No Reason For It When Portland Citizens Show the Way.

PLAYGROUNDS ARE TOO SMALL IN THIS CITY

Woman's Club Has Started Interesting Discussion of Question Important to Youth.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes or any kidney ills, when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Portland citizen says:

Mrs. John Shewalter, wife of John Shewalter, retired farmer, of 804 East High street, says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to any one and have done so whenever the opportunity has presented itself. While I have had some kidney complaint the most of my trouble was located in the small of my back directly over my kidneys. Oftentimes I would have attacks of dizziness and when stooping a blur would come before my eyes. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills through an advertisement I procured a box. Since using them the backache has disappeared and the spells of dizziness have entirely left me."

BUSINESS BANNERS HIDE MOUNT HOOD

Pleasing Feature of Portland's Landscape Destroyed by Various Advertising Devices.

WHEELWRIGHT PROTESTS TO STREET COMMITTEE

Permits to Obstruct View Must Be Had From City Council Hereafter.

There will be so many banners on Washington street that you won't be able to see Mount Hood when you look down the street," declared President W. D. Wheelwright of the chamber of commerce, who appeared before the street committee of the council to protest against the granting of permits for mercantile banners in the business districts. "This banner business is increasing to such an extent that it is becoming a nuisance."

The license department has been issuing licenses for mercantile banners on payment of a fee of $2 a week, and merchants have not had to go through the formality of getting permits from the city council. City Attorney McNary stated that this was not in accordance with the ordinances, but that a permit would first have to be issued by the council.

COUNTRY HAS MALE CASTE, SAYS DR. WISE

"The moment you begin to speak of the common people, democracy ceases and the nation merges into the outer crust of autocracy," was the keynote of an address on the subject, "Caste and Class in America," delivered at the Temple Beth Israel last night by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Dr. Wise told of the history of caste and class and sounded a warning against the smothering of the democracy under the distinctions of wealth, culture and position. If the plans of the military and naval leaders, he said, harmonized, there would be a military and naval caste in this country as there is in Germany and Austria. Already this country has the male caste, the women are treated as menials. The present day desire to limit suffrage was an evidence of caste tendency, as was also the desire of the avaricious man that the child of the miser should be educated as a miser and the children of the toiler should be taught to work in the sweatshops. All tended to the upbuilding of caste. Dr. Wise said the cure of caste was the perpetuation of a true spirit of philanthropy and the revival of the true spirit of democracy.

AND AIR, FLOWERS AND LAWN NEEDED

Principals, Teachers and Parents Say Pupils Should Have More of These.

PLAYGROUNDS ARE TOO SMALL IN THIS CITY

Woman's Club Has Started Interesting Discussion of Question Important to Youth.

Principals and teachers and parents of pupils have expressed hearty approval of the movement for more fresh air and playgrounds for public school children in Portland, started by the educational department of the Portland Women's Club. Thirty-three letters were sent out asking for opinions on the question, and 17 replies have been received.

All the principals who responded expressed hearty approval of outdoor recess under proper conditions. The opinions generally were that where the play space was limited, as in many of the largest schools of the city, outdoor exercises were practically impossible.

In regard to the question of the size of the playground, only one principal who replied "had grounds sufficiently large to accommodate all his pupils at play. It was stated that from one to two acres of ground was needed by the various schools of the city. All agreed that free play supervised by teachers was better, where recesses were so short, than regular games.

One principal of the 17 did not believe in gardens. All stated that without much more ground it would be impossible to have gardens located on the school grounds. Concerning school grounds, a principal said:

"There is a most urgent need in our schools for an opportunity for self-expression of the child. The present courses of study are so planned that there is almost no opportunity for the play of the child's creative activity. The basic material part of his education is lacking. In the olden times this basis was formed by the activity of the child in his home. He was not simply a consumer; he was a producer as well, and played an important part in the economy of the home. Social conditions have so changed that this important factor is lost, and should be supplied in so far as possible by the course of study. Any attempt in this direction are worthy of encouragement."

The members of the committee feel greatly encouraged in their work by the reports they have received. In an interview one member stated:

"I wish to say that the replies show that the teachers are generally well informed and abreast of the times in educational matters, and that they are doing the best possible under the circumstances, and look forward to a time when playgrounds and flower gardens will be provided, not only in connection with the schools, but throughout the city, to be used by our little ones after school and during the vacations. At present the committee will recommend no radical change, but when one is recommended it will be gratifying to feel that teachers and patrons may work together harmoniously in a way that what benefits one benefits all, and that the education which omits play is not a thorough one."
