WE LOST MUCH GOLD

Freestone Arrest Developed Fact That Heavy Shortage Was Known for Months.

BULLION REGAINED WAS ONLY A SMALL PORTION

Management Has Been Checking Up Between Assay Office and the Clean-Up.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Juneau, Alaska, April 21.—The arrest of L. A. Freestone, assessor at the Treadwell 240-stamp mill, on Douglas Island, has caused more than ordinary interest, first because he is an old employee and next from the fact that the management of Mrs. Freestone's losses have been sustained for two years. After the arrest of Mrs. Freestone in Seattle, where she deposited $200 worth of bullion in a local bank, Freestone was taken in custody here, and when his place was searched, a retort was found in the house, where he had been reducing the amalgam. He said that he had been taking amalgam but a short time, but the management believes Freestone guilty of more serious thefts.

It developed in the preliminary hearing of Freestone that the Treadwell company has been working for two years in the mill, and that the stealing has been confined to the 240 and one other mill. Last month the total shortage in the 240 mill alone amounted to $2,400, or total value of $2,400, the amalgam being worth $2.50 an ounce.

There is a complete check system between the assay values of the ore fed to the mill and the clean-up, minus the amount lost in the mill. In the 240 mill the clean-up was finished Wednesday for this month and there is already an established shortage of $200.

Two years ago the management had one guilty man nearly trapped, but he got away and there was not such a great shortage the next month. Freestone had evidently lost much of his gold from the amalgam on the idea of the retort as it could be plainly seen on the crude implement exhibited in the commissioner's court. The amount of bullion that Mrs. Freestone was using at once, probably worth $15 or $16 an ounce.

After Superintendent Kinzie and Mr. Maloney had been examined the defendant waived a statement and was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of larceny. The two witnesses testified that Freestone had acknowledged that he took the amalgam from the iron and steel in the mill in the 240 mill, but that he had not taken any from the plates, and that he had said that it was his first offense.

PORTLAND MARBLE CO. ERECTING BUILDINGS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Ketchikan, Alaska, April 21.—Manager Francis Clark, of the American Coral Marble company, which is operating a quarry on Prince of Wales Island, is hauling large quantities of material to the city at Doherty where he is erecting necessary buildings to accommodate the crew and to prosecute the work. He has been shipping lumber from here by barge, towing with a gasoline launch, and a considerable crew of men is engaged erecting the buildings and getting everything shaped for stripping and breaking the marble. Machinery for the quarry is expected in a short time, when the crew will be further increased and the big deposit will be transformed into a working quarry, ready to deliver to any market of the world a product pronounced equal to the best commercial marble of this country. This marble will take the finest polish, and it is said the preliminary work has opened many colorings.

EQUITY MAY ENLARGE THE MILLING PLANT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Prairie City, Alaska, April 21.—Manager W. J. Hughes was at the Equity mine recently looking over the property, where everything is in readiness for the season run. A rumor was current to the effect that the Equity company would put in a large mill in the present year, but the management has not been quoted in this respect yet. It is known that the result of work the past winter has been highly satisfactory, and that there is more than enough ore to keep the five-stamp plant busy for months. The general belief locally is that a larger mill is to be put in this year, but a definite statement can be made of this fact yet.

While driving back to Baker City, Mr. Hughes' vehicle was overturned near Austin, and he was injured rather seriously. The extent of the injury is not known here yet, but it is understood to have been a fracture of one arm.

BELLMAN TO TESTIFY IN CALIFORNIA SUIT

L. R. Bellman, manager of the Turnagain Arm Mining company, operating in California, returned from the Pacific Coast yesterday, where he had been called in a suit involving certain interests of the California. He will be absent but a short time, returning direct to Sumpster.

Operations in the mountain districts were never brighter, says Mr. Bellman. All work has settled down to the substantial order, and the mine owners are increasing their tonnage for the Sumpster smelter, which has had a wonderful influence in quickening production everywhere. The general outlook for the district is encouraging, and it is the belief that this year will see the best results in a material way ever witnessed in the Blue mountains.

PRAIRIE DIGGINGS IS IN ACTIVE LIST AGAIN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Prairie City, Or., April 21.—Superintendent Joseph Waddell of the Prairie Diggings is opening that property for the heavy work. A crew of 18 men has been taken to the mine, and it is the purpose to double this number as soon as the shaft workings are unwatered and work on the two main levels can be begun. It is also said that Superintendent Waddell will sink the shaft 400 or 500 feet, it is about 300 feet deep, with two levels. The three large veins crossing the Prairie Diggings group will be crossed and drilled on in the lower levels, slopes will be opened, and some of the accessible, the management is confident of getting the 21-stamp mill in commission $250 as full capacity.

