

WILLIE WESTINGHOUSE IMPROVES PAPA'S PATENT FIRE EXTINGUISHER

When they had a fire at Willie's house the extinguisher failed to work.

So Willie made a shaking machine to stir the chemicals up.

Then he, Papa and the Minister, went out to the barn to try it.

There was no trouble about starting the machine. It worked well.

Only it shook too hard; nearly tore Papa apart and soaked the Minister.

The language Papa used to Willie gave the Minister another awful shock.
