ANOTHER STEAMER IN PORTLAND TRADE

North Pacific Steamship Company Buys the Newport for Coast Business.

THIS THE HOME PORT AND WILL RUN TO EUREKA

Competition is Assured, and Lower Rates Will Benefit the Oregon Producers.

The North Pacific Steamship company, owner of the Roanoke, has purchased the steamer Newport from the Pacific Packing & Navigation company. She will be placed in commission at once between Portland and Eureka, stopping at key ports. The Newport is now at San Francisco, and is expected to start north tomorrow.

Portland will be her home and Eureka will be her southern terminus. She will make regular calls at Coos Bay, Tillamook, Crescent City and Yaquina. By going up the Coquille river to the town of that name she will come in direct competition with the Coos Bay, Roseburg & Eastern Railway company, which has long been in absolute control of the trade of that section. As a consequence it is expected that rate war will be precipitated between the rail and steamship companies.

The steamer will also be the means of opening up new markets for Portland merchants, heretofore all of the freight taken in these came from San Francisco. It was shipped on the Spreckels steamers to Marshfield and then sent by rail to inland points. The freight rates in this roundabout way were 18 a ton, from now on the new owners of the Newport say that the rates will be considerably less, but the schedule has not yet been made up.

It is stated that the steamer will make the round trip between here and Eureka every 15 days. With the Roanoke a weekly service will be maintained with the California city. The Roanoke it is explained, will continue on the Los Angeles route as heretofore, stopping at the several way ports. The Newport will act as a sort of feeder for her by opening up a trade with the small ports which the other coasters have been unable to reach.

The Newport has space for the accommodation of 40 passengers and can handle 300 tons of freight on a draft of 5.5 feet. Seattle, was formerly her home port. She was built at San Francisco in 1875, and is said to be one of the finest little steamers on the coast.

As she will invade territory hitherto controlled by the California & Oregon Coast Steamship company, owners of the Alliance, and the Spreckels interests of the Bay City, there is said to be no doubt that they will make an effort to force her off the route.

WHERE'S THIRD STEAMER?

Business Too Much for the Ships in the Coastwise Trade.

Laden with 1,900 tons of freight, the biggest cargo she ever carried, the steamer Columbia will sail tonight for San Francisco. The principal shipment consists of 1,000 tons of flour consigned to merchants in Central America. The balance is made up of food, grain and passenger list.