Two of the Prairie Diggings veins have a width of 20 to 50 feet where opened at the surface, and in the surface work are said to have had quite uniformly distributed values, which averaged low grade. The third vein is narrower, and in all work done there had higher values. All milling done there in the past was from adits, where little depth could be attained, and the commercial reserve was quickly exhausted. It is believed that when the shaft workings connect with the three veins, the entire milling plant can be kept constantly busy and will yield a good margin of profit.

IRISH COPPER IS RICH

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
John Day, Or., April 21.—Copper is being opened in a new district 15 miles from Irwin, a small town of Grant county. The first specimens brought in were exceptionally rich, some carrying the native metal in considerable proportion. One specimen had a large suggestion of native copper, and it is said by those who have gained information of the new properties that all surface work is encouraging. Several local men are interested, and some have gone to the district to prosecute development. Quartzburg of this county, and a southerly extension of the Blue Mountain mineral zone, is the most promising copper district opened in eastern Oregon, save the territory near Snake river, adjacent to the Seven Devils and at Imbaha.

MINING NEAR TALLIMA

William E. Curtis, son of Professor Curtis of Berkeley, has returned after a considerable period in northern California, where he and associates have been prosecuting work on a group of copper prospects. The group is near the workings of the Waldo and Tallima companies just over the state line. Mr. Curtis brought in some good specimens of oxide ores, and says that arrangements are being made to have more extensive development done.

HEAVY FOG ON KEELEY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Ketchikan, Alaska, April 21.—A material increase of the force of miners employed at the Keeley property, south of eastern Alaska, has been made recently, and the management is arranging to conduct operations this season on a large scale. Several men have been taken from here, and others are to follow. The Keeley mine and smelter will be running full blast again soon.

BIG EXHIBIT FROM BENTON SCHOOLS

Display of Finest Polished Oregon Woods Arranged by Pupils for Fair.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Corvallis, Or., April 21.—Superintendent Demman today announced that he has now on display in his office at the court house a part of the work that will go to Portland as an exhibit from the Benton county schools. Only a part of the specimens have been received, but more are coming in day by day. One of the exhibits that is especially attractive is a collection of polished woods sent by the schools of Mount View and of Bellefontaine. The woods are of Oregon growth.

A quilt six feet square sent by the Philomath public school is a complete masterpiece of the art of woodwork, being worked in with silk. Another line of work by the seventh grade of the Philomath school is a series of outlines maps showing Oregon's river system, its cities and the distribution of the principal animals and minerals. Relief maps made of salt and cornstarch are also part of the school exhibit.

Corvallis' public schools have furnished a complete exhibit demonstrating the features of the course of study. With each subject treated there is an attractive frontispiece of pen and ink work, the work of a student. Among the pen and ink drawings is also a set illustrating the life and career of the western Oregon Indian, Webb Testament. Sketches of the hop fields in pen and ink are also a part of the Corvallis exhibit.

The Alsea schools have sent the story of Elias, illustrated in needle work. Drawings and needlework have been received from districts No. 43 and 74, near Albany.

Maps came from King's Valley, from Monroe, Summit, Wells, Glodgett and others.

BANK WAS INSOLVENT WHEN IT WAS ABSORBED

(Journal Special Service.)
Baker City, April 21.—Joseph Reed, receiver of the defunct Bank of Sumpster, for the looking of which Roy H. Miller was recently brought back here, said last night that his attorneys were not worrying as to the outcome and while the defrauded depositors might not get all that was coming to them, there certainly would be much more than supposed. Miller on returning here refused to have anything to do with uncle J. W. Scriber, the La Grande banker. Notwithstanding the lack of cordiality, Scriber secured bonds for the young man and also an attorney.

The expert's work has revealed the fact that the bank was really insolvent when Miller took it over, but it had been baited and the necessity for covering shortages in the other bank of which he was cashier and his uncle president caused him to reach for the bait.

EVANGELISTS PREACH IN NOTORIOUS RESORT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, April 21.—Dr. Chapman and his band of evangelists took possession of the Strand theatre, formerly the notorious Comique in the tenderloin district, shortly before midnight Wednesday and for two hours prayers, song and sermon took the place of gaudy variety. It was a scene never before seen in the restricted district and the police were forced to prevent 3,000 or more people attempting to crush their way into the place after standing room had all been taken up.
