUCKY NIGHT.

Edward Byrne, proprietor of a saloon at 135 North Tenth street, was attacked last night by unknown assailants. He declares he was in his saloon when a large stone, hurled through the window, struck him on the head. He reported to the police that he was also robbed of a small sum of money last night.
