

CRUSADE STARTED AGAINST LOTTERIES

Government Secret Service Men Raid Concerns Throughout the Country.

TRUNKS FULL OF TICKETS SEIZED AND CONFISCATED

Uncle Sam Stands to Win Prizes if He Draws the Lucky Number.

(Special Dispatch by Leased Wire to The Journal) Houston, Tex., April 22.—As a result of smooth work on the part of secret-service agents, the stockholders of the Little Mexican Lottery company, a fraudulent concern having headquarters at San Antonio, was arrested today at Denver with a trunk full of tickets. Today there have been arrests at Houston, San Antonio, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Evansville, and probably other points, taking in all whose names could be found connected with the game.

The postoffice department today made an effort to break up the operations of the big Mexican lottery in New Orleans. The office of the company was raided by secret-service men and police. Four men who were working in the office were arrested, and two others held as witnesses. In addition tickets of the value of $10,000 for the May drawing were taken possession of, and $1,350 in cash was also taken.

The local police have allowed the company to operate openly, and were surprised when the government officials raided the place. The capture of the tickets for the May drawing may cause the United States to win one of the biggest prizes, as the lottery people do not know the numbers of the tickets in possession of the officers, and the drawing will have to go just the same.

AGENT ARRESTED.

Indianapolis Purveyor of Lottery Tickets Taken Into Federal Custody.

(Special Dispatch by Leased Wire to The Journal) Indianapolis, Ind., April 22.—Loré C. Hammer, a widely known purveyor of lottery tickets, was arrested today by Deputy United States Marshal Boyd for selling tickets in a lottery. Hammer was arrested under the interstate commerce law, applied to the selling in one state of tickets in a lottery in another. He gave bond for $1,000 to appear for a hearing before United States Commissioner Unger next Saturday. When arrested Hammer had on his person more than 1,000 lottery tickets.

RAID CIGAR STORE.

Los Angeles Man Arrested and Ten Thousand Tickets Captured.

(Special Dispatch by Leased Wire to The Journal) Los Angeles, April 22.—Deputy United States Marshal Traeger today raided the cigar store of A. H. J. Greenwald, securing over 10,000 lottery tickets. A. H. Greenwald, the senior member of the firm, was not in the store at the time, but J. Greenwald was taken into custody on a charge of violating the United States laws prohibiting the handling of lottery tickets. He was taken before United States Commissioner Van Dyke and released on $2,000 bonds. This is the largest raid of this character ever made in this city.

FAIRBANKS IS HURT BY WOMEN'S POLITICS

Methods of Vice-President's Wife at Daughters' Congress May Endanger Husband's Future.

(Special Dispatch by Leased Wire to The Journal) Washington, April 22.—Women politicians in Washington aver that the methods of Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of the president, who is a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1940, have materially weakened his cause. It had been mapped out that if Mrs. Fairbanks is in control, she will have established a social headquarters in Washington and either herself, or through her candidate, Mrs. G. M. Sternberg, manipulated the social political pull in Washington, an important center for Vice President Fairbanks for the presidency.

The undercurrent story today at the D. A. R. congress is that Mrs. Fairbanks has been routed, and that the center of politics so far as the D. A. R. is concerned, will be in New York where Mrs. Donald McLean will control the salon.

The Foraker-Beveridge adherents for 1908 say that New York and Indiana and Maryland have been lost to Fairbanks by reason of the blundering of Mrs. Fairbanks at this D. A. R. congress.

The important thing done at the congress today was the adoption of a resolution violently opposed to Mormonism and favoring the unseating of Senator Bennet.

Mrs. Donald McLean gave a brilliant reception tonight at the Nesbitt house.

The congress adjourned at midnight tonight.

STILLMAN NOT BACKING MRS. POTTER'S VENTURES

(Copyright, Hearst News Service, by Leased Wire to The Journal.)

London, April 22.—Mrs. James Brown Potter's production of "Du Barry" upon which she spent a large sum, has not been a success, although it is the most gorgeous spectacle now on the London stage. Mrs. Potter has been singularly unfortunate as an actress-manager in London and has scored three failures at the Savoy theatre in rapid succession.

