

HUGGED AND KISSED BUT DID NOT LOVE

Mrs. Goldie's Breach of Promise Suit Against Former Husband Has Warm Breath.

ONE-TIME SPOUSE TELLS HIS SIDE OF STORY

Drunken Debauch at Father's Grave, and Visits That Were Not Proper.

While on the witness stand and undergoing a searching examination by the attorneys for Jessie L. Goldie, his former wife, William Goldie declared that he never promised her that he would marry her, and that therefore he had not been guilty of breach of promise and she was not entitled to the $10,000 damages she claimed because he blighted her affections. He admitted that after she had secured the divorce from him in Chicago he corresponded with her and frequently visited her. He had none of the letters she had written to him because he burned them.

Over the objection of the plaintiff's attorney he was allowed to testify regarding their contents. One of them stated that Mrs. Goldie was not well, and begged him to call and see her. When he answered her letters he addressed them to "Mrs. William Goldie" and called her "My Dear Jess." When he visited her he put his arms around her at least once and kissed her. He took these liberties, although he had not the least affection for her, and never intended to marry her. Once, when he was in Chicago he and she went out to the cemetery where his father was buried; they were "full." He did not deny that he had resumed marital relations. He admitted that he had married again after he had completed his work at the St. Louis fair where he held some concessions, but he did not tell the name of his second wife. It developed, though, that she came from Council Bluffs, Iowa. Mrs. Goldie concluded her side of the case yesterday afternoon. She had obtained the divorce from Goldie on the grounds of adultery and drunkenness, and had been awarded attorney's fees of $2,000. She visited him in St. Louis, and he visited her in Chicago, and begged her to come back to him. He agreed to marry her after the fair, and some of his letters to her told her to take good care of herself. After the fair he came to Portland and she followed him. She called on him at the Imperial hotel and met the second Mrs. Goldie, who told Goldie that if he had deceived his first wife he should do something for her. He asked the wit-

The opening argument for the plaintiff was made by W. R. McGarry this morning after Judge George had denied a motion of the defense that the jury be instructed to bring in a verdict for the defendant. C. E. S. Wood followed for the defense. C. M. Ideman closed the case for the plaintiff this afternoon.

CLEANER MARKETS REWARD OF LABOR

Deputy Health Inspector Lilian Tingle Finds Much to Commend in Shops.

RETAILERS WILLING TO ACCEPT SUGGESTIONS

Housewives Are Urged to Patronize the Stores Where Food Is Properly Kept.

The crusade for clean markets has begun in earnest, and yesterday Miss Lilian Tingle, deputy health officer, started on her tour of inspection. Everywhere she met courtesy and willingness, even eagerness, to do her bidding. The reception accorded her differed markedly from that received on the preliminary trips when she first learned the true state of affairs that resulted in her appointment. Whether it was because many changes had been made and the market men were better prepared for visitors, or whether it was because the rain had settled the dust and they could point with pride and say, "No dust flies here to settle on our meats," or whether the gleaming floor, which in previous days could poke their noses, now in almost every place they are raised on boxes and shelves.

One of the leading grocers, however, had not followed this suggestion, and the officer, naturally, at her dignity suggested a change because of stray dogs. Dogs Did Not See Signs. "We never have dogs in here," the clerk said, in a superior tone. "Maybe not, but you have your vegetables out in the doorway, and dogs passing by will want to investigate." The clerk was gently tolerant. "No, the dogs never come into the doorway, either."

The officer looked about to see if there was a "No trespassing allowed" sign for dogs, or a cheap boy with a broom to drive them away. Seeing nothing, she naturally concluded that habit had become strong with the canine race, but as she started toward the proprietor's office, a dramatic thing happened. Two many-looking pups walked out the store, and the men pointed proudly to porcelain vessels of olives and pickles, neatly covered with glass, fairly shining with its one-week-old newness, and the attractiveness of such an arrangement. FIRE AT POTTER IN SELF DEFENSE

Dickens Tells Story of Crime—Thought Potter Was Drawing a Revolver.

The defense began this morning by putting forward witnesses to testify to the bad character of Potter, Dickens, the aged defendant, was then placed upon the stand and told the story of the crime. Dickens testified that he shot Potter because the latter had ruined his 14-year-old daughter. When the matter came to his ears, the defendant had hunted Potter up and the latter had admitted the accusations made, and said that he loved the girl and would keep away from her until she was 18 years old, and then marry her. Potter had violated this promise, and Dickens, in anger, shot him. Potter was arrested by the police and taken to the jail. Dickens was then placed upon the stand and told the story of the crime.

Murdered Man Violated Pledge to Remain Away and Insulted Aged Prisoner.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) McMinnville, Ore., May 4.—The defense completed its testimony this morning in the trial of John T. Dickens for the murder of Marvin S. Potter at Sheridan, Yamhill county, November 18 last, and rested its case. Closing arguments are being made this afternoon and the case will go to the jury before night. DEADLY BLOW AT SPECIAL PRIVILEGE

Cruel Trust Decides Drivers Must Not Buy Drinks With Members' Money.

Not one of your ordinary trusts that gobbles up all competitors, but a trust that prevents the expenditure of money over the polished counters of saloons on account of patronage given by these saloons. A week ago the four firms in this city that furnish the saloons with mineral water—that is, syphons from which the festive high-ball is made—got together and decided not to allow their solicitors any further expense accounts. For which reason there is the chance to pay to have a drink. After which courtesy he could conscientiously ask the bartender how many dozens of syphons he could use during the day. Usually he got an order.

PAVEMENT BETWEEN RAILS TO BE REPAIRED

Officials of the Oregon Water Power & Railway company have assured City Engineer Wanser that the pavement between the railway tracks on First street between Madison and Burnside streets will be repaired immediately. The Portland Consolidated Railway company is said to be planning to abandon its tracks on the street, and that company will have no share in the improvement. Property-owners along the thoroughfare have been protesting for weeks against the condition of the pavement between the car rails. There were deep holes everywhere and it was dangerous for teams to drive over it. Hardly a day passed that accidents caused by the condition of the pavement did not occur. On First street from Madison street south the tracks are used by the Portland Consolidated Railway company only, and the street committee of the executive board has threatened to spike rails across the tracks to prevent the company from operating cars over the road unless the street is improved according to the provisions of the railway franchise. It is expected that definite action about this matter will be taken at the meeting of the city executive board tomorrow afternoon.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Evangelistic services were begun at the Epworth M. E. church, corner of Twenty-third and Irving streets, last evening. There was a good attendance and singing, led by the singing, led by Mr. Elliott, was full of enthusiasm. Mr. McComb spoke from I Kings, xi:40. "Men," he said, "possess power to do good by means of intellectual ability, wealth and influence, but he who is respectful of his opportunities is as responsible to God as was the faithless servant in the text upon whom the king pronounced judgment. The great object of Christian zeal should be the salvation of souls, and for neglect of this object God holds us accountable." Mr. McComb's subject for this evening is: "The power of God illustrated in the conversion of Jerry McManly." The song singing of Mrs. J. S. Hamilton was a much appreciated feature of the service.
