

GARVIN'S PITCHING DAZZLES OAKLAND

McCredie's Men Take the Third Straight Game From Commuters.

RUNKLE'S PLAYING FEATURE OF GAME

Good Work of Portland Team Gratifying to the Fans of This City.

Portland 5, Oakland 2. Batteries—Graham and Byrne; Garvin and McLean. Portland continued the good work yesterday afternoon against Oakland and made it three straight from that aggregation. Yesterday was the fourth successive victory for the locals, having beaten San Francisco last Sunday afternoon, and from the splendid article of ball that the team in playing at present it will take a much better team than Oakland to take a fall out of the locals. The snap displayed in general work, the willingness to go after everything, the desire to get on the circuit, the honest effort to bat with judgment, and steel bases daringly yet carefully, cannot but result in good ball playing and more victories. Some attribute the successes of the past three days to Malmstrom's field luck, but those addicted to luck dope of this kind could not tell whether good playing or lightning bolt decided a contest. This best kind of luck is the playing a game with all of one's heart and soul. To be deeply interested in every play, to be in spirit in every movement of the ball, and to be unceasingly at it from the pitch of the first ball until the last throw of the same, is the way in which ball teams achieve success.

Yesterday's game was an honest exhibition of how the national pastime should be played. The Oakland manager, depicted with two defeats, decided to pit Oscar Graham against the Browns, with the hope of breaking the losing spell. Manager McCredie made no change in his pitching schedule, allowing Garvin, who was not extra well, to play in his turn, and the way in which the lanky Texan mowed the commuters down was a pleasure to see. Nine strikeouts are to his credit, and with men on bases he was as steady as a rock. In the second inning the Oaklanders landed the ball in the tennis court, and with the assistance of another single, one run crossed the plate. This was the only time that the visitors knocked hits with the exception of the ninth inning, when Francks and Byrne connected, the former scoring a few minutes later on a passed ball.

One of the pleasant features of the game was the star work of Runkle at third base, and his timely two-base hit in the eighth inning that put the proper stamp on the contest. Runkle has always been known to be an honest player, but secretly he came in for criticism on account of his failure to bat and also to field up to the Coast League standard. Withal he kept pegging away and many predicted that he would soon strike his old-time gait. His work at third was a revelation and pleased Manager McCredie and the fans very much. Everybody would like to see Runkle remain with the Oakland team, as he is a decent fellow and most companionable. It is to be hoped that he will continue the good work to which he treated the fans yesterday. Schaffley was on deck again with bells, getting a three-bagger in the eighth that started the ball rolling. A few more victories will put Portland up among the leaders.

Details of Game. The first inning passed without any results for either team, but in the second luck was with the Oaks and they chased one over the pan. Julie Streib led off with a chance to Lou Runkle, who fielded him out at first. Jim Kelley rained a Texas leaguer into the tennis court and secured two sacks. Wild Bill also pulled one to left, the sphere clearing the wire netting, scoring Kel and getting into the summary himself. Buck Francks showed one between Mitchell and Schaffley, but fast fielding by McCredie held the Red Dog at third. Jimmy Byrne hit a sharp one to Garvin and the Texan held Brick at third while Jimmy was retired at first. Francks going to second, Oscar Graham, who is noted for his wallowing proclivities, in addition to his pitching prowess, came to the plate and struck out.

Jake Atz negotiated first via being hit by a pitched ball after one was down in the third, but Graham fielded Van Buren's bunt in splendid style and Atz was doubled at second, Francks relaying to Streib ahead of Van Buren. The locals tied up the proceedings on several wild throws by Graham, Kelly and Devereaux, which allowed Runkle to score. The tie remained unbroken until the eighth when the local sluggers proceeded to break up the game. Larry Schaffley connected with one that he liked and sent it whirling past Van Halten clear to the deep fence and safely acquired three bases on the swat. "Judge" McCredie walked to the plate with the intention of duplicating Schaffley's swat, but Graham beat him to it, and gave the manager life by tapping on the funny bone. Big Jack McLean wandered aimlessly to the plate, and poetically bitted one on the snout. For one cushion scoring Schaffley.

Mike Mitchell attempted to sacrifice, but a pop fly to Byrne sat the first sacker down, and it was up to Lou Runkle, who is playing a star game. Lou made good with a cooking two bagger, which chased the two Maces over the register. Devereaux stabbed Garvin's drive and retired Runkle at third. Jake Atz was passed, but Van Buren's fly-out to Kelly ended the inning.