Unless the public suddenly awakes to the merits of "Du Barry" Mrs. Potter will sustain a very large financial loss. She is reported to be very depressed at her expensive failures to attract London to the Savoy under her management. Her failure may mean that she will be compelled to accept a standing offer to appear in the vaudeville circuit of New York at a salary of $2,000 a week.

Mrs. Potter does not care for New York vaudeville, despite the financial temptation. Her appearance there would probably not please her daughter, Mrs. James Stillman, wife of the son of the Standard Oil banker, and sprogs of this, Mrs. Potter has caused the publication of a statement denying that her unfortunate theatrical ventures have been backed by the Stillman millions.

The little 40-cent republic of Panama is too small a piece for our John Barrett, anyway.

STRUGGLE FOR LIFE

ness, his jaws scrunching the gun which he shows everlastingly. It is steadily conscious of the girl at the table behind him and again and again his eyes will stray over to her to note the effect of this or that bit of evidence on her courage or spirits. And the girl, placid or frowning, as the fortunes of the day ebb and flow, can seldom take her eyes from the broad, black or rugged profile of the intensely masculine prosecutor.

Make him though she must, as one would hate a mortal enemy, he nevertheless exerts over her a powerful fascination—the spell perhaps in which a cat holds a bird that flutters and chirps, but is powerless to move a muscle to escape the cruel claws. When you see her manifest fear of the man her self-possession is really marvelous. She seems to be determined that he or all others shall not learn that she is afraid of him.

Actress Self Control.

When his head is swinging slowly around and she knows that the next moment he will be watching her furtively out of the tail of one of those searching blue eyes, she straightens up, smooths away the frown from her forehead, adjusts her hair and looks calmly and steadily in some other direction, and Rand, noticing the change in her, will smile grimly as if to say: "Never mind, young lady, you will not be so defiant when all this is over."

Only once in the former trials did the two come face to face and battle frankly for victory. That was when Nan was on the stand and in that fight doing that is masculine and doing all that is feminine, strength, ruggedness, determination, against subtlety, intuition and quick-wittedness, the girl won.

Seated by the Girl.

That was the only day when Rand's manner, as he left the courtroom, was a confession of defeat. He took that lesson to heart and it will be interesting to see how he does about his work when again he is called on to try to turn the girl's story against herself.

Monday will come Rand's chance. Then it will be that striding back and forth across the courtroom, head high, arms extended and straggling with excitement, he will tell the jury how he expects to prove that the little girl behind him committed a murder, why he believes she did it and what manner of woman she has been. And Nan Patterson, without her father to pat reassuringly on her arm, with nothing to shield her from the scathing denunciation as it falls from the lips of the prosecutor and with a woman's weakness, for all her bold exterior, will need all the courage she can summon, to save her from collapse.

Prisoners Get Washed.

Double guards have been placed upon Nan Patterson in the Tombs. Night and day until the jury at her trial gives its verdict in open court, keepers will take turns in watching her. Warden Flynn does not know that thought of suicide was ever entertained by Nan Patterson, but he does know of certain situations, some conditions which have developed since she has been under his charge which convinced him that he would be acting wisely to watch her carefully.

With this end in view the warden removed her to the hospital cells. Nan occupied cell No. 1 and Mrs. Julia Smith, her sister, cell No. 2. The warden believed that Nan's mental condition would be benefited by the presence of her sister.

Pits of Despondency.

Rarely, if ever, has there been a prisoner in the Tombs, according to those who have seen Nan Patterson daily, subject to such despondent moods. During these attacks which come on without any apparent outward cause, she succumbs entirely and her mental state has been such at intervals as to occasion alarm. The prisoner has been carefully watched by Prison Physician McGuire and it is due to his suggestion that she was sent to the hospital. The woman was in a much more nervous state today than she has been at any time since she became a prisoner, and it is expected that she will break down under the strain.

Nan was in one of her despondent moods when Lawyer Abe Levy called this afternoon, but forced a smile when they met in Warden Flynn's office. The lawyer and client talked for two hours about the case. The hopeful words of Mr. Levy drove away her depression and she went back to the hospital apparently her old-time self.