Kelly led off in the ninth with a chance to Runkle and was out at first. Wild Bill of the brazen locks, took three ineffectual swings and sat down, which made it look like curtains for the visitors, but Buck Francks startled the spectators with a long drive over Van Buren's head, which netted him two sacks. Jimmy Byrne made a safe hit, advancing Buck to third, from whence he scored on McLean's passed ball. Oscar Graham again fanned and the game was over.

FIRST TO RETIRE IN THIRTY YEARS. Jeffries is Only One in Over Three Decades to Quit Ring With Honors.

MACE DID SAME ACT MANY YEARS AGO. English Ex-Champion Quit on Account of Age, Jeffries No Worthy Opponents.

Jim Jeffries is the first heavyweight champion to retire with the title of champion since the days of Jim Mace, nearly 34 years ago.

34 years ago, Mace won the world's heavyweight championship, London prize ring title, by defeating Tom Allen on May 10, 1870. The battle took place near New Orleans, Mace winning it in the tenth round after 44 minutes of hard and clever fighting. The battle brought to the ringside the best known sporting and athletic men in the country, but the principals in the affair, with the exception of Mace and Al Smith, have passed the great divide. Mace's attendants were Jim Cusick and Jerry Donovan, with John C. Heenan as his umpire. Allen was seconded by Joe Coburn and Sherman Thurston, with "Dad" Ryan as umpire. Rufus Hunt officiated as referee and Al Smith held the watch. On May 11, 1870, Mace and Joe Coburn met for the championship at Fort Dover, C. W., but after dancing around the ring one hour and 17 minutes, without making an attempt to fight, the high sheriff of the county stepped into the ring and commanded hostilities to stop at once. Referee "Dick" Hollywood, the bantam-weight champion of America, ordered the men to fight it out at Kansas City, Missouri, on June 2, but as he overstepped the rules by not ordering the men to renew the battle within a week, Coburn refused to obey the mandate, but offered to fight within 24 or 48 hours. Mace proceeded to the place appointed and as Coburn failed to appear the referee decided that Mace was entitled to the stakes. Stakeholder Harry Hill, however, refused to give them up, and finally a new match was arranged. This battle took place at Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, on November 30, 1871, and resulted in a draw. The men put up a fair sort of a battle for 11 rounds, but stilled so much in the twelfth session that Referee Rufus Hunt stepped into the ring and declared the fight a draw, expressing the opinion that "one was afraid and the other daren't."

That was Mace's last fight, and as he was 40 years old he concluded to retire. The old fellow is still in the land of the living and recently took part in a boxing entertainment in England, donning the mitts for a four-round bout with a young heavyweight.

Mace retired because he thought he was too old to fight, and Jeffries, if he stands by his statement, retired because there is no one for him to fight. It was expected by him and others that Marvin Hart would prove, in his recent battle with Jack Johnson, he was made up of championship timber, but his showing against the big black did not warrant his being pitted against the champion. Three months ago Marvin, outside of Johnson, was really the only big man in the business to talk shop to Jeffries, but as he failed to deliver the goods, and as there is no one in sight capable of giving the ex-champion an argument, his championship title, from a pugilistic standpoint, is worthless.

COMMERCIALS ARE CHAMPIONS. Huntington, Or., May 27.—The third of a series of three baseball games between the Harriman's, composed of employees of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company and the Oregon Short Line railroads and the Commercial's, composed of city players, was played here Thursday and resulted in a victory for the Commercial's by a score of 7 to 2.

AMERICAN HENLEY BEING ROWED TODAY. Philadelphia, May 27.—Thousands of lovers of aquatic sport lined the banks of the Schuylkill today to witness the races of the American Henley regatta. Auspicious conditions surrounded the opening of the regatta and everything pointed to one of the most successful events of the kind ever held on the famous Schuylkill course.

NEW COAL AND SAWMILL PROJECT FOR CHEHALIS. Chehalis, May 27.—Another coal and sawmill project is in sight for Chehalis. Some time ago W. H. Lowrie and other Chehalis county capitalists bought the Montgomery tract of land, about 1,000 acres, across the Chehalis river west of town. This land has a fine coal deposit on it and many years ago this was quite extensively worked for local consumption. Owing to lack of transportation, though, it was finally abandoned. There is also about 25,000,000 feet of timber on the property and an endless supply of timber on adjoining lands. The matter is being considered of building a spur across the river from Chehalis to tap this property, develop the coal field there and also build a big saw and shingle mill to cut up the timber. The mill would likely be built at Chehalis, it is possible that if the spur is built it would be so extended as to tap the mine now being worked by the Crescent Coal company of Tacoma, which is shipping many carloads monthly. The bridge across the river would also likely be built for both rail and wagon purposes, affording another crossing place for the big farms west of this city.

WILL FIGHT O'KEEFE INSTEAD OF RYAN. Butte, Mont., May 27.—Word was received by the Silver Bow Athletic club last night that Jimmy Gardner had changed his mind about fighting Buddy Ryan in Butte, June 13, Miner's Union day, and would meet Jack O'Keefe of Chicago in Salt Lake that date. Gardner gave the club no intimation whatever as to why he concluded to pass up Ryan in Butte. Gardner and Ryan had signified their willingness to fight in Butte and articles had been mailed to the two men. Gardner's change of front apparently followed the receipt of the articles.

OREGON READY FOR MEET AT CORVALLIS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) University of Oregon, Eugene, May 27.—Manager Whittlesey, Trainer Hayward and the university track team left on yesterday afternoon's train for Corvallis, where they will take the O. A. C. track team on the Corvallis oval this afternoon. Frank Frissel, the contested athlete, was taken along, but it is very likely that he will not be allowed to run, as the Corvallis manager has reconsidered his proposition about allowing this man to run and has retracted. The Oregon men are going to almost certain defeat, but they will go into the meet with the same determination that won the Washington contest. The team is further weakened by Henderson, who has been doing the high jump at about 5 feet 7 inches, being compelled to remain at home. Henderson hurt his ankle in the Washington meet and can scarcely bear his weight on his feet. Tomorrow will be the ninth time that Oregon and O. A. C. have met on the track, and six times have the teams from the state university been the victors. The team that left today is composed of the following men: Hug, Gardner, Frissel, Moore, Perkins, Miller, Woods, Hammock, Kuykendall, Winslow, Mitchell, McIntyre and Veatch.

HARVARD OARSMEN TACKLE CORNELIANS

(Journal Special Service.) Boston, May 27.—Everything is in readiness for the Harvard-Cornell boat races to be rowed on the Charles river this afternoon.—The race will be rowed over a course one and seven eighths of a mile in length, beginning at the lower end of the Charles river basin and finishing at the Longwood bridge. Just opposite the finish a grandstand with a seating capacity of 2,000 has been erected. Harvard is naturally the favorite here and a large amount of local money is being wagered on her chances of success. Those who have seen the Cornell crew at practice, however, have formed an excellent opinion of its condition and form and the Harvard money is finding plenty of takers.

SPORTING GOSSIP. A subscription has been started for the benefit of Edward Van Buren, in order that Portland's left fielder may have his pants washed. All subscriptions will be acknowledged in the columns of The Journal. Everybody is glad that Runkle put up such a brilliant game yesterday, both in the field and at the bat. Teddy Corbett, who was secured from St. Paul, has wired McCredie refusing to come to Portland. He is in a winning club and cannot be blamed much for not wanting to change, but it is possible that he may yet be induced to come to the world's fair city. Ely Cates is slated to pitch for Portland today and if he can beat Schmidty it looks as though Portland would make a clean sweep of the series. Win French has, at his own request, received a two weeks' layoff to get his arm into shape. When he accomplishes this Portland will have one of the best pitchers in the league back in the game. Seattle has taken young Boyle of Santa Clara college back to the fold. Boyle was with the Siwashers a short time last season and made such a good impression that Russ Hall decided to give him another trial. Bill Dunleavy, the crack left fielder of the Oakland team, is out of the game for a few days with a boil on his foot. Cook will play in Dun's place until he recovers. Sam Langford won the decision over Young Peter Jackson at the end of a six-round bout at Marlborough, Massachusetts, last evening. Two accidents marred the card of the American Jockey club's races at St. Louis yesterday. Weir fell and severely injured Jockey Ghormley, and Broadway dropped dead on the track after finishing a race. The Western Washington Livestock and Agricultural association will forward its new grounds at Centralia with a race meet on Decoration day. At the meeting of the National Association of Amateur Billiard players it was decided to hold the 1906 championship contests at Chicago. After three days of play the Metropolitan Golf association's annual tournament has narrowed down to two men, Archie Graham of Paterson, New Jersey, and Charles H. Seely of Stamford, Connecticut. These two contestants play the final today. Schaffley's corking three bagger in the eighth was the beginning and end of Oscar Graham's troubles. Larry is a terror with the stick and on the bases.
